Di-Phi's Consider:

Erase Santa Claus To Surpass Reds?

Is Christmas economically unsound? Should the U. S. abolish the Yule-tide season in order to stay ahead of Russia? This is the question that the representatives of the Di-Phi will consider at 8 tonight. The meeting will be on third floor, New West.

The resolution for the abolition of Christmas reads as follows:

Whereas: The United States must exert all of its economic muscle in order to continue to out-perform the Russian economy in the race for world supremacy, and

Whereas: The waste and excess capacity inherent in our way of celebrating Christmas, i.e. cards, trees, decorations, and presents, cannot be tolerated if we are to survive, and

Whereas: Abolition of Christmas, by allowing us to increase other forms of more desirable consumption, will enable the United States to enjoy a higher standard of living, and

Whereas: Humanitarian interests (turkiss) demand abolition, and

Whereas: By eliminating frivolous vacations, abolition of Christmas will enable students to spend more time studying, and

Whereas: What was once a Christmas holiday has now become so paganzed and commercialized as to be unrecognizable, Now therefore be it resolved by the Dialectic and Philanthropic Society that:

Article I: Christmas should be abolished.

Article II: A copy of this shall be sent to Santa Claus.

A few diehard sentimentalists are expected to put up quite a struggle for the preservation of Christmas.

The Di-Phi welcomes visitors, and, incidentally, wishes the student body a very Merry Christmas.

IFC Delegates Reminded Of Group Responsibilities

By JIM NOYES

Molding character and integrity in members is the primary responsibility of fraternities, IFC President Pete Austin and official delegate Bill Sullivan learned at the National Interfraternity Conference staged at the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles, recently.

The two UNC students who represented UNC's 24 fraternities met with fraternity leaders, college deans, presidents from all over the U.S. in the three-day round of workshops, speeches and meetings.

The two were received in Los Angeles by screen-TV star Jane Mansfield.

Workshops on "Rush," "Scholarship," "Publications," and "Pledge Training" dominated the schedules of the students. Speakers including Rudy Vallee who acted as toastmaster at a banquet, and Senator Barry Goldwater, who delivered a talk, added to the tight schedule.

Austin and Sullivan found time, however, to tour Disneyland, Beverly Hills and Hollywood, before returning here.

Reflecting on the trip, Austin, a senior from Chattanooga, said that they were constantly reminded of the IFC's responsibility to "instill in each individual fraternity the fact that it must mold character and integrity in its members and in its overall attitude."

This theme dominated all the major functions of the meet, according to Austin, including talks by Pete Nowell, U.S. basketball coach at the Rome Olympics, and others of equal distinction.

UNC Voices Will Herald Christmas

Tar Heel voices will herald the approaching Christmas holidays Thursday at 8 p.m. when the campus goes caroling, led by the Men's Glee Club.

The Grail-GM sponsored caroling party will leave from Y Court spreading Christmas spirit as it stops at the women's dorms, President Friday's home, fraternity court and the Pharmacy Building.

The carolers will return to Graham Memorial about 9:15 for refreshments.

Hopeful students are eagerly waiting for the snow flakes that will turn the campus into a winter wonderland for the festive occasion.

FOR SWIMMERS ONLY

SHREWSBURY, England (UPI)—Floodwaters of the River Severn have put several front rows of a movie theater here under water, but the show went on.

A sign outside the theater Monday said: "Non-swimmers can not be admitted in the 30 cent seats."

CANNY LAD

EDINBURGH, Scotland (UPI)—A canny lad who works for a milk company admitted in juvenile court Wednesday that he stole and drank 21 pints of milk.

But the boy stressed that the milk came from a rival company.

On The Campus

Mayor E. J. Evans of Durham will be the speaker at the regular Faculty Club luncheon today at 1 p.m. in the Carolina Inn. Mayor Evans will speak on his recent trip to Russia.

William F. Little, assistant professor of chemistry, will address the Elisha Mitchell Society tonight at 7:30 in Phillips on "Organometallic Sandwich Compounds." Isaac M. Taylor, associate professor of medicine, is also scheduled to speak.

The Society is composed of faculty members and graduate students interested in science. The group meets monthly for presentation and discussion of research papers.

