Tonight, Friday In Playmakers Theatre

Original One-Acts Presented

3 Plays Products Of Dramatic Art Playwriting Course

The fall bill of three original one-acts to be presented tonight and Friday night in the Playmakers Theater will consist of "Oh, the Mysteries of Love!", "Unseen Enemy," and "A Taste of Blarney."

The directors are three feminine graduate students in dramatic art. The plays are products of three students in Playwriting 155 taught by Tom Patterson of the Dramatic Art Department.

"Love might turn out to be a very nice thing," Miranda (Frankie Davis) confides to her timid boyfriend, Harvey (Graham Pollack) in the "absurdly serious" farce, "Oh, the Mysteries of Love!"

Throughout the play the two of them try to find this elusive thing called love.

The author, Bill Corpening, is a senior from Hendersonville majoring in English.

He generally writes in a comical vein because as he says, "I'm too scatterbrained to write serious plays."

Perfect Idiots

Bill points out that the characters in his play take the situation before them very seriously, but actually "they are perfect idiots."

Also by the author is "The Dead Are Quicker" which was popular with the audience when it was given in the Bill of One-Acts last spring and "A Bit of Privacy."

Anne Fitzgibbon is the director. Others in the cast are: Susan Myers, Vi Galvin, Jack Hargett, and Jerry Walker.

"Unseen Enemy"

The next play in the order of presentation will be "Unseen Enemy" by Oliver Bloomer and is under the direction of Edith Jacobs.

It is the story of a young soldier in Korea who is given tough lessons with the theme of "hate your enemy."

Those included in the cast are: Frank McDonald, Frank Beaver, Allen Joseph, and Jerry Walker.

ONE-ACT PLAYS by the three playwrights above will be presented as the 193rd series of student production of new plays in the Playmakers Theatre tonight, and Friday at 7:30 p.m. (L. to R.) Frank Murphy author of "The Taste of Blarney," Bill Corpening author of "Oh, the Mysteries of Love!" and Oliver Bloomer author of "Unseen Enemy." There is no admission charge.

"A Taste of Blarney" is an Irish comedy in which Paul Lambe (Larry Steele) and Anna O'Toole (Leilani Thornburg) are able to get married thanks to the trickery used by Maggie Malone (Marilyn Zschau) to get the local Ladies' Temperance League "untemperanced."

It is directed by Shirley Dixon.

Likes Comedy

The author, Frank Murphy, like Bill Corpening likes comedy.

He says his reason is "when I start writing serious plays, I lean toward Tennessee Williams." He calls this play a whimsical farce. Both he and Bill are in honors in writing.

Members of the cast are: Marilyn Zschau, Leilani Thornburg, Joe McCarthy, Susan Myers, Johnnie Sibold, Larry Steele, Suzanne Whitney, Wade Coltrain, and Jimmy Vine as the leprechaun.

Curtain time for the bill of one-acts is 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

FEDERAL SUIT BROUGHT IN ALLEGED REPRISALS AGAINST NEGRO VOTERS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The federal government filed suit Wednesday to halt alleged economic reprisals against 400 Fayette County, Tenn., Negroes who voted or had relations that voted in the November election.

The suit was filed in Federal District Court here. Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers announced the action in Washington.

The complaint named some 82 defendants, including more than 45 land owners, some two dozen merchants and one bank. It accused them of intimidation, coercion and economic discrimination against Negroes who registered and voted.

The Justice Department said the Negroes involved face eviction Jan. 1 from farms in Fayette County although some of the families have lived on the same land for as long as 25 years.

The government asked for a temporary injunction to halt the evictions and a permanent injunction barring eviction and other economic reprisals.

Third Suit

The suit was the third filed in Tennessee under the 1957 Civil Rights Act. The other two involve eviction notices against some 300 Negroes in Haywood County.

The new complaint was filed by John Doar, first assistant to the chief of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division. The department said Fayette County landowners waited until 1960 crops had been harvested before ordering Negro tenant farmers to get out.

The suit charged the reprisals started in the summer of 1959, when Fayette County Negroes launched a concerted effort to register to vote. It said about 1,400 qualified Negroes were added to the county's voting rolls since last May.

Complaint Alleged

The complaint alleged that attempts to intimidate and coerce Negro registrants and potential registrants included:

—Termination of jobs and leases or sharecropper arrangements.

—Refusal to sell them goods for cash or credit.

