Announces Anti-Recession Measures

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy Wednesday announced a series of sweeping anti-recession measures, including a speedup in payment of veterans insurance dividends and a "food stamp" program to help feed the unemployed in five key areas.

He also told his second White House news conference that restrictions imposed by the Eisenhower administration on the number of military dependents overseas would be lifted soon.

He said other ways had been found to make the same dollar savings abroad.

Bowles Cancels Red Ambassador's Visit

WASHINGTON—Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov asked to see Chester Bowles Wednesday but the new undersecretary of state cancelled the appointment at the last minute.

The conference, scheduled to start at 4 p.m. EST, the same minute as President Kennedy's news conference, was called off because of what Bowles' office described as "the press of other business."

Menshikov probably will see Bowles Thursday. His visit was described as a "courtesy call."

Bob Kennedy May Clean Up Fight Game

WASHINGTON—Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy may be assigned the task of cleaning up the racketeers from professional boxing, Senate sources indicated Wednesday.

They said that members of a Senate subcommittee which has been investigating the fight game are leaning toward the idea of establishing a federal boxing commission under the Justice Department which the President's brother heads.

No definite decision has been made.

Noted Reporters To Speak At Press Meet Citizens' Group To Resume Theatre Picketing Monday

Theatre Managers Stand Opposed To 'Open Movie' Plan

Picketing will begin Monday at both the Carolina and Varsity theatres.

The original "rights" group which picketed the Carolina theatre three weeks ago, now under the name of the Citizens Committee for "Open" Movies, announced yesterday that picketing would be resumed at 6 p.m. Monday.

The decision was reached, said the official statement, after the group had been "assured by the manager" of the Carolina that his decision to keep the theatre segregated "was not irrevocable."

The demonstrators will picket from 6 to 9 o'clock each evening, and indefinitely afterward.

Dean of Student Affairs Fred H. Weaver, who will assume the duties of secretary of the Consolidated University on February 15, called attention yesterday to the need for improvement in the honor system.

Although Dean Weaver said that he was in favor of the system itself, he commented that its actual mode of procedure needed "to be strengthened."

CU President William Friday recently announced that the executive committee of the board of trustees had approved the appointment of Weaver, who had been Dean since 1946.

The CU position, which involves working with the board of trustees and its committees, has been left vacant since 1955 when President Friday resigned to take over his present job. Not created until 1955, the secretary's post involves "working with the board of trustees and its 14 standing committees and includes general responsibilities of administration in the Consolidated office," said President Friday.

Official Appointment

Weaver's official appointment will come at the February 27 full meeting of the board.

UNC is expected to name a successor to Weaver in the next week.

Dean Weaver, now in his last month as head of the department of student affairs, commented on several student issues:

Honor System

The honor system, which has recently been under attack from the editor of the Daily Tar Heel... "The present operation of the judicial system needs to be strengthened."

Student government... "It is a fundamental value in the educational experience of students."

Faculty

Student and faculty freedom... "There are no unusual encroachments on either students or faculty. Students fortunately are accorded an unusual measure of freedom. This is essential to a good university."

Elaborating on his honor system comments, Dean Weaver said, "I do not mean to say that the honor system as a principle—as a condition for student education—is not the best and most appropriate system. I am calling attention to the possible need for improvement in the conduct of the honor system."

Infirmary

Students in the infirmary yesterday included Rita McLean, Lynn Humphrey, Nancy Burnett, Doris Poole, Lillian Kemper, James Scott, Coy Garner, Keith Ham, Joe Garner, Gary Perry, Bachir Ould-Rouis, Milson Raver, Bill George, Robert Reed, and Milburn Gibbs.

Legislature Will Convene Tonight

Student Legislature will convene after the regular exam and semester break holiday at 7:30 tonight on the fourth floor of New East.

Cagers To Engage Terps Tonight

By Rip Slusser

Fresh from their 77-46 rout of Clemson, Coach Frank McGuire's Tar Heel cagers engage the Terps of Maryland here tonight at 8 o'clock in Woolen Gym.

Carolina, which has a record of 13 wins against only two losses, will encounter the strongest defensive in the conference when the Marylanders take the court.

The Tar Heels, however, are second in the conference on defense, while at the same time they are ranked number three in the scoring department.

Third Meeting

This will be the third meeting between these two institutions this season. The first game took place in the Dixie Classics, with Carolina mauling the Terps, 81-57. Then these teams met in College Park on January 16, Carolina again winning, 58-52.

In Tuesday's game with Carolina showed signs of the exam layoff for the first 14 minutes of the game, then caught fire to rout the Tigers. The Tar Heels, employing an alternating zone and man-to-man defense, so completely bottled up Pres Maravich's outfit in the first half, that the Tigers appeared to be using a stall.

