Glee Club Performs At Four Schools

The vaudeville skit "Way Up in North Carolina" was featured in the UNC Men's Glee Club program this past week at four North Carolina schools. The club played at Rocky Mount Jr. High School, Chowan College, Murfreesboro, Oxford Orphanage and Elkin High School.

Dr. Joel Carter, director of the Glee Club and professor of music here, said they were "well received."

The singing group was particularly impressed by the attitude of the orphanage children. Dr. Carter said, "As in the past years when the glee club visited the orphanage, the men were impressed by the friendliness and wonderful manners of the children."

ON HENRY LODGE PROPOSAL: Di Phi Debate Tonight

A Constitutional amendment introduced into the U.S. Senate several years ago by Henry Cabot Lodge providing for proportional division of electors according to the popular vote will be debated by the Di-Phi Society tonight at 8 in New West.

A resolution advocating adopting the amendment which passed the Senate but later failed in the House of Representatives is being sponsored by Di-Phi Representative Stan Black through the society's Ways and Means Committee.

Among other provisions, the proposal by Black would abolish the Electoral College as it now operates on the basis of a popular plurality in each state. The public is invited to the debate.

Winter Issue Of Quarterly Goes To Press

The Winter Issue of the Carolina Quarterly went to the printers last Saturday, in preparation for the appearance of the issue in the first week of December.

Richard Rickert, editor of the Quarterly, emphasized that "the authors for this issue have been selected largely from writers associated with the University. These are accompanied by stories and poems from some of the better young writers around the nation."
