Grimsley Elected New IDC President

Swag Grimsley was elected president of the Interdormitory Council last Wednesday night. He succeeds Otto Funderburke.

Other officers elected were: Mike Childs, vice president; Pat Morgan, secretary; Bill Sayers, treasurer; Larry Sney, IDC Court Chairman, and Jim Gaudin, court clerk.

The new president said he hoped to create "a more wholesome social life, a better study atmosphere in the dormitories. He also said that he would work for a better relationship between dormitories and fraternities and also to help the dormitories exert a greater influence on the campus and in the Student Government.

Grimsley's program is to set up a publicity committee to project an image of the IDC on Campus, to select an outstanding IDC member each month, and to attempt to have one large dance weekend each semester.

Other points the new president hopes to carry out are: to hold regular office hours and regular conferences with the Committee chairmen and other IDC officers and members; to use IDC meetings as an open forum to discuss various issues and to use the IDC as a lobbying group within the Student Government.

Gray Speaks On Snowball Disturbances

The following statement was issued yesterday by Student Body President Charlie Gray concerning the recent disturbances provoked by the snow:

"During the last two snowfalls, many students have taken thoughtless, immature actions, which has cast an unfavorable light upon our entire student body. Such incidents as throwing snowballs at moving cars, small children, and the adult citizens of Chapel Hill have been prevalent. Numerous complaints have been reported and the situation became serious today when the windshield of a moving car was shattered by a group of students in front of Joyner dormitory. This incident could easily have resulted in serious injury to several people.

"It is time for the students of this campus to realize the seriousness of the careless and immature throwing of snowballs. Snowball fights in restricted areas and among the students are fine; however, Student Government will start taking disciplinary action against those students who insist on making public nuisances in regard to the snow and causing harsh criticism to be leveled at the University. I hope the students will cooperate in alleviating this problem."

Grigg Pushes Intellectual Atmosphere

The following statement is issued by David Grigg, candidate for President of the UNC Student Body:

It is important that students concern themselves with academic affairs and the intellectual atmosphere in our university community. We all realize the atomic age and the shock of Soviet superiority in certain scientific areas. Moreover, this emphasis in recent years has been evident here at Carolina.

We have seen this in the rising admission and academic standards. We have also seen it in the increasing emphasis on grades, intentional or unintentional as the case may be. Thus, since our academic environment is so important to the students of the university, student government must take an active interest in this area.

This year the Academic Affairs Committee under the Norman B. Smith has done an outstanding job in taking initiative in this area. They have taken interest in a way that students and student government have never done before. Many of these projects which have been started must be continued lest they fall short of being completed. It is my hope to continue and expand this program next year.

I would like to mention briefly some of the specific areas we should be interested in:

First of all, student government must do all that it can toward bettering the over-all intellectual atmosphere on campus. This year student government started the "Last Lecture Series" which has been quite successful. This series will give Carolina students and townspeople a chance to take advantage of the intellectual talent and achievement we have among our faculty.

In addition, I would like to work with and encourage the administration to continue their program of advanced and seminar courses. It is essential that we expand this (See GRIGG, page 3)

Edwards Notes Past, Future Honor System

Phil Edwards, Student Party-endorsed independent candidate for the presidency of the student body said yesterday that, "The Honor System has been the most important issue of the past year and promises to continue as an issue. I would like to be very specific about the honor system and recall some of its recent history.

"A high standard of individual integrity and responsibility coupled with mature handling of discipline problems has been a tradition at the University of North Carolina.

"During recent years, however, increased size of the University combined with other factors to create a situation in which the Honor Council was controlled almost exclusively by fraternities, frequently by one or two houses. As a result of the dogmatic and inconsistent handling of cases and absolute resistance to criticism by the Council, the confidence of most students in the Honor System reached a low level.

"Efforts by the Student Party to remedy these ills, such as the bill providing open trials for those who requested them, were stifled by the entrenched fraternity interests and the veto of the Student Body President Charlie Gray. When the Legislature was finally successful in getting the amendments before the student body, they were all approved. Since that time the opposition has resorted to all means to prevent the wishes of the student body from taking effect. This includes the speech of President last week. The opposition has talked about everything except the plain and simple facts of the situation.

"First, we are no longer concerned with the question of whether we will have certain reforms; the student body decided that in the referendum. Those who are blocking measures designed to put the reforms into practice are denying the validity of the democratic process. (See EDWARDS, Page 3)

Treasurer Candidate Smalley Discusses Carolina Budget

The following statement is issued by Jimmy Smalley, candidate for the office of Student Government Treasurer:

The Student Government Budget serves a very necessary function. It consists of separate budgets for each organization coming under the financial jurisdiction of the Student Legislature.

These individual budgets are determined by the business managers and business staff of each organization. After completion, the two proposed budgets are then submitted to the Budget committee for final approval.

Free Flicks

This week's Free Flicks have two things in common: they have western settings and are cinema masterpieces.