—Refusal to lend them money or to renew various types of insurance policies.

—Refusal to deal with merchants suspected of sympathizing with Negro voting.

—Inducing suppliers of Negro merchants not to furnish them goods and services.

—Circulating lists of Negro registrants in an effort to penalize them economically.

Budget Controversy Moves To Finish; Dean Cites Failure To Draw Faculties Commission Meets Officials To Revise Budget Proposals

For the next 30 days the N. C. Advisory Budget Commission will meet with the Budget Bureau officials to revise and complete the narrative of the 1961-63 spending proposal. The commission ended their work on the details Tuesday.

Contents of the budget document will remain a secret until it goes to the Legislature in February. But the commission has announced that it will recommend about $623 million to continue state services at 1959-61 level.

The requests of agencies and institutions to expand old services and provide new ones totaled $150 million. Included in this figure is the $106 million request of the State Board of Education, which is strongly backed by Gov.-elect Terry Sanford.

Considers UNC Budget

The Commission is also considering the 1961-63 Consolidated University budget in which the State Board of Higher Education recently recommended slashes of 67.5 per cent and 76.6 per cent for the two years respectively.

The budget prepared by Gov. Hodges and the commission is a summary of the budget picture and contains official revenue estimates on which the spending schedules are based.

Sanford will give his recommendations in his message to the Assembly. He has been informed on the commission's work and has been assigned the task of recommending new tax revenues if they are needed for increasing revenues to cover education proposal.

Godfrey Urging Students To See State Legislators

Faculty switches to other schools offering more lucrative faculty salaries, lower teaching load, better libraries and research facilities are the consequences UNC will have to face if the budget requests are cut as recommended, says J. L. Godfrey, dean of the faculty.

Godfrey says UNC has never been able to compete with the best eight or 10 colleges such as Harvard, Princeton and Yale in getting faculty members.

If the budget is cut, the University will compete with schools at a lower level including South Carolina and Georgia, he said.

The "B" budget requested only salary increases for faculty members who deserved them due to the work they have been doing here, Godfrey pointed out.

He says the committee offering faculty positions tells him it is "extremely difficult" first to locate capable teachers and then to get them to come to Chapel Hill.

Sometimes the small size of the town works favorably in obtaining faculty desiring small town residence.

What can UNC students do to keep the faculty up to par? Godfrey suggests that they spend some of their Christmas vacation convincing their state legislature representatives of the need for increasing salaries for those who merit it and thereby increasing the budget recommendations.

Godfrey said he was in Atlanta when 1500 UNC students rallied for increased faculty salaries and the student union, so he had no idea what reaction it had on the faculty.

ALGIERS—French police opened fire Wednesday against Moslem crowds yelling rebel slogans in Bone and Algiers. At least two persons were killed to raise the death toll in six days of Algerian rioting to 124.

National Science Foundation Gives $95,000 For UNC Summer Institutes

The National Science Foundation has awarded grants to the University totaling $95,000 for two six-week science institutes to be held at UNC during the summer of 1961.

The NSF granted $57,500 to the University for an Institute for College Chemistry Teachers and $38,400 for an Institute in Earth Sciences for junior and high school teachers.

Dr. H. D. Crockford, chairman of the Department of Chemistry, will direct the Institute for College Chemistry Teachers.

About 55 college teachers are expected to participate in the 1961 program, the fourth to be held in Chapel Hill. Last year 56 teachers from 25 states took part in the six weeks Institute.

The Institute for College Chemistry Teachers is designed "to improve the subject matter competence of the participating teachers and to strengthen their capacity to motivate students to consider careers in science." It also tries "to bring the teachers into personal contact with the highly productive scientists who make up the Institute, with a view of stimulating their interests and increasing their professional prestige." The Institute in Earth Sciences will be held on the UNC campus from July 17 to August 26, 1961.

Guilford Pacifists Protest Marine Corps Selection Team

A Marine Corps officer selection team stationed in Raleigh drew a protest this week from four Guilford College students who profess opposition to warfare.

Speaking for the group of pacifist students, Frederick L. Moore, Jr., 19-year-old freshman from Fillmore, Calif., said the Marines were recruiting students to become "machines of destruction."

Moore said that the aim of his group is to present "Christian pacifism" to students before they joined any branch of the armed forces.

Protest Limited

The protest was limited to the distribution of pacifist literature to students in the college union.
