Legislature Keeps Baynes In Attorney General's Post

Gives 'NO' Vote To DTH Censure

By DAVE JONES
Yes 22, No 16, Abstain 2, Absent 10.
Thus went the voting last night on the motion to approve Bob Baynes as student body Attorney General. This vote brought to a close a question which has been open since Wednesday March 23rd, and the subject of a secret Legislative investigation and eight column headlines.

After the vote was announced Rep. Bob Nobles moved that The Daily Tar Heel be censured for its role in the Randall-Baynes case. He contended that it had editorialized and slanted its presentation of the case.

Noble's motion was killed by a voice vote after brief discussion. John Randall, the 1959-60 president of Battle-Voice-Pettigrew, petitioned the legislature to deny Baynes re-appointment. In his petition Randall charged that Baynes had "allowed his personal friendship with an accused person to sway his judgment and that Baynes threatens and abuses (against Randall) constitute misfeasance in office."

Written statements on the question of the Dorm election and its bearing on the case were heard by the Legislature. Among those making statements were Dave Pollack, Dorm Manager of BVP and David Grigg, Student Body President.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the Legislature, but delivered by Rep. Mike Turner for him, Randall said "I submitted calmly to several questions about the ballot box incident, it was not until he told me that he intended to use the Attorney General's staff to investigate the whole election in my dorm and that 'as long as we're cleaning up, we might as well sweep one corner clean as another.'

"I took that statement to mean that Baynes roommate was one corner and I was the other" Continued Randall. The speech also touched on Baynes anger, his impartiality or lack of it, his dual role as private student and Attorney General and his personal relationship with the two other students involved.

Rep. Davis B. Young, 1959-60 Editor of The Daily Tar Heel defended Baynes and recalled that he had editorially recommended his initial appointment to past President Charlie Gray.

Young pointed out Baynes accomplishments in the areas of codification, communication, staff work, and his innovations in office.

"If Bob Baynes had done something wrong, would he have been willing to subject himself to public scrutiny through headlines, editorials and whisper campaigns? Would he have willingly appeared before a legislative investigating committee?" Asked Young of the Body.

Four Freshmen Receive Regular NROTC Program

The Navy Department has just announced the selection of four UNC freshmen students for appointment in the Regular NROTC Program next September.

The four nominees are presently in the Contract NROTC Program. These candidates have been selected from a large number of applicants competing on a nationwide basis.

Outstanding students receiving nominations this year are: John J. Atchley, Rahway, N. J.; Walter M. Ballard, Jr., Rt. 2, Auryville; James G. McMichael, Jr., Winston-Salem; and Roland H. Sonaker, Jr., Glen Ridge, N. J.

The Regular NROTC Midshipman receives his tuition, books, fees and uniforms for the period enrolled in the University. He is given a six-week summer training cruise each summer aboard ships of the fleet and at naval bases and after completing all requirements for a degree is commissioned an Ensign, U. S. Navy.

Coeds To Meet At Sigma Chi Derby Tuesday

The sixteenth annual Sigma Chi Derby, better known as the "Battle of the Coeds", will be held in Keman Stadium next Tuesday at 2:30 p.m.

Sororities and Nurses will compete in various events for trophies, and individual awards will be made to the winners in each event. A grand prize will be awarded to the resident unit winning the most events.

Door prizes, including beer, shirts, bathing suits and steak dinners will be given to spectators.

Highlighting the event will be a beauty contest, in which a coed is crowned Miss Modern Venus. Last year's Miss Venus was Maxine Greenfield. Other events include a "race to the flesh" contest, a pie-throwing "hit the Geek" contest (Jim Black will be the Geek), a Grand National relay race and a new secret event that has been added this year. Skits by the individual sororities and Nurses dorms will also be given.

Reflect Scholarly Interests

The provisions of Mr. Whitaker's will reflect his own scholarly and artistic interests which he demonstrated during his life time. One of his chief hobbies was collecting rare old books, letters and manuscripts, valuable and unique first editions, many of which are now in the Whitaker Collection of the Rare Book Room of the Louis R. Wilson Library here. In his travels in Greece, Italy, France, England and other parts of Europe he collected paintings, works of sculpture and archaeological objects.

