

Concert Series To Feature Porgy & Bess' Singer At 8

Students Admitted Free In Balcony For Performance

Adele Addison, "one of America's proudest vocal products," will appear at 8 tonight in Memorial Hall under the sponsorship of the Chapel Hill Concert Series.

Students will be admitted free to the performance, balcony seats having been provided through an arrangement with the GM Concert Series Committee.

Miss Addison, currently making her first North American tour under the auspices of impresario S. Hurok, is best known to Chapel Hill audiences for her performance as Bess on the sound track of the motion picture version of Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess."

Scores Successes

However, the American-born soprano has scored successes in recitals and operatic appearances throughout the nation.

She has appeared with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, under the baton of Leonard Bernstein, and is a leading member of the New York City Center Opera Company.

N. Y. Times critic Howard Taubman termed Miss Addison "an artist of distinction" after her reception at Town Hall. "Her recital had high purpose and impressive achievement," he wrote, "and she is a singer of refinement and sensibility."

Receives Acclaim

Throughout the nation the lyric soprano has received acclaim, ranging from "transcendent singing" to "as magnificent a recital as one can ever hope to hear!"

Last October Miss Addison premiered Lukas Foss' "Time Cycle," a work commissioned for her by the Ford Foundation.

Appearing with the N.Y. Philharmonic, Miss Addison received raves for her performance, although the music itself met with mixed reviews.

The Times noted that "vocal and musical difficulties that would cause most sopranos to faint at the sight of them merely inspired her to extraordinary lyric expression."

Tickets Now Available For January 'Traviata'

Ticket sales open today for the UNC production of Verdi's masterpiece, "La Traviata," starring Phyllis Curtin, leading soprano of the New York City Center Opera Company.

Tickets, $2 for center orchestra seats and $1 for the remaining seats, are available at Hill Hall. The opera will be presented January 14 and 15.

"La Traviata" will be staged in Memorial Hall by the UNC Chorus and Orchestra under the direction of Dr. Wilton Mason.

First lady of the New York City Opera Company, Phyllis Curtin's performances have been hailed since her debut in 1954. Miss Curtin blazed her way into headlines with brilliant successes in "Salome," "Tales of Hoffman," "Troilus and Cressida" and, last year, in the title role for the premiere of Carlisle Floyd's "Susannah."

Repeats Role

When she repeated "Susannah" this season, The New York Times reported: "She was superb . . . she does what is so rarely done in any theatre, com-

Orientation Interviews Start Today

Interviews for Orientation Chairman will be held today and tomorrow 2-4 p.m. in the Student Government Office, GM.

"The appointment of the Orientation Chairman is probably the most important one I will make this year," said David Grigg, student body president. "I want to encourage all interested students to try for the chairmanship. The job is a very important one and entails a great deal of responsibility."

The President hopes to announce the appointment next week so that the chairman can select the Women's Orientation Chairman by the Christmas holidays. The new chairman will work with this year's chairman, Jack Mitchell, and the Orientation Committee on the Orientation program for second semester.

The early appointment this year will give the new chairman more time to organize his program for next fall. He will also benefit by the assistance from this year's committee and chairman.

Mitchell and R. V. Fulk, orientation committeeman, will assist Grigg in his interviews.

FEDERAL COURT STRIKES DOWN LEGAL HOPES IN NEW ORLEANS FOR ENRAGED SEGREGATIONISTS

NEW ORLEANS COP WARNS PICKETERS—Mrs. James Gabriel and her daughter, left, had help from a New Orleans policeman against pickets as they attempted to leave integrated William Frantz school Tuesday. ## Judges Throw Out 22 State Measures

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—A Federal court knocked the props from under the state's segregation fight Wednesday, but shrieking housewives menaced a minister and a meter reader's wife who won't take their white daughters out of an integrated school.

A three-judge Federal Court struck away one of the last legal hopes of segregationists after two elementary schools opened on an integrated basis for the eighth day.

It ruled unconstitutional the theory of interposition—which means a state need not necessarily obey the Supreme Court—and threw out 17 state segregation laws and five resolutions.

Denies Motion

It also denied a school board motion to end integration and enjoined practically every official in Louisiana from interfering with integration.

Word of the ruling only served to further infuriate "the cheerleaders," as police call the nucleus of about 40 women who are trying to enforce a white student boycott at the two elementary schools.

They succeeded at McDonogh 19, where three Negro girls are attending first grade classes alone. But at William Frantz school, two little white girls continued to attend Wednesday with one Negro girl.

Turn Wrath

The women have turned their wrath from the Negro girls to the white girls and their parents, the Rev. Andrew Foreman and Mrs. James Gabrielle.

They jeered the Rev. Foreman, a Methodist minister, when he brought 5-year-old Pamela Lynn to her kindergarten class Wednesday.

