New Journal Appears At UNC 'For & By University Students'

A mimeographed journal, known as the "Dialogue," under the sponsorship of the Wesley foundation, has made its first publication "for and by students" of the University. Proclaiming not to be "Sunday School literature," the Dialogue lists its purpose as "fostering and maintaining a dialogue among the many phases of life at the University, encouraging individual thought and writing at every level of concern with an emphasis on personal intimacy and honesty and to stimulate a critical awareness of our student life and its meaning in terms of our entire lives."

Journal Lists

The journal lists among reasons for its publication that "certain individuals feel that no student publication—mainly the Daily Tar Heel of course—was adequately expressing and presenting diversified student thought."

The "Dialogue" also indicated that it felt there was a need for a journal delving into questions of a personal nature and examining "numerous corrupt situations on our campus."

Range Editor

The masthead of the Dialogue lists Pete Range as editor. Various students contributed to the first issue and the journal urges "anyone to join the writing staff and contribute and criticize regularly."

The first issue contained stories ranging from an analysis of the integration situation to a poem entitled "Dammit"; from an article concerning a student's life work to an examination of the problems of cutting the "apron strings."

Quote Of The Week

After the Carolina-Duke game Saturday evening:

"Duke clobbered Carolina with its Sportsmanship Trophy!"

Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner Jim Weaver, who personally witnessed the brawl between Carolina and Duke Saturday night, declined Sunday to comment on the game before he received the official game reports from the referees.

"I will say one thing. I thought the referee made a good call on the play (Heyman's foul of Brown), "Weaver said Sunday.

Duke Coach Vic Bubas claimed that it was the first free-for-all in the 20-year history of Duke Indoor Stadium. "But I'm not going to let it camouflage a good victory for my boys," he said.

"Why should I be interested in banking as a career...?"

HERE at Manufacturers Trust Company we have no quick, pat answer to such a question. But this we do know: our bank is one of the largest in the nation and our business has been growing by leaps and bounds. We must be prepared to meet the need for trained bank officers in the years immediately ahead and therein lies a world of opportunities for qualified men.

That is why Manufacturers Trust Company operates one of the most comprehensive management training programs of any bank in the United States. Today more than 50 graduates from colleges and universities the country over are getting the practical experience which will permit them to assume greater responsibilities in our bank—in credits, international banking, security analysis, personal and corporate trust work, branch administration, real estate and many other areas of management work.

Here's a suggestion: one of our officers will be on campus soon. (You'll find the time and place in the panel to the right.) Why not plan to take the fifteen minutes or so required to get the facts about the opportunities awaiting you at our bank. In the meantime, you can learn more about us by reading our booklet, "An Open Letter To This Year's College Graduates."

Ask your Placement Officer for a copy of this booklet.

CHARLES A. BECKER,

Vice President of Manufacturers Trust Company, will be at University of North Carolina Campus Monday, February 13th, to talk to interested seniors. See your Placement Officer to arrange an interview.