The honorary Doctor of Laws degree was conferred on him at Chapel Hill in 1955. He had long been a leader in activities in the University of North Carolina Club in New York City.

AFROTC Drill Teams Return From Capitol

The Air Force ROTC drill team and Band Squadron recently participated in the National Cherry Blossom Festival drill competition in Washington.

The drill unit presented an exhibition of maneuvers in the national guard armory before a battery of judges from military installations near Washington.

The competition and parade are held annually by the Washington Board of Trade.

Whitaker Foundation Gives $1,750,000 For Scholarships; Library

The William A. Whitaker Foundation was established here Thursday made possible by the bequest in trust for University purposes of approximately $1,750,000 by the late William Asbury Whitaker of New York City, formerly of Winston-Salem.

Announcement of the bequest, one of the largest ever to come to the University was made by President William C. Friday at a Memorial Service to Mr. Whitaker held at noon yesterday in Gerard Hall. Chancellor William B. Aycock presided at the memorial services. William D. Carmichael, Jr., vice president of the University, spoke briefly of Mr. Whitaker and his long association with the University of North Carolina.

The Whitaker legacy to the University, his alma mater, is divided into three parts: (1) To the Library, particularly to the Rare Book Room, (2) For scholarships and fellowships, recipients to be known as "Whitaker Scholars" or "Whitaker Fellows," (3) For acquisition of works of art, such as sculptures, paintings, etchings and prints suitable to a university gallery of art.

He is founder of seven distinguished collections here relating to Dr. Samuel Johnson, James Boswell and their Friends; Charles Dickens and first editions of Dickensiana; the Illustrations of George Cruikshank; the Original Folios of Shakespeare's Plays; Costume Plates in Color; Books relating to William Makepeace Thackeray; and First Editions of Books Famous in English Literature.

William Asbury Whitaker was a native of Winston-Salem, the son of William A. and Anna Biting Whitaker. His father was one of the founders of the Winston-Salem public school system. The sons of William A. and Anna Biting Whitaker all attended the University at Chapel Hill—John C. Whitaker, Lyman Whitaker, William Whitaker and the late George B. Whitaker. In 1955 Mr. William A. Whitaker established a memorial loan fund at Chapel Hill in honor of his mother and father.

In his gift to the library, Mr. Whitaker specified that the Chancellor appoint a committee of four members, with the director of the Library as chairman, to select items for the Whitaker Collection.

The Whitaker Scholars and Fellows will be undergraduates chiefly, with one or more graduate students eligible. Scholastic attainment and financial need are selection criteria. The value will be cost of tuition.

Mr. Whitaker specified that the art objects acquired should not include abstract art. He stated that any type of art which may be termed "faddist" or a departure from the accepted canons of art are not to be included in the Whitaker Collection.

Coeds Working With Dems Get Late Permission

Dean of Women Katherine Kennedy Carmichael has granted late permission tomorrow night to coeds who are connected with the Mock Democratic Convention.

These coeds include, "committee members, whose time and attention is perhaps to be occupied until after 1:00 and voting delegates, who ought not to leave the Convention until it has ended — and it possibly will not have ended until after 1:00."

The notice from Dean Carmichael stated that women students under these categories are to sign out specially for this event and they will be expected to return immediately after the convention ends.

They are to be in their dormitory by or before 2 a.m., depending upon the time that the Convention ends.

In the event the Convention breaks up by 1 p.m., the coeds are expected to return to their dormitory or sorority by the normal closing hour.

"I hope that men attending the Convention will see to it that these young ladies do not have to go across the campus by themselves at a late hour," said Dean Carmichael.

Parents To Visit UNC During The Weekend

Students and Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity will play host to families and friends when the 10th annual Parents' Day is observed Sunday on the campus here.

Main events are centered during the afternoon, but a full day's activities will be available for visitors. No formal schedule for church attendance or lunch is planned, but open house will begin in all dormitories at 2 p.m.