Folklorists Meet Friday

Scenes from a contemporary ballet, "The Legend of Happy Valley: A Tom Dooley Ballet," starring North Carolina Civic Ballet members, will highlight the program of the North Carolina Folklore Society meeting tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m.

The program will also feature an Appalachian folksinger and a leading Negro folklorist of America presenting "North Carolina Negro Oral Narratives," in the Virginia Dare Ballroom of the Sir Walter Hotel in Raleigh.

The general public is invited to attend the meeting.

Harry Davis In New York

Harry E. Davis, director of the University of North Carolina's Carolina Playmakers, was among the group of dramatic directors who honored Brooks Atkinson, retired New York Times drama critic, in a meeting just concluded in New York City.

At the meeting of the National Theater Conference, Mr. Davis and other members of the Conference presented Mr. Atkinson with the National Theater Conference Award.

The theme of the 1960 Conference was "Problems of the Critic in the American Theater."

GM Sets Tree Party Friday

The Carolina Gentlemen, free refreshments and free dancing will highlight the annual GM Christmas Decorating Party, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday in the GM Main Lounge.

The building will receive its Christmas attire—including three trees—as students participate in the traditional trimming festival.

Free juke box music will be available for dancing in the Rendezvous Room, and the popular singing quartet will offer Christmas music and other favorites throughout the evening.

Virginians To Give Play Here Saturday

BY BLAKE GREEN

Actors from all walks of life will travel over 300 miles on Saturday to present Margaret Collin's new play, "The Positive Hour."

Having been met with enthusiastic response in Virginia, the Oak Grove Players of Staunton, Va., bring this production to the campus as an example of the smaller theater which encourages new actors and playwrights to develop their talents.

"The Positive Hour" will be presented at 8 p.m. Saturday in the GM Main Lounge. Sponsored by the GMAB Drama Committee, admission will be free.

For eight years the "Oak Grove" has combined the tried and the true favorites, popular choice, the more difficult and lesser known plays and the new plays into its bill-of-fare.

Start On Shoestring

Starting out on a shoestring in 1954, the group has ploughed back its profits into new equipment for its novel summer outdoor theater—the only one of its kind in Virginia's Shenandoah Valley.

Additional profits from the summer season are used to finance "The Positive Hour" and similar winter "on-the-road" productions of the group.

Heartily asserting that it is not "summer stock," the theater has no paid personnel. It seeks to develop its group in all facets of theater life and works on the principle that today's

Poetic Play Stars Tom, Dick, Harry

AS POLLY GARTER (Lyla-Gaye Van Valkenburgh) sings of her three strongmen, Tom, Dick and Harry, Dorothy Silver does an interpretive dance in the Carolina Playmakers production of Dylan Thomas' poetic mood play, "Under Milk

Wood," which opened last night in the Playmakers Theatre. Tickets are still available for tonight's performance. Standing room only in the Playmakers Theatre means sitting on the carpeted risers. All seats are reserved at $1.50

Carolina Sends 18 To NSA Meeting

Eighteen Carolina students will represent the University at the Fall Regional Conference of the Carolinas-Virginia Region of the National Student Association, scheduled for Randolph-Macon College, Friday through Sunday.

Wayne King, Pete Thompson, Tony Harrington, Pat Morgan, Swag Grimsley and Ann Maxwell have been selected as official delegates to the conference.

Alternate delegates to the three-day meeting will be Margaret Ann Rhymes, Jane Smith, Bill Straughn, Mima Bruce, Jim Scott and Dale Hermann.

Hank Patterson, campus coordinator of the NSA program, will also attend the confab in his position as Regional International Affairs Vice-President.

Sjam Wongsorasono, an exchange student from Indonesia, will attend as a participant in the NSA Foreign Student Leadership Project.

Several UNC students will play prominent parts in the program of the meeting. Rashid Benouameur, graduate student in comparative linguistics, will deliver a major address on the effects of the Algerian War on the North African student.

He is the president of the United States Wing of the National Union of Students of Algeria (in exile).

Graduate student Hans Frankfort, a past president of the Cosmopolitan Club, will conduct a workshop on foreign student programming.

Kay Slaughter, a chairman of the YM-YWCA U.N. Committee will lead a discussion group on "Campus International Awareness and Welfare Programs."

Jim Scott, chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee, will conduct a workshop on "Student Government and Academic Programming." Jim Kweder, graduate student in political science and a past vice-president of the NSA, will lead a session on "Advantages of NSA Membership."

MOLYBDENUM DEPOSIT

A new ore deposit of the space age metal molybdenum said to be potentially the second largest such mine in the world has been discovered near Taos, N. M., the Molybdenum Corp. of America announced. The company said the reserves total 260 million tons of ore or an estimated 760 million pounds of the metal.
