Dedication Set For New Peabody

Addition Cost $865,000

The School of Education's new $865,000 home will be formally dedicated here Sunday at 8 p.m. The new addition to Peabody Hall will be dedicated by William C. Friday, president of the Consolidated University. Chancellor William B. Aycock will also participate in the dedication, along with Dean Arnold Perry of the School of Education.

Others who will take part in the program are Charles F. Carroll, N. C. State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and Vance Barron, pastor of Chapel Hill Presbyterian Church.

The dedication services will be followed by an open house held at Peabody. The ceremonies will touch off "School Week" here, a four-day conference on education held annually by the School of Education.

Noted speakers and discussion panelists will be featured on the program, according to Dr. Ben Fountain Jr., chairman of School Week. Dr. Fountain says he expects a large turnout of educators and friends of education to attend the ceremonies.

Addresses by two noted educators will be featured on Monday's program. Lawrence Derthick, Commissioner of Education of the U. S. Office of Education will speak Monday morning, and Helen MacIntosh, Chief of the Elementary Schools section in the U. S. Office, will deliver the afternoon address.

John Walton and L. P. McLendon will speak on Tuesday. Walton is head of the Department of Education at Johns Hopkins University, and McLendon is Chairman of the N. C. Board of Higher Education. Discussion groups will also be held throughout the day. Dallas Herring, Chairman of the N. C. State Board of Education, will deliver an address on Wednesday, the final day of School Week.

President Friday said "The University is most fortunate in having this new facility for it will enable us to move to yet greater quality in our educational program."

Chancellor Aycock added that the dedication of the addition to Peabody Hall "is a significant event in the life of the University. This new facility will make it possible to serve the public schools more and more effectively as time passes."

UNC Spanish students who are being trained to teach that language in secondary schools have prepared a TV kinescope for transmission to Escuela Normal Superior of Mexico City.

The program is entirely in Spanish and will be telecast over a TV station in Mexico.

The telecast is part of the interinstitutional affiliation program between Escuela Normal Superior and the School of Education which provided for exchange of ideas and instructional materials relating to education.

Twenty such affiliations have been arranged by the U. S. Information Agency in cooperation with the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education as a means of increasing international understanding and good will.

UNC was awarded a grant of $1,000 to finance the project.

"More progress has been made in the UNC affiliation than in any other," said Arnold Perry, Dean of the School of Education.

The project has been under way for two years. Previous exchanges have included books, magazines, a photographic display, 1,000 copies of the Daily Tar Heel in Spanish and a series of color slides of the University of North Carolina with a synchronized recording in Spanish describing UNC activities.

In May UNC sent a collection of art work done by pupils in Chapel Hill schools in grades one through twelve. The shipment included 24 pieces of work done in water colors and crayon. Two works were sent from each grade. The drawings will be put on exhibit at Escuela Normal Superior.

UNC receives periodically copies of Escuela Normal Superior's "Revista," in Spanish, and their "English Tidings" with stories of their work and accounts of the affiliation.

UNC has also received numerous letters and bulletins describing operations at Escuela Normal Superior.

Students at Escuela Normal Superior are now making a series of slides on Education in Mexico for transmission to UNC.

Escuela Normal Superior is a branch of the University of Mexico and is located inside Mexico City. Their regular session run from February through November and about 1,000 students are enrolled. An intensive winter session runs during December and January.

The subject program at Escuela Normal Superior is highly concentrated in the student's teaching field.

"The project has been the means of providing excellent opportunities for UNC students who plan to teach Spanish to learn more about the Spanish language and the Latin-American culture," Dean Perry said.

These two years have stimulated interest in Mexico for an exchange of students.

"These activities are building good will and international understanding," Perry said.

New Alumni Heads Are Installed

New officers of the University of North Carolina Alumni Association, announced for the first time Monday, were installed at the Commencement Alumni Luncheon attended by some 400 returning alumni.

H. Dail Holderness of Tarboro, class of 1931, took over as president for the coming year. Dr. James E. Davis of Durham, class of '40, was elected first vice-president. He will succeed Holderness and serve as president in 1961-62.

Legislature Meets This Afternoon

The first legislative meeting of the summer school Student Government will be held this afternoon at 4:00 in the Student Government office, Graham Memorial.

Summer School President Bob Bingham will convene the Student Government Board. This board, comprised of six students, was appointed by the regular-session student body President David Grigg and was approved by the Student Legislature.

The Board serves a similar function to that of the Student Legislature in regular sessions.

The Board initiates various legislation, appropriates student funds and can approve or disapprove presidential appointments.

One of the first items to come before the board will be the appointment of Davis B. Young as summer Attorney General. The Attorney General is chosen by the summer President from members of the Men's Honor Council.

Bingham said he appointed Young to the post because "Davis has had experience in Student Government and committee work that is needed to make this job a success."

The appointment of an assistant Attorney General for coeds has not been made yet.

Dave Jones was appointed Presidential press secretary by Bingham.

Board members are Rufus Edmiston, Haywood Holderness, Dave Jones, Frank Miller, Frank Payne and Willis Williams.

HEARD ON CAMPUS

One Freshman was overheard saying to another in Y-Court, "Pardon me please, but have you found out where Bingham is yet?"