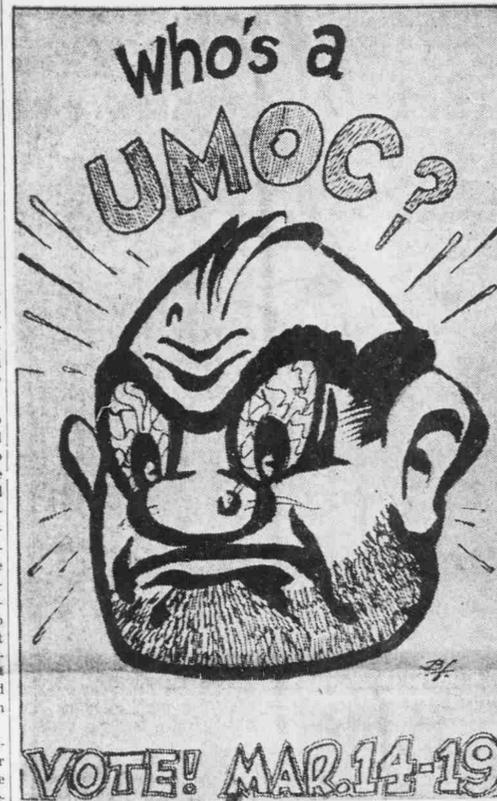

"The Magnificent Ambersons," starring Joseph Cotton and Agnes Moorehead, is Orson Welles's production of Booth Tarkington's Pulitzer Prize novel dealing with the "disintegration of a midwestern 'first family'."

"High Noon" . . . Gary Cooper won an Oscar for it; Fred Zinnemann, it's director, is a Oscar nominee for "Sun's Story" and Stanley Kramer, its producer, just released "On the Beach."

SSL Canceled

For the second straight year, the North Carolina State Student Legislature has been called off due to weather conditions. It was to have met yesterday, today and tomorrow. No new date has been set for the meeting.

Legislators Have Extended Discussion On Courts Bill

WHO, ME?—This handsome young man has just learned that he is a prime contender for the esteemed title of Ugliest Man on Campus. Do you know somebody uglier? If so, cast your vote next week.

UMOC Entry Deadline Put Up Until Monday

By SUSAN LEWIS
There are so many ugly people on this campus that the Ugly Man on Campus contest deadline has been extended to Monday.

This means that all you ugly people can still enter the UMOG race and become famous in your own right.

After all, being THAT ugly is a distinction of sorts.

Maybe you don't realize you're ugly. Try this simple test:

Look in a mirror, ask a coed if you resemble Rock Hudson or Boris Karloff, check your calendar to see if you've had a date lately; or, if all else fails, compare your countenance with that of the cartoon UMOG or last year's winner, Dirt Farmer.

So, you see, you are ugly after all. Since you have to live with your ugliness, you might as well capitalize on it.

Just send three 5 x 7 pictures of yourself in all your gruesome glory to Allan Spader, 109 Lewis, or Don Marshburn, 212 Mangum.

Enclose $1 to show that you're really interested and sit back and relax until your picture appears in Y Court, the Scuttlebutt and Lenoir Hall.

Then the fun begins. Every penny is a vote, and with a large amount of friends who agree that you are the best choice for UMOG (enough so to add enough pennies to the cause)—you just might find yourself the winner.

Quads Turn Out To Welcome Passersby With Snow Attack

By HENRY HANK

The Upper and Lower Quads, traditional centers of insurrection and unrest, once again exploded into violence Thursday afternoon, as militant Carolina Gentlemen bombarded passing cars with snowballs.

Although the crowd had been enjoying some good-natured frolicking, trouble quickly developed when a stray missile cracked the windshield of a woman's car. The woman quickly summoned the campus police, who promptly arrived on the scene only to be greeted by jeers, catcalls and a few stray cheers.

However, the disturbed driver was determined to avenge the act, without police assistance, so she jumped out of her car and pursued her attacker, whom she could only identify as wearing a tan coat.

The strains of "Peter Gunn's" theme blared forth from a second story window, as the triumphant lady cornered the gent in the tan coat and led him to the waiting officers.

The chase itself was an exciting one with the woman drifting through several large snow drifts into a group of boys wearing tan coats, picking out her victim, and chasing him around Mangum dorm before grabbing him by his tan-coated shoulder.

Mr. Tan Coat was duly charged with assault (throwing snowballs at people or vehicles is a criminal offense), as the crowd alternately hissed and cheered.

Appealing Of Trials Gets Close Attention

By BERNIE GHISELIN

A host of solons nursed through the Student Legislature last night a bill to set standard procedures in all courts under the authority of the Student Government.

Chairman David Grigg opened lengthy debate saying that this bill was "one of the most important pieces of legislation this year."

The seven page bill moved along in spurts. Closely concerned legislators stopped section after section on questions of phrasing and terminology. This bill dominated the session.

An article outlining reasons that a trial may be ended received greatest attention. This article is aimed at protecting a reported offender from mistrial. If such a miscarriage occurred, then the trial would be postponed.

Also getting close attention was one sentence pertaining to the appropriateness of opening a trial with a prayer. Parliamentarian Gary Greer questioned the use of the prayer. Norman B. Smith defended it, and finally the body adopted an amendment changing the word "will" to "may."