The Christian Science College Organization will meet this afternoon at 4 in GM.

The Y Entertainment Committee will meet briefly in Y Court today at noon.

The Stray Greeks will meet tomorrow at 5:45 p.m. in GM. A supper meeting will be held at The Pines.

There will not be a meeting of the Campus Affairs Board this afternoon.

County chairmen of the Committee on State Affairs have been urged to attend an important conference either Wednesday or Thursday at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker III of Graham Memorial Student Union. Chairmen may attend either meeting, according to committee officials.

Infirmary

Students confined to the drabness of the infirmary during the pre-season festivities yesterday were: Carol Kolakowski, Marion Parrott, Charles Biggerstaff, Craig Moore, Blair Plunkett, Milton Garrison, Amos Bullard, James Pell, Don Whisnant, Kenneth Goodnight, William Cook, Graham Boyd, Alan Rubin, Dieter Mahneke, Ian Morgan Hopper, Peter Rose, Myra Kinlaw, Judith Johnston, Sally All, Vincent Thomas, Jack Shaffer and John Alexander.

WHEN SNOW COMES to Chapel Hill, there is bound to be snow fun. Susan Lewis throws the first UNC snowball of the season. Only a small portion of the Hill was covered in the white stuff—one car which had just come down from Virginia bearing enough snow for several snowballs. (Photo by Ira Blaustein)

RUSK IS SECRETARY OF STATE; STEVENSON ACCEPTS UN POST; BOWLES GIVEN APPOINTMENT

ADLAI STEVENSON
... UN Ambassador

DEAN RUSK
... Sec. of State

Next Sec. Of State:

Soldier & Statesman

By United Press International

Dean Rusk, a soft-spoken giant named today as the next secretary of state, is a noted scholar who has served his country as a statesman and a soldier.

A hard-driving worker with a fast mind, Rusk has been president of the Rockefeller Foundation in New York since 1952. Prior to that he served with the U.S. State Department for six years in several positions.

He was born David Dean Rusk, Feb. 9, 1909, in Cherokee County, Ga., one of five children of Robert Hugh and Frances Clotfelter Rusk.

Rusk dropped the David during the early years of his life in Atlanta, "for no special reason." On graduation in 1925 from the Boys High School in Atlanta, where he was a member of the junior ROTC, Rusk enrolled at Davidson College in North Carolina.

He won membership in the Phi Beta Kappa honor scholastic fraternity, and received his B.A. degree in 1931.

Rusk worked his way through college as a bookkeeper and bank teller.

He concentrated his studies on government, economics and international law.

Rusk won a Rhodes scholarship and continued his studies at St. John's College, Oxford University. He received his M.S. degree in 1933 and an M.A. the following year at the University of Berlin, where he saw firsthand the rise of Adolf Hitler.

In 1934 Rusk became an associate professor of government

Rockefeller Foundation Head Is 'Best Man,' Says Kennedy

APPOINTEE LAUDS ADLAI

Fifth Cabinet Appointment To Be Revealed Wednesday

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—President-elect John F. Kennedy today announced the appointment of Dean Rusk as secretary of state and said Adlai E. Stevenson had accepted appointment as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

The president-elect also announced the selection of Rep. Chester Bowles (D-Conn.), as undersecretary of state.

Rusk, 51-year-old native of Cherokee County, Ga., is now president of the Rockefeller Foundation and served during the Truman administration as assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs.

Stevenson, former governor of Illinois, was the Democratic presidential candidate in 1952 and 1956. Bowles is a former ambassador to India.

Kennedy announced his long-awaited selection of a secretary of state in a tropical patio of his ocean-front villa here. Rusk was at his side, having arrived here Sunday night.

Before the appointments were made public both Kennedy and Rusk conferred by telephone with Stevenson, who was offered the U.N. post last week but deferred acceptance until he knew the identity of the secretary of state.

Kennedy was high in his praise of the three appointees and spoke briefly of his hopes for American foreign policy.

"My hope in the coming years is that the foreign policy of the United States will be identified in the minds of the people of the world as a policy that is not merely anti-Communist, but is for freedom," he said.

Kennedy, with Rusk in emphatic agreement, said the goals of American foreign policy would be "peace, freedom and the pursuit of a just life."