Also open for viewing between 2 and 4 p.m. will be numerous exhibits and demonstrations at many campus buildings. Departments participating will include zoology in Wilson Hall; geology and anthropology, Person Hall; radio-television-motion pictures, Swain Hall; chemistry, Venable Hall; and physics, Phillips Hall.

The Coker Arboretum, the Morehead Planetarium, Wilson Library, Naval Armory, Playmakers Museum, and the Consolidated University offices will be other points for visiting.

A faculty reception will be held starting at 3:30 p.m. at Davie Poplar. The UNC Glee Club will provide music.

Governor Hodges Will Open Confab

Governor Luther Hodges will officially open the first University of North Carolina Mock Democratic National Convention in Woollen Gym at 3 p.m. today with the welcoming address.

However, before the Convention actually opens, there will be a parade through downtown Chapel Hill at 1:30 p.m. Parade Manager Bob Wilkinson said about 30 units have entered plus "a whole herd" of donkeys.

After Governor Hodges' speech, there will be Committee reports and the session will be adjourned at 5:30 p.m.

"Of course, most of these times are approximate," said Chairman Norman B. Smith. "Because there's no telling what might happen to throw the whole thing off schedule. There have been rumors that things might get a little out of hand." Smith refused to say what sort of rumors he has heard.

The main order of business tonight when the second session opens will be the keynote address by Congressman Ed Edmondson at 9 p.m. The platform will be adopted tonight, also.

"We feel that the platform adoption will be one of the more interesting things in the Convention, next to the balloting for President and Vice-President," said Smith. "The platform committee has drafted a very liberal platform, especially the Civil Rights plank. It should cause a real fight!" The second session should be adjourned by 11:30 p.m., according to Smith.

Tomorrow's first session will begin at 2:30 p.m. Most of the session will be the nominating speeches for the Presidency. Smith said he had no idea how many of these speeches would be made, since there are several favorite son candidates.

"These speeches are reported to be very colorful," said Smith, "Although all the pressure groups are keeping them pretty secret."

Senator Albert Gore from Tennessee will give the Party Unity Address at 8 p.m. Immediately after the address the balloting for candidates will begin. After the presidential candidate has been selected the Vice-Presidential balloting will begin.

"We have Saturday night's session scheduled to end at 1 a.m.," said Smith. "But it's possible that it may last longer." He urged all coed delegates to be sure and sign out for late permission, in case the session lasts past closing hours.

Movement Started To Recall Mock Convention Chairman

By MARY ALICE ROWLETTE
A movement has started on campus to recall Norman B. Smith as Chairman of the Mock Democratic Convention tomorrow because he is a Republican, according to Bob Futrelle, president of the UNC Young Democratic Club.

In a statement issued yesterday Futrelle said, "As I understand it, the Mock Democratic Convention is seeking to pattern itself after the National Democratic Convention as nearly as possible."

"One of the most realistic things it could do, therefore, would be to remove by recall the confessed Taft Republican that is its chairman. Despite his good works the Democrats on this campus should not permit Norman B. Smith to continue after their first chance to get rid of him."

"We have enough good Democrats on this campus to handle our conventions without help from the GOP," Futrelle concluded. He said yesterday afternoon that he felt sure that the YDC would adopt his statement in the form of a resolution in a meeting last night.

The Convention's "first chance to get rid of him," that Futrelle mentioned would undoubtedly be immediately after Governor Hodges' speech this afternoon at 3 p.m. in Woollen Gym.

Norman B. Smith, center of the controversy, could not be reached for comment on the statement. However, Glen Johnson, chairman of the Convention Platform Committee, issued a statement on behalf of Smith.

"Mr. Smith is confused," said Johnson. "He just thinks he is a Republican and, actually, he is not registered with any political party and, since his work with the Mock Democratic convention, I feel sure he thinks of himself as more of a Democrat than Republican."

Johnson went on to note Smith's long, hard work on the Convention for early a year and his value to the Convention.

"Even if he were a Republican (Continued to Page 3)