The bill's 18 articles provide for standard procedure during all phases of reporting an offender, bringing him to trial, provided defense and witnesses, and motions for a new trial. Conduct of the trial and of the jury covers over a page.

As this edition went to press debate on the bill continued and its passage was expected. There was some discussion in private groups that the bill might be tabled.

After a brief intermission Bill Miller, SP representative, called for a quorum saying that he believed the bill was of great enough significance to merit closer attention than he felt was being given.

As debate drew out, one legislator in the rear of the hall could be seen bent over a table studying for a chemistry quiz.

Many other bills await presentation, among them one to designate November 3 as John Motley Morehead day. This bill is expected to enliven the next session. Also awaiting discussion is a measure giving legislative support to the student sit-down strikes being held throughout the country. A preliminary count predicts that this bill will be defeated.

Bill Miller also raised the point that a list of specific offenses or a "criminal code" should be established before any trial could be conducted or an appeal made.

Absentee Votes To Be Granted

Absentee ballots for the campus-wide elections to be held Tuesday, March 22, will be granted to voters submitting a written request for such to Ben Lenhardt, Elections Board chairman, prior to Friday, March 18, 5 p.m.

No ballots will be granted after this time unless the student requesting a ballot has to leave the campus on short notice and if the excuse is considered valid by the Elections Board chairman.

Any student who is unable to vote at the proper polling place for one of the following reasons will be granted an absentee ballot: (1) patient in the infirmary, (2) absence from Chapel Hill, or (3) any other reason approved by the Board.

Requests may be made to Lenhardt at 211 Lewis or to Elaine Livas at the Alpha Gamma Delta house.

The Board has decided that all votes cast in the spring elections will not be counted until March 23, due to the impossibility of completing the counting in one night. They will start the process on Wednesday at 1 p.m. and hope to have the final tally by midnight.

Robert Frost To Entertain At UNC Again

Robert Frost will come again to Chapel Hill. For the fourteenth consecutive time, Frost will provide a relaxed evening of entertainment through a wide selection of his renowned poetry.

During his visit to Chapel Hill, he will be the guest of Prof. and Mrs. Clifford P. Lyons at their Greenwood Road residence. Frost and the Lyons have been close friends since they were first neighbors in Gainesville, Fla.

The 85-year-old poet has been professor of English at Amherst, Poet in Residence and Fellow in Letters at Michigan, Norton Professor of Poetry at Harvard, Ralph Waldo Emerson Fellow at Harvard, Fellow in American Civilization at Harvard, member of the Board of Overseers at Harvard and Ticknor Fellow in Humanities at

Symposium Will Feature New Seminar

This year the Carolina Symposium expanded the scope of its program beyond the campus through the addition of a special Intercollegiate Seminar, an educational venture to promote the development and exchange of ideas between representatives of different colleges.

The Intercollegiate Seminar will bring approximately 25 academically superior students from a wide diversity of institutions to the University for the first three days of the Symposium program in order to discuss the Symposium topic of the position of man in the modern world with the Symposium speakers.

Seminar participants will spend the mornings examining the previous night's program in a thoroughly planned, closed seminar moderated by Dr. Warren Ashby, professor of ethics at Woman's College.

During the afternoons, seminar delegates will attend the regularly scheduled Symposium student seminars, where they will have a chance to hear and contribute to the comments of a more heterogeneous group.

In the evening, the Intercollegiate Seminar will attend the regular Symposium lecture.

The students who will attend this seminar will be chosen by the Symposium Committee. So far, applications have been received from Mount Holyoke College, Brandeis University, Randolph-Macon College, the University of Virginia, Mary Washington, Brooklyn College, Davidson, University of Texas.

Any UNC student interested in applying to participate in the Intercollegiate Seminar may obtain application blanks from the Symposium office or the Graham Memorial information desk.

Application should be made immediately, for seminar members will be chosen within a few days.

Senior Class Will Present Four Freshmen In Gymnasium

Strains of "Charmaine" and "Please Remember" will ring out through Woollen Gym as the Senior Class presents the Four Freshmen March 24, 8 p.m.

Admission is $1 per person and tickets are available at Y Court, Graham Memorial and from the Senior Class officers.

All money will go toward the Senior Class gift.

Dress will be informal and students are asked to bring a blanket for purposes of floor sitting.

The Four Freshmen, who first leaped to fame with the aid of Stan Kenton, have been singing together since 1946. They first conceived their distinctive style at the Arthur Jordan Conservatory of Music in Indianapolis.

Composed of Ross and Don Barbour, Ken Albers and Bob Flanigan, the quartet initially called themselves The Toppers, but changed the name to The Four Freshmen just before their professional debut.

After Kenton heard them and sold Capitol Records, the group began a series of night club and TV appearances around the country, amassing a large following audience.

A performance by the quartet is decidedly not limited to vocalizing. Among them, the boys can blow, strum or thump seven instruments.

Bob Flanigan sings the top voice, plays trombone and doubles on string bass. Ross Barbour is master of ceremonies, sings third voice and plays drums and trumpet.