Best Man For Job The president-elect said he decided on Rusk "after a long and careful study because it seemed to me that he was the best man for the office." Kennedy met Rusk for the first time only last week, but he was deeply familiar with his background.

Rusk was particularly recommended to Kennedy by some of the current key officers of the State Department.

Kennedy said that after he, Rusk and Stevenson conferred by telephone on the relationship between the president, the secretary and the U.N. ambassador, he thought the relationship was satisfactory to all three.

Rusk said he was aware that it was "a compelling and sobering responsibility" which he accepted in the knowledge that "there's an enormous amount of work to be done."

Doesn't Fear Future

The future secretary of state said the world was going through a period of revolutionary change as the people of many other countries sought to determine their own destinies, but that the United States need not be afraid of change.

"Our enormous capacity to act imposes a responsibility... to take a large part in the shaping of events," Rusk said.

World News In Brief

De Gaulle Cuts Algerian Visit Short

ALGIERS, Algeria — President Charles de Gaulle has decided to cut short his Algerian tour that triggered a wave of violence, bloodshed and death and raised the specter of a Moslem "holy war" against Europeans.

At least 65 persons were dead and hundreds wounded, most of them Moslems mowed down by French paratroopers who fired into mobs on a rampage from the Arab quarters of Algiers.

Anti-Castro Leaflets Descend On Cuba

HAVANA—A high-flying airplane showered thousands of anti-Castro leaflets on Havana early Monday calling on Cubans to take "to the hills" and fight to overthrow this island's revolutionary regime.

It was the most brazen defiance of Premier Fidel Castro in weeks and pointed up a growing wave of resistance to the bearded mountain fighter who seized power two years ago.

East Coast Blanketed With Snow

NEW YORK—A blizzard packing winds of 35 miles an hour blanketed the Eastern states with up to 14 inches of snow Monday, disrupting transportation, schools, state offices, and stock exchanges and taking a rising toll of lives.

Violence Breaks Out In Atlanta

ATLANTA—Violence broke the tense calm of peaceful racial demonstrations in Atlanta yesterday.

A dynamite bomb damaged an unoccupied Negro school, shattering windows and partially wrecking two classrooms and the auditorium. There were no clues. The school neighborhood had reported no recent troubles.

Choral, Glee Clubs Slate Free Concert

The Chapel Hill Choral Club and the Men's Glee Club will present a Christmas concert tonight at 8 in Hill Hall.

Admission is free. Dr. Joel Carter is director. The combined sixty voices will sing two major works.

Handel's "O Come Let Us Sing Unto the Lord" will feature soprano soloist Beverly Culbreath, a music teacher in the local public schools. She will be accompanied on the organ by Richard Lee Bostian, a graduate music student.

The second work, Benjamin Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols," will feature three soloists: Beverly Culbreath, Betty Curtis and Inge Rader.

Ashby Cites Forces Of Southern Belief

BY HARVE HARRIS

"The promise of the South is the promise of the Southerner," Dr. Warren Ashby, professor of philosophy at Woman's College, told delegates to a human relations seminar meeting here Sunday.

Ashby cited both impersonal and personal forces as holding promises for the South, although he noted that the Southerner often has a stronger belief in personal forces.

The Southerner will have to make four decisions, the speaker said. The first is to be a Southerner, to be a certain kind of Southerner.

"One of my friends who lives in the North tells me that when he returns to his home in the South, as he crosses that Mason and Dixon line, he can see a sign there saying, 'You are now leaving the land of the free and entering the home of the brave' Ashby said.

"The second decision for the Southerner is to be an American, a fact that the Southerner has often obscured to himself.

Third Decision "The third decision for the Southerner is to be a world citizen.

"The fourth decision, and the most fateful of all," Dr. Ashby said, "is for the Southerner to be a person. When we think of the promises of the South, we think of them not because they are great, but because they are different."

The talk climaxed a two-day seminar which held meetings in Howell Hall. Delegates from 23 North Carolina colleges and universities attended, and Governor Luther Hodges and Adlai Stevenson sent messages of welcome to the conference.

Ashby's talk, which followed a luncheon in Lenoir Hall, was titled "The Promises of a Changing South."
