NCAA DECISION ON INVESTIGATION IS DUE TODAY

Players, Fans Hope For Favorable Ruling

By Jonathan Yardley

While Chapel Hill waited in restless anticipation, the National Collegiate Athletic Association postponed until this morning announcement of the results of an inquiry into U.N.C. recruiting practices.

Although the announcement had been expected late yesterday afternoon, neither Chancellor Aycock nor the Raleigh offices of United Press International had been told of the decision. It is expected that the statement will be released at approximately 10:30 a.m.

The investigation, which stems from alleged basketball recruiting violations, has been in progress for more than a year. This was not made public by the potent N.C.A.A. Council until Sunday, however, when UNC Basketball Coach Frank McGuire appeared before the body.

"I Am Innocent"

The council has not made public the exact cause of the investigation, but it is believed that excessive entertaining and gifts to prospective players may be the most important area of inquiry.

Coach McGuire, sleepless but cheerful, told reporters Sunday that "I am innocent, and the school is innocent."

Also in Pittsburgh for the meeting were Chancellor William B. Aycock, Athletic Director Charles P. Erickson and faculty representative O. K. Cornwell. The latter did not attend the meeting, but was reported to have laid any blame for infractions, with the student activities fund organization.

Penalties Are Severe
Past records show that NCAA penalties tend to be rather severe. The most noted example recently has been the University of Kansas, which was deprived of the Big Eight football championship after it had been placed on probation by the council.

No matter how long the period of probation, it refuses the college penalized the right to participate in post-season games or tournaments. If inflicted on U.N.C., it would mean that the basketball team would be unable to compete for the NCAA title even if it won the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament.

Usually the probation period lasts one or two years, with three years being reserved for the most flagrant violations.

All Hope For Best
In Chapel Hill everyone was hoping for the best, and radios saw extra duty as students and townspeople sought to obtain the final results of the council's inquiry. The Daily Tar Heel was besieged with telephone calls.

The investigation has not come as a surprise to local sports fans; suggestions that it may have been in process have appeared in North Carolina newspapers for the past year.

Dr. Fein To Talk On Moral Issues In Eichmann Case

Dr. Rashi Fein, UNC associate professor of economics, will give a talk on the moral issues involved in "The Trial of Adolph Eichmann" on Thursday night in Gerrard Hall at 7:30.

With world interest centering on the trial of the ex-Nazi leader, charged with the death of millions of Jewish victims in infamous concentration camps, to be held early in March in Israel, the program is being sponsored by the YM-YWCA's Public Affairs Committee as a means of presenting the background facts pertinent to the trial.

Public Invited
Students and faculty are invited to hear Dr. Fein and to participate in a question and answer period which is expected to be lively in view of the interest on campus in the trial. Dr. Fein has been associated with the Department of Economics since 1952. He received his Ph.D. from John Hopkins University in 1956. Gil Stallings, a sophomore from Louisburg, N. C., and chairman of the Y's Public Affairs Committee, will introduce Dr. Fein.

World Famous Adventurer Set For Film Lecture At 8 Tonight

World-famous adventurer Sasha Siemel—"The Tiger Man"—will deliver a film-lecture on his exploits in the South American jungles at 8 p.m. tonight in Memorial Hall.

Presented as part of the Graham Memorial Travel-Adventure Series, admission for the program will be 90 cents for non-subscribers.

A special price of 50 cents will be offered to all students in the Chapel Hill City School System. A bold and daring adventurer, Siemel has mastered the difficult and dangerous methods employed by the natives for disposing of tigers and other beasts of prey.

Siemel uses only a spear or a hand-made bow and arrow to hunt these animals. "Tiger Man" is not a publicity name, but a title of respect bestowed upon Siemel by the Brazilians in recognition of his courageous work.

"Tiger Man" is a professional hunter, and is hired by South American ranchers to eliminate marauding tigers.

Started Career
Siemel started his adventure career early; he ran away from home in his native Latvia at the age of 16, worked his way to Brazil by ship and engaged in gold prospecting. Later he began his now legendary hunting career.

Internationally acclaimed as an entertaining and imaginative lecturer, Siemel has been recognized by the National Geographic Society and other organizations for his contributions.

N. Y. Opera Glamour Arriving With Star

The glamour of the New York City Opera will penetrate Chapel Hill Saturday and Sunday evenings when its renowned soprano, Phyllis Curtin, stars in the UNC production of "La Traviata."

The opera, presented under the auspices of the UNC Music Department, will feature the UNC Orchestra and University Chorus under the direction of Dr. Wilton Mason, as well as the New York City Opera prima donna.

Miss Curtin won overnight fame in her debut season at the New York City Opera in 1954 with a performance of "Salome."

From that debut, Phyllis Curtin went on to other leading roles in lyric, dramatic and coloratura soprano repertoire, which were received with equal enthusiasm, no matter where she sang.

Beautiful Woman

Acclaimed "the most beautiful woman on the operatic stage" by European critics after she had starred in the title role of the prize-winning American opera "Susannah" at the Brussels World's Fair, Miss Curtin won raves all over the world for doing what is rarely done in any opera—"combine singing and acting indivisibly."

In the glamorous soprano's repertoire of over 30 different operatic roles, half are in the classical repertoire, including roles from operas by Mozart, Puccini, Verdi and Massenet. The other half are roles from contemporary operas.

