APPLIES FOR U.S. VISA

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—Capt. Henrique Galvao, who hijacked the Portuguese cruise liner Santa Maria in January, has applied for a visa to visit the United States. U.S. consul Benjamin Hilliard said the request has been referred to Washington. Galvao said he hoped to conduct a fund-raising drive for his campaign to oust Portuguese Premier Antonio Salazar.

AT WASHINGTON MEETING
Students Hear Peace Corps Objectives

Greeting "those who did not make it to Ft. Lauderdale," Rep. Henry S. Reuss (D.-Wis.) opened the National Committee on Youth Service Abroad (Peace Corps) in Washington, D. C., March 27-30.

Representing UNC were two delegates and an alternate plus nine other UNC students who served as resource personnel or official observers.

Approximately 400 persons attended the conference, including 200 delegates of colleges from all parts of the United States, special foreign student representatives, National Student Association delegates, adult observers from various government and industry interest groups, and resource personnel.

Humanization Asked
Calling for a humanization of U.S. foreign policy and a retreat from "dollar diplomacy,"

Reuss, the original proponent of a youth corps, said that the students of America were aligning themselves with the conscientious students of foreign countries.

"Once again the college student is speaking out on issues and really meaning it again," stated a letter to the conference from Senator Estes Kefauver. "Too long the campus has been the Rip Van Winkle of the Nation."

R. Sargent Shriver, President John F. Kennedy's recently appointed Director of the Peace Corps, emphasized the rigorous training which will be necessary for peace corpsmen. The indoctrination period would include intensive study of the culture, customs, mores and languages of the country to which we are asking people to go; it will include courses in our own history, civilization and culture, and of course, it will emphasize language," Shriver added.

The training period would range from three weeks to six months in its present planning stages. Nationals and officials of other countries would be obtained to participate in the training program. In addition, experts of this country would be participating in the training of those selected for the corps.

"The Peace Corpsmen will be fighting enemies just as powerful as any army," warned Sen. Hubert Humphrey. "Their battle for peace will pit them against the ancient conditions of war and totalitarianism—hunger, poverty, illiteracy, disease, and ignorance. . . . This corps will not destroy; it will build."

Delegates and resource personnel thrashed out specific problems in small workshops and resolutions from each group were compiled and passed by the voting members of the conference.

Ed Riner and Peter Von Christerson represented UNC as delegates and Tom Orr, as an alternate, also represented the National Education Association.

HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY

With tuition costs spiralling ever upward, more and more undergraduates are investigating the student loan plan. If you are one who is considering the "Learn Now, Pay Later" system, you would do well first to study the case of Leonid Sigafos.

Leonid, the son of an upholsterer in Stratinated Circumstances, Idaho, had his heart set on going to college, but his father, alas, could not afford to send him. Leonid applied for a Regents Scholarship, but his reading speed, alas, was not very rapid—two words an hour—and before he could finish the first page of his test the Regents had closed their brief cases and gone home. Leonid then applied for an athletic scholarship, but he had, alas, only a single athletic skill—balancing a stick on his chin—and this, alas, aroused only passing enthusiasm among the coaches.

He had, alas, only a single athletic skill.

And then, huzzah, Leonid learned of the student loan plan: he could borrow money for his tuition and repay it in easy monthly installments after he left school!

Happily Leonid enrolled in the Southeastern Idaho College of Woodpulp and Restoration Drama and happily began a college career that grew more happy year by year. Indeed, it became altogether ecstatic in his senior year because Leonid met a coed named Salina T. Nem with hair like beaten gold and eyes like two squirts of Lake Louise. Love gripped them in its big moist palm and they were betrothed on the Eve of St. Agnes.

Happily they made plans to be married the day after commencement—plans, alas, that never were to come to fruition because Leonid, alas, learned that Salina, like himself, was in college on a student loan, which meant that he had not only to repay his own loan when he left school but also Salina's, and the job, alas, that was waiting for Leonid after graduation at the Boise Raccoon Works simply did not pay enough, alas, to cover both their loans, plus rent and food and clothing.

Sick at heart, Leonid and Salina sat down and lit Marlboro Cigarettes and tried to find an answer to their problem—and, sure enough, they did! I do not know whether or not Marlboro Cigarettes helped them find an answer; all I know is that Marlboros taste good and look good, and when things close in and a fellow needs a friend and the world is black as the pit from pole to pole, it is a heap of comfort and satisfaction to be sure that Marlboros will always provide the same unflinching pleasure, the same unstinting quality, in all times and climes and conditions. That's all I know.

Leonid and Salina, I say, did find an answer—a very simple one. If their student loans did not come due until they left school, why, then they just wouldn't leave school! So after receiving their bachelor degrees, they re-enrolled and took masters degrees. After that they took doctors degrees, loads and loads of them, until today Leonid and Salina, both aged 78, both still in school, hold doctorates in Philosophy, Humane Letters, Jurisprudence, Veterinary Medicine, Civil Engineering, Optometry, and Dewey Decimals. Their student loans, as of last January 1, amounted to a combined total of eighteen million dollars, a sum which they probably would have found great difficulty in repaying had not the Department of the Interior recently declared them a National Park.
