STORY LINES:

Thursday

- 11:00-11:30 A.M. YESTERDAY'S WORLDS—NET—"Inca Craftsmen in Metal and Clay." Professor Kraemer discusses with Dudley T. Easby, Jr., secretary to the Metropolitan, and Junius Bird, anthropologist at the American Museum of Natural History, the political organization of the ancient Incas in Peru in relation to the work of their craftsmen in pottery and gold. Seen also on Friday at 9:00 P.M.
- 11:30-12:00 A.M. TWO CENTURIES OF SYMPHONY—NET—"Aaron Copland." Professor Woodworth discusses the Third Symphony of Aaron Copland. He connects his activities as an educator and writer with his desire to communicate verbally as well as musically the great mass of humanity. He points out that in the diversity of styles used in Copland's compositions can be found a reconciliation of the conflict between the national and universal.
- 8:00-8:30 P.M. SPOTLIGHT ON OPERA—NET—"French Opera." Dr. Popper presents opera for the layman tonight with a discussion of the works of the great French composers, employing vocal illustrations of operatic arias.
- 6:45-7:00 P.M. SERENADE. Naomi Blake, coloratura soprano, presents her guests, the Pullen Memorial Choir.
- 8:30-9:00 P.M. RESOURCES & NATIONAL SECURITY—NET—Col. George F. Conner, of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, exposes the false arguments of classic and modern communism.

Air Conditioning Gift To Cool UNC Institute Of Government

The Knapp Foundation, Inc., of New York City has given $50,000 to UNC to be used in air-conditioning the Joseph Palmer Knapp Building here which houses the Institute of Government.

C. E. Stouch of New York, president of the Knapp Foundation and W. D. Carmichael Jr., vice president of the University jointly announced the gift.

The Knapp Foundation gave $500,000 in 1952 to match an equal amount from the state of North Carolina to build the structure named for Joseph P. Knapp, former business executive and publisher of Colliers Weekly, The American Magazine, the Woman's Home Companion and other magazines.

Mr. Knapp died in 1951, and the gift in memory of her husband was made by the widow, Mrs. Margaret Ruth Knapp. Both Mr. and Mrs. Knapp donated generously to educational and cultural projects in North Carolina, including programs in Currituck County where they maintained a home, the Institute of Fisheries Research at Morehead City, and the University at Chapel Hill.

Mrs. Knapp gave furnishings and panelling to establish the Knapp Room in the Ackland Art Center at Chapel Hill; the room includes the collection of antique furniture, objects d'art, rugs, draperies and other furnishings from the New York River House apartments of Mrs. Knapp. The panelling is 200 years old. Mrs. Knapp died in 1958.

The Knapp Building here was completed in 1957. The Institute of Government of which Professor Albert Coates is director is an agency of the University which carries on instructional training and research projects in local government, as well as in other facets of state government.

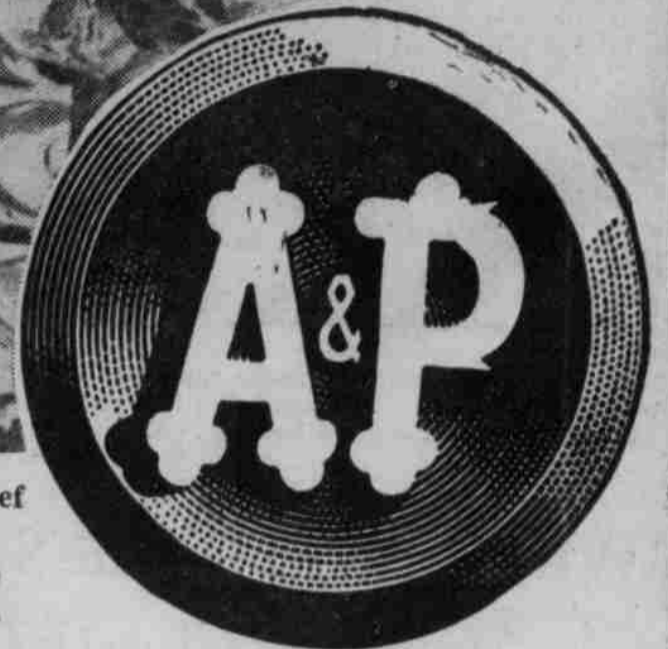

The Institute of Government undertakes to "bridge the gap" between the way government is taught in the classrooms of law schools and in political science and in the way it is actually practiced in city halls, in county court houses and in state government bureaus and offices.

Those who attend Institute workshops, conferences, institutes and courses include judges, county commissioners, registrars of deeds, clerks of court, highway patrolmen, planning officials, sheriffs, police and other officers of city, county and state government.

Air-conditioning the Knapp Building will further enhance the usefulness of the Institute of Government's efforts 12 months in the year.
