Southern Long Talking Breaks Senate Records

By GARDNER L. BRIDGE

WASHINGTON, March 4 (AP) — A partial power failure hit the Capitol today as the Southern filibuster against a civil rights bill topped Senate endurance records.

One senator, A. S. (Mike) Monroney (D-Okla.), professed to see a connection between the electrical failure and the round-the-clock grind by which Senate leaders have been trying to wear down Southern orators.

On the floor, Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) showed no signs of wearing down as he took his turn in the southern lineup. McClellan declared that even if the Senate passed every proposal offered, civil rights advocates would be back next year "demanding more legislation."

"You can't satisfy them," he said. "How are you going to end it? The only way to deal with it is to stop considering this eternal hollering about civil rights."

Monroney told the Senate during one interval that the continuous sessions which began last Monday noon have completely exhausted Senate equipment, while leaving the Southerners fresh as daisies.

Building engineers said they thought the power breakdown was caused by the grounding of electrical equipment by yesterday's 8-inch snowfall.

The temporary shutdown knocked out the lights and electric ovens in the Senate and House restaurants, stalled some elevators, and silenced the quorum call bells. The Senate chamber itself, fed by a different power line, was not affected.

Clerks used the telephone to summon absent members to quorum calls.

While weary senators lunched by candlelight on salads, sandwiches and lukewarm soup, the clocks that were still working ticked off a new record for an unbroken Senate session.

At 1:39 p.m. EST the senate had been sitting without a break for 54 hours and 11 minutes, surpassing a record of 45 years standing.

The previous record of 54 and 10 minutes was set in 1915 during a successful filibuster against a ship purchase bill proposed by President Woodrow Wilson.

All-America Honors Awarded Lee Shaffer, York Larese

By TED MEIER

Basketball Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — A new college basketball star will emerge next season, in the wake of the graduation of Oscar Robertson and Jerry West. And the selection of the 1960 collegiate basketball All-America by The Associated Press Friday indicates the successor to the Big O and the Cabin Creek Comet will be Jerry Lucas of Ohio State.

Robertson, 6-5 of Cincinnati, and West, 6-3 of West Virginia, were far ahead in the voting by 329 sports writers and broadcasters from throughout the country. Their skill and lipesse is well known and it was no surprise that they repeated from 1959. In fact, this is the third straight year Robertson made the All-America.

Lucas, a 6-9 sophomore who sparked Ohio State to its first Big Ten title in more than a decade, polled 253 first place votes to 311 for Robertson and 304 for West. This showing points to him as next year's individual standout in much the same manner that Bill Russell of San Francisco followed Tom Gola of LaSalle, Will Chamberlain of Kansas followed Russell, and Robertson and West followed Chamberlain.

Darrall Imhoff, the 6-10 senior who led California to its first national collegiate NCAA title in 1959 and who will help defend the crown in this year's tourney, also was named on the first team along with Tony Jackson, junior star of the defending National Invitation Tournament champs, St. John's of N. W. York.

Imhoff polled 234 first place votes, but the 6-4 Jackson, barely gal-the first team nod with 61 to 53 for Tom Stith, 6-5 junior from St. Bonaventure. It is possible that Jackson and Stith will face each other in the NIT, Robertson, West, Lucas and Imhoff will compete in the NCAA.

Stith topped the second team selection composed also of Terry Dischinger of Purdue, Roger Kaiser of Georgia Tech, Chet Walker of Bradley, and Len Wilkens of Providence.

Dave Hickox of Miami, Fla., at 5-6 perhaps the tiniest player in major college basketball, was named to the third team with Lee Shaffer of North Carolina, Bill McGill of Utah, Horace Walker of Michigan State and Bill Kennedy of Temple.

The 15 players, composing the first three teams, each will receive certificates from The Associated Press.

York Larese of UNC was on the honorable mention list of 25 players.

Fulbright Accuses President Of Driving Away Idea Men

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON, March 4 (AP) — President Eisenhower was accused by Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) today of driving men of ideas from Washington by treating with contempt his defense critics.

Fulbright, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Eisenhower has the attitude that he knows best about military necessities. The Senator said this is a dangerous idea threatening the very existence of the nation.

"Mr. Eisenhower, by virtue of his powers as President of the United States and Commander in Chief of its armed forces, is the only man alive whose decisions about our armaments, if tacitly, could cause the free world to be lost in an afternoon," Fulbright said.

Fulbright set out in a full dress speech prepared for the Senate to document the thesis that, under Eisenhower, the United States has become "a 20th century Babylon, heedless and heartless, a big, fat target for the ably-led communist world and the clamoring, poverty-ridden states."

It is humiliating, the Senator said, that with a per capita income nearly double that of any other country, the United States should be "debating the extent to which our armed forces may be inferior to those of The Soviet Union."

In the face of what he termed a total threat from Russia, Fulbright said Eisenhower is in sharp conflict with critics of the defense program.

"He treats them contemptuously," Fulbright said. "He was not disturbed, he said, 'Because anyone with a parochial viewpoint says the bosses know nothing about it.'"

"Generals are not to reason why. Their commander in chief complains that 'too many generals have all sorts of ideas.'"

"Yet mankind moves on ideas. Men with ideas are the makers and shakers of the world. The larger their number serving the country the more fruitful and vigorous the country."

"But few men of ideas come to Washington. They are not likely to seek service under a chief executive who is scornful of their kind."

Fulbright said Eisenhower had "blubbed those who disagree with his judgments 'noisy extremists'; men unpatriotic because they have the tendency to disparage our country," while they are also dishonest because their assertions are "spurious," that is, fake.

The Arkansas Senator said the group so condemned included two former Army Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway and Maxwell D. Taylor; Gen. James M. Gavin, former Chief of Army Research and Development; and Gen. Thomas S. Power, Chief of the Strategic Air Command.

"Alas for members of Congress who question the President's military concepts," he said. "He calls them 'political morticians' exhibiting a breast-beating pessimism." This scarcely answers the inquiries of earnest men worried about their country's security."

Fulbright said it was disturbing for the President to tell a news conference he knows more than "almost anyone" about military matters.

"This is dangerous because the President's attitude forecloses discussion while precluding reason," Fulbright said.

He added that this deters "military men, fearful of their careers, from speaking up; encourages the dominance of yes-men, and tends to drive superior men from the service."

26 Jailed As Sitdown Strikes Continue To Spread In South

By The Associated Press

Police in Sumter, S. C., jailed 26 Bible-carrying Negro college students Friday as demonstrators against segregated lunch counters continued to spread across the South.

The movement reached Miami, Fla., where eight ministers tried unsuccessfully to break the color barrier in a downtown department store lunchroom.

Mayor W. G. Enloe of Raleigh, N. C., announced appointment of a committee to seek a way to end the Negro demonstrations.

The 15-member Advisory Group is comprised of Negro and white citizens.

Four variety stores in Winston-Salem, N. C., reopened their lunch counters after warning that demonstrators would be prosecuted as trespassers. None appeared.

A group of Negro students from Barber-Scottia College in Concord, N. C., held a religious service on the courthouse lawn, ignoring jeers and catcalls from a group of white youths.

Miami's first experience with the demonstrations ended peacefully.

Pride of the law school, Blackstone has never lost a moot trial. But there's nothing moot about his preferences in dress. He finds that when he's comfortable, he can trap a witness and sway a jury like Clarence Darrow.

So he always wears Jockey brand briefs while preparing his briefs. Exclusive Jockey tailoring gives him a bonus of comfort he gets in no other underwear. Fine Jockey combed cotton is more absorbent, smoother fitting, too.