Larese Leads

York Larese led the Heels in a hot spurt in the second half and it was no contest thereafter. Doug Moe and Dick Kepley also put on quite a show for the homefolks. Larese had 21 points, Kepley, using his sweeping hook shot, registered 19, and the ever fabulous Moe chucked in 18, while grabbing 19 rebounds.

Coach McGuire used three men alternately to guard Clemson's vaunted scorer, Choppy Patterson. Larry Brown, Yogi Poteet and Don Walsh held the little Tiger to 13 points.

After tonight's game with Maryland, the Tar Heels will bear down for the showdown with Duke in Durham on Saturday night. Carolina is the only team this year to defeat the Blue Devils, doing it in the Dixie Classics by a 76-71 tune.

Sanford Names Committee To Recommend Memorial For Carmichael

(Editor's Note: Quotes were taken from the editorial column of the Chapel Hill Weekly.)

BY LLOYD LITTLE

A memorial to William D. Carmichael Jr. will be recommended by a 12-man member committee named yesterday by Governor Terry Sanford.

Carmichael was vice president and finance officer of the Consolidated University of North Carolina at the time of his death last Friday.

Sanford appointed J. Spencer Love of Greensboro as chairman of the committee. Others appointed to the committee are: C. M. Nanstory of Greensboro, John L. Morehead of Charlotte, Henry Lineberger of Charlotte, George Watts Hill Sr. of Durham, C. Lacy Tate of Whiteville, John W. Umstead Jr. of Chapel Hill, A. E. Finley of Raleigh, Walker Martin of Raleigh, Herman Weil of Goldsboro, Frank Borden Hanes of Winston-Salem and Knox Massey of Durham.

Carmichael was buried in the Old Chapel Hill Cemetery Monday, following a funeral low mass offered for him at the Catholic Chapel of St. Thomas More here.

He had been hospitalized for a short period last month to recover from his second heart attack, which he suffered on Christmas Day. His first heart attack occurred several years ago.

"His absorbing aim and interest, after his religion, was to raise up the University in the service of the state. In this lofty endeavor which was his whole life he rallied a host of willing allies. They all felt repaid by his friendship, and all sense a great vacancy in their own lives at his going."

He was born July 28, 1900 in Durham, the son of William Donald and Margaret McRobert McCaul Carmichael. His father was vice president of Liggett and Myers.

"Billy Carmichael was a gentle lovable, and happy person with an enormous capacity for friendship. He was an unselfish man who served others in every way he could. His sense of quality and his love of beauty have made the University a better and more beautiful place. His dedication to the University and to the State was total."

He served as a private in the U. S. Aviation Service during World War I, prior to his graduation. At Chapel Hill he was captain of the basketball team and was active in publications and many extra-curricular activities, among them Kappa Sigma fraternity and the Order of Gingham.

"He performed his work with positive force and magnetic charm. His warm personality generated a spirit of good will and Christian brotherhood wherever he was."

"Perhaps more important than the buildings which will serve as a memorial to him is the fight he made with others for greater support for the facilities of the Greater University."

In 1921 he became the first graduate of the School of Commerce, receiving a B.C.S. degree.

"He was a hard-headed businessman who demonstrated by his fights for the University that education is the soundest investment a state can make."

"He possessed the rare combination of an inquisitive and studious disposition with a pleasing personality and a wholesome sense of humor. The great value of his life to the state and to the University will grow as time unfolds his numerous achievements."

After a year of graduate study he went to New York City and entered the advertising business as an account executive with the Newell-Emmett Agency. In 1924 he was married to Miss May Baldwin Waller of Durham. In 1928, as a member of the brokerage firm of Baker, Weeks and Harden, he became a member of the New York Stock Exchange, and later formed his own company, Carmichael and Carson.

"Everything he did was with complete forgetfulness of any possible personal or selfish interest. His only goal was the betterment of the University and the State of North Carolina."

In 1940, he severed his financial ties, gave up his membership in the Stock Exchange, and an income said to have been in six figures, and returned to Chapel Hill as controller. In 1940-41, the Consolidated University's budget was $1,606,000 and in 1961-62 $22,617,000 has been requested.

"Mr. Carmichael possessed a rare combination of talents which for more than twenty years he devoted to the cause of education. The totality of his vast contributions to his Alma Mater and sister institutions is beyond appraisal. The University has lost a great son and his colleagues have lost a devoted friend."

He became acting president of the University in 1949 upon the appointment of Frank P. Graham as U.S. Senator, and served until Gordon Gray's appointment as president in 1950.

"Adjectives such as dynamic, creative, adventurous, spirited, loyal, devoted, unrelenting and courageous attach easily and fittingly to the name of Billy Carmichael. He was all of those. Most fittingly, though, he was the
