PETITE MUSICALE FEATURES CHOPIN TONIGHT IN HILL

Dr. Charles G. Vardell, Dean Of Music At Flora Macdonald, To Give Performance

A rich musical background and many years in the field of music education are vital aspects in the life of the artist presenting a Chopin program tonight at 8 in Hill Hall.

Dr. Charles G. Vardell, dean of the Conservatory of Music at Flora Macdonald College, is brought here under the sponsorship of Les Petites Musicales.

Dr. Vardell held the position of university organist at Princeton University for three years, where he was graduated in 1914.

Continues Education
He continued his music education at the Institute of Musical Art of New York City, now Juilliard School of Music, where he was graduated in 1915, taking the postgraduate artists' and teacher's diplomas in 1916.

He taught for one year in the Hotchkiss School, resigning from this position to enter YMCA war work.

From 1919 to 1923, he was from 1929 to 1951 he was Dean of the School of Music there.

Teaches Piano
During that time, he was employed in teaching piano, organ, composition, orchestration, and served as organist and choir master in various churches in Winston-Salem.

During the years 1938 to 1940, he completed work for his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Rochester. He is an associate of the American Guild of Organists, and among the offices he has held are President of the North Carolina State Music Teachers' Association and Vice President of the Southern District of the National Association of Schools of Music.

For his earlier compositions, a sonata for violin and piano, and a suite, "From a Mountain Walk," Vardell took prizes in the state competition for the Shirley Cup.

Among his published compositions are "The Inimitable Lovers" and "Joe Steps Out," which have been performed by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, the Rochester Symphony Orchestra, the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, the NBC Symphony Orchestra and the Memphis Symphony Orchestra.

Wesleys Give e. e. cummings Play Tonight

"Santa Claus," a morality play by E. E. Cummings, will be presented by the Wesley Foundation at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in Gerrard Hall.

This verse drama, the first in a series of drama projects, deals with a Santa Claus who wants to give to a world that does not want to receive; and with Death who wishes to take and cannot find anyone who is ready to give.

Besides contrasting knowledge and understanding, the play tends to show how people have lost their individuality.

Wesley members in the lead roles are: David Goode, Santa Claus; David Brooks, Death; and Nancy Compton, Woman.

There is no admission charge for this performance, and the public is cordially invited.

Henpecked King

Edward Everett Horton plays the henpecked, rump-pinching, mute King in the Broadway touring company of "Once Upon a Mattress" shown in Memorial Hall Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. Comedienne Imogene Coca and her husband, King Donovan, also star in the musical comedy hit.

Broadway Hit Opens Wednesday Evening

"Once Upon a Mattress," the Broadway musical comedy hit with Imogene Coca, Edward Everett Horton and King Donovan in leading roles, opens Wednesday night at 8:30 in Memorial Hall for a one-night stand.

Boasting a cast of over 50 singers, actors and dancers, the highly-acclaimed musical spoof is a whimsical retelling of the Hans Christian Andersen fairy tale, "The Princess and the Pea."

Miss Coca plays the part of the charming moat-swimming, Indian-wrestling Princess Winnifred of the Swamplands in the musical. Horton appears as the henpecked King, and Donovan portrays Prince Dauntless the Drab. Donovan and Miss Coca recently married.

Meets With Acclaim
Coming to Chapel Hill from a highly successful Broadway run, "Once Upon a Mattress" has met with the enthusiastic acclaim of both audiences and critics.

Time Magazine says, "'Once Upon a Mattress' is a delightful streak of playgoing luck—a fanciful inside fairy story, a feather-light blend of innocent merriment and sophisticated bounce!"

John McClain of the Journal American called "Once Upon a Mattress" a "sprightly musical, stylish and fresh, endearing and funny."

The henpecked, rump-pinching, mute King, played by Edward Everett Horton, provides a high point of hilarity when he tries to explain to his son in sign language all about the birds and the bees. Then Miss Coca goes into an explanation of why her name should be "Fred" instead of "Winnifred" in a romping, stomping musical comedy number.

Fumbles Costly To Carolina Penalties Also Prove Harmful

Maryland Comes From Behind; Elusive Pigskin Mars Near Victory For Heels

By DAVIS B. YOUNG

In a game marked by fumbles, penalties, questionable calls and a stubborn puppy, the University of Maryland yesterday eked out a tight 22-19 verdict over Carolina before 26,000 Dad's Day fans in Kenan Stadium.

As the statistics show, UNC ran the Terps right off the field in every department but the scoreboard.

For 58 minutes, Carolina was a vastly superior football squad. But the last two were the straw that broke the team's back.

Lofts Aerial
Maryland quarterback Dale Betty stepped back on the Carolina 23 and loften an off-the-mark aerial in the direction of the end zone.

The player for which the toss was intended collided with UNC defender Milam Wall, and Field Judge Sidney Hughes called interference against the home folks.

Maryland was awarded a first down on the one-yard marker. Four plays later, Betty passed to his fine end—Gary Collins—for the winning score.

The two-point conversion made little difference, the damage had been done.

Too Late
With but 1:05 left on the clock, it was too late.

The Tar Heels' last effort sputtered soon after the ensuing kickoff via an interception.

In first downs, Carolina led 21-10. In rushing yardage, Carolina led 259-90.

In passing yardage, Carolina led 159-94. In scoring, Maryland led, 22-19.

For UNC there was consolation in the brilliant performances of a quartet of backs and several outstanding linemen.

Farris Scores

Ray Farris scored the first two touchdowns on one-yard sneaks, and generally played one of the finest games of any quarterback seen here in a long time.

He hit on 13 of 21 passes for 159 yards, and punted four times for a fine 40.8 average.

Halfbacks Moyer Smith and Gib Carson ran as well as halfbacks ever can. Smith provided a home run type play with an explosive 26-yard burst up the middle and over enemy tacklers for the third Tar Heel tally.

For the afternoon, he collected 91 yards on 13 rushing attempts. Carson too had a fine day with 66 yards on 12 carries as did fullback Joe Davies with 56 yards on 10 efforts.

In the line, Rip Hawkins, John Schroeder and John Stunda led a hard-hitting aggregation that gave its all on each play.

For Maryland, aside from the Betty to Collins winning play, third string left halfback Dennis Condie provided most of the excitement.

The 155-pound speed merchant from Madison, Pa., brought distress to the partisan gathering with a 90-yard return of a kickoff at the 10:24 mark in the third quarter.

Smith had just scored for Carolina, and the Hickeymead were on the long end of a nice (Continued on page 3)

Underworld Of Chicago On Tonight

"Underworld," directed by Josef von Sternberg for Paramount during the heyday of Chicago gangsterdom, will be the first in a series of ten masterpieces of the cinema to be shown to the membership of the UNC-Chapel Hill Film Society.

The picture was originally scheduled for showing by the film society on December 6. It replaces "The Joyless Street," starring Greta Garbo and directed by G. W. Pabst, now postponed to March 27 because of booking conflict in the Museum of Modern Art Film Library, New York City.

Not Popular
Crime pictures had not been popular with American audiences when "Underworld" was made in 1927 although gangster mobs were riding high in major U.S. cities.

The picture, from an original story by Chicago newspaperman Ben Hecht, created a sensation and set the fashion for pictures of this type for several years to come. Featured in its cast were George Bancroft, Clive Brook and Evelyn Brent.