Wallace Gives Last Lecture On Politics Thursday

Dr. Earle Wallace, assistant professor of Political Science, will deliver a lecture on "Misconceptions of Politics" Thursday at 8 p.m. in Carroll Hall.

The lecture, sponsored by Student Government, is one of a series being given by lecturers who are requested to present the speech they would choose if they knew it would be the last they could make before dying.

Dr. Wallace's lecture will be directed toward students who will become makers of public policy.

Will Discuss

Misconceptions which Dr. Wallace will discuss include these oft-repeated assertions:

1. "Democracy everywhere comes with a 'made in America' stamp.
2. "Government is a necessary evil and its continued growth must be opposed at every step."
3. "Most of the ills of society are the result of bungling and greed on the part of the politicians."
4. "The non-partisan, independent voter is the salvation of democracy."

By way of defining these misconceptions, Professor Wallace will call upon the resources of all the members of a "new generation," attempting to demonstrate how the problems confronting democracy would go unsolved, if these misconceptions are accepted as true.

Anti-segregationist picketing of the Carolina Theatre will be resumed Wednesday afternoon with the opening of the motion picture "Inherit the Wind."

Leaders of the demonstration to lower racial barriers at the local theatre have announced their intention to picket every major movie booked for the Carolina in the next few weeks. The scene has been quiet since late Saturday night, when "Porgy and Bess" ended a four-day engagement.

The picketing was largely quiet, although two white hecklers were arrested about 9 p.m. Saturday night by local policemen.

Receives Warning

One student, who remained unidentified, received a warning and was released, but the second, Irvin H. Long, a Rockingham sophomore, was charged with disorderly conduct and public drunkenness. A hearing will be held today in Chapel Hill Recorder's Court.

A meeting has been scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday at St. Paul's AME Church in Carrboro to plan for the continuation of the demonstrations.

Persons interested in picketing have been urged to attend this meeting or contact Jerry Greene, 211 Grimes, for more information.

Petition Protests Theatre's Policy

A petition has been received by the DTH protesting against the "racial discrimination policy of the Carolina Theatre. It asks that "all people who are sympathetic to the cause of human equality to join . . . in a program of economic boycott, picketing and peaceful demonstration to erase barriers in Chapel Hill."

Persons interested in the movement may contact Jerry Green at 211 Grimes or Dennis King at 19 Old East for further information.

'Furor' Predicted Over Kennedy Choices

WASHINGTON — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey predicted Monday that there would be "a little furor" over President-elect John F. Kennedy's appointment of Douglas Dillon and Chester Bowles to posts in the incoming Democratic administration.

Humphrey, assistant Senate Democratic leader, forecast Senate confirmation for both. But he and Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., brought into the open the unhappiness some liberal Democrats feel about Kennedy's choice of Dillon, a Republican, as secretary of the treasury.

Brandt Sees New Red Pressures

BERLIN—Mayor Willy Brandt has predicted new Communist pressure against West Berlin but warned the Reds that Western firmness would prevent them from "swallowing" this outpost city.

Brandt's warning, made in a radio speech, coincided with a new demand by the Communists that a summit meeting be held to abolish Western rights in Berlin.

Two Moslems Killed In Algeria

ALGIERS, Algeria—Two Moslems were killed Monday in scattered outbreaks of violence in the aftermath of the three-day referendum which endorsed President Charles de Gaulle's blueprint for peace in Algeria.

Rampaging Moslems, many waving the green and white banner of the rebels who have fought a six-year war for independence, clashed with security forces, looted homes, smashed cars and terrorized Europeans in at least three towns.

DeGaulle Takes Referendum Vote As Go-Ahead For Algerian Peace

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle sped back to Paris from his country estate on Monday with a popular mandate to end the Algerian war and begun a round of conferences aimed at carrying out his peace plan.

De Gaulle arrived from the country village of Colombey-les-deux-Eglises, to which he had threatened to retire if he failed to receive a "massive" vote for his plan in the weekend referendum.

He went immediately into conference with Premier Michel Debre at the Elysee Palace.

A full cabinet meeting was called for Wednesday. Informed sources said in a few weeks, machinery would be set in motion to begin the transition of Algerian areas by governmental charges designed to lead them to semi-independence. De Gaulle took the referendum vote as the go-ahead for direct negotiations with the Algerian rebels who have been battling France for independence for six years.

Whether the rebels would agree to negotiate—and under what terms—was a subject of concern.

A rebel National Liberation Front FLN spokesman in Tunis, Tunisia, charged the elections results were "falsified." Other rebel officials also denounced the referendum but there was no immediate comment from Ferhat Abbas, the premier of the rebel government-in-exile.

Connally Repeal Di-Phi Debate Subject Tonight

The repeal of the Connally Amendment will be the subject of tonight's Di-Phi debate, scheduled for 8 p.m. on the 3rd floor of New West.

In a resolution prepared for presentation tonight, Rep. Arthur Hays states that the Connally Amendment "implies distrust of the International Court of Justice on the part of the United States."

Hays also feels that this provision "limits the benefits that the United States might gain from its association with the International Court of Justice."

Definite Need

"There is a definite need in the world for the Rule of Law to replace the Rule of Force," the resolution states, and "the United Nations through its International Court of Justice is the only organization at present where the application of World Law may be effective."

The official resolution asks that "The Connally Amendment in the United States' Declaration of Acceptance in the jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice be repealed."

The public is invited to attend.
