

Two Personal Assistants

Hodges Will Take Staff To Capital

BY DOC DICKINSON (Special to the Tar Heel)

Gov. Luther H. Hodges has announced he would take two of his personal staff to Washington when he takes over as Secretary of Commerce.

Robert Giles, presently administration assistant, and Mrs. Margaret Birrell, Hodges' personal secretary, will be on the governor's new staff.

Giles will serve as general counsel for the Commerce Department and Mrs. Birrell will continue as Hodges' personal secretary.

Paul Johnston, former administrative assistant and first chief of the Department of Administration, was earlier announced by the governor to serve as liaison officer and general troubleshooter for the Commerce Department.

Veteran Worker

A veteran of government work, Mrs. Birrell has worked for Hodges' staff since 1955. She will work in the outer office of the giant Commerce Building in Washington.

Giles, 36, a Carolina graduate and former assistant attorney general, will be assistant to the chief attorney of the Commerce Department.

His chief duties will be preparing legal details for Commerce policy lines and proposed legislation. Presently he is making about $11,000. His new post will pay approximately $17,000.

PLAYMAKERS PARTY SET FOR FRIDAY

The Carolina Playmakers will hold its semi-annual Fall Semester party on Friday at 8:00 p.m. at Turnages Barbeque Place on Moreene Dairy Road.

Harry E. Davis, Director of the Playmakers staff, extends on behalf of the Playmakers staff, an invitation to attend to all persons who have been connected with past Playmaker productions.

Tickets are now on sale at the Playmakers Business Office, 214 Abernethy Hall, at $2.00 per person.

struggle in Spain of 1936.

Laos and Cuba are merely the present fronts for the Russo-America cold war combat. In commenting on the question first year law student Joe Ferrell remarked.

Ferrell, a native of Elizabeth City, describes the chance of "another Korea" as a real danger and adds that keeping the conflict within this limit would be difficult.

Ferrell thinks the Chinese are supporting Vietnam troops in Laos while Joe Karpati, a Hungarian student majoring in science education, suspect Russian backing. Karpati felt the Laos incident is not a threat to world peace unless the communists try to infiltrate Thailand. Then there might be war, he said.

American Aid

Karpati, whose American home is in Pittsburgh, Pa., does not expect Laos to request American military aid.

Viewing the situation in Laos as one which "could go out of control at any time," Dr. Robert A. Rupen held to the theory of Chinese supported troops in Laos.

"Vietnam does what Peiking says, not what Moscow says," Sophomore political science major Walter Dellinger denied the possibility of a major war in the next six months because he doesn't think the Russians are ready for another world war.

Good Chance

He admitted that there is a "good chance for police action of the Korean type either to stop aggression in Laos or to protect American interests in Cuba, especially our naval base."

TWO AT UNC WIN GRANTS IN RESEARCH

Dr. John E. Wilson, UNC associate professor, and William N. Sharpe Jr. have been awarded grants to continue research work at Carolina. Sharpe was one of two university graduate students in the nation to receive a $2,500 research grant under American Machine & Foundry Company's Research and Development division grants-in-aid program.

Given Grant

Dr. Wilson was given a $10,896 grant to study non-dynamic components of mammalian tissues as part of a Public Health Service awards program for basic research in genetics, human embryology and cell biology.

This year the service program awarded 50 grants totaling $809,254.

Sharpe, of Fuquay Springs, was graduated from State College this year with a degree in mechanical engineering. He is now a candidate for an M.S. degree in that field. Under his grant, his project will be concerned with analysis of mechanical transients, specifically, a study of shock waves in anelastic solid media.

Kansas Senior To Perform Recital This Evening

The Department of Music will present James Holmes, a senior from Pittsburg, Kansas, in an organ recital at 8 p.m. tonight in Hill Music Hall.

Holmes will play compositions by Pachelbel, Bach, Buxtehude, Langlais, and Messiaen. He will conclude his program with "Variations sur un vieux Noel" by Marcel Dupre.

In addition to playing the organ, Holmes is a violinist, studying presently with Dr. Edgar Aiden. He studies organ with Dr. Glenn Watkins.

The concerts are free to the public.
