UNC GETS ITS ANNUALS

PACKAGES FILLED with copies of the 1961 Yackety Yack slide down into the basement of Graham Memorial on a special roller transporter. They were distributed to students yesterday afternoon from the back windows of the student union. Any student who has an ID card and has yet to pick up his copy of the black, gold-tooled annual may do so from 2-5 p.m. today. (Photo by Blaustein)

McGuire Tells Audience Everyone Must Have Goal

By HARRY W. LLOYD

"Everyone should have a goal in life. Mine was coaching. You may have another one, but no matter what yours is, shoot for the top. The hill is long, and not easy to climb, but your goal in life should be waiting at the top."

These were the words of UNC Basketball Coach Frank McGuire, as he addressed a gathering of students and townspeople Monday night in Memorial Hall in the final "Last Lecture" of the 1960-61 year. His address, as have been all in the series, represented what he would say if he knew that he were going to die the next day. McGuire combined the serious with the humorous as he revealed his philosophy of coaching, which, he said, is really not different from his philosophy of life.

"My big mistake was in 1957, when we won the NCAA chamampionship by going undefeated," he confessed. "Now I wonder whether it was really worth it. It nearly drove me out of my mind. Even after we had won 10 games in a row, people in Chapel Hill came up to me and said, 'Coach, I just know you are going to go all the way.'"

"I thought to myself, why they are so stupid! We hadn't even played Duke or State. I told them that anyone who went all the way without a defeat had to be cheating. Of course, later I had to take that back.

"Don't try to go up that ladder too fast. It hurts so much when you have to come back down again. Sometimes, it may be better if you never even reach the top."

Suffering Necessary

"We must have suffering here; we are not placed here for complete happiness. But in life, happiness is everything."

The best goal that you can set for your life is that you might be where you would become most happy."

McGuire, who was introduced by Bill Whitchard, chairman of the Last Lecture committee, did not claim to be a lecturer. "I'm just a basketball coach," he admitted. "I am very much flattered by the fine crowd here to see me. I do not want to be quoted on anything. I have been crushed—really, I wanted to get out of making this speech. But I had already promised.

"I know there are a few coaches around here wish this were my last lecture," he surmised. "Commissioner Weaver and a couple of my friends close by . . ."

Coaching Philosophy

For five main points that contained his philosophy of coaching, he borrowed from Everett Dean, a friend and former coach. He listed them in this order:

- (1) Learn something about psychology. "All boys are different, and the coach must deal with them that way. Some have to be scolded, and others have to be patted on the back."
- (2) Be a good public relations man. "I got a letter from Castro the other day. He told me to get off the front pages. I've been there for a year and a half. I imagine that pretty soon, Kennedy will have something to say about me."
- (3) Try to give the players a better sense of values. "I learned some very important things from my mother. She told us never to speak about anybody. I believe in human frailties and I never criticize players."
- (4) Be a strict disciplinarian.
- (5) Put your family above your job. "I have failed my family too much in the past. But no job is more important to me than my family."

Young Awarded Mangum Medal

Davis B. Young won the Mangum Medal for the outstanding senior oration in competition held Monday night.

Young's speech centered around the three phrases which formed the basis of his policy as editor of the Daily Tar Heel in 1959-60: (1) The nation is at war; (2) The nation is losing the war badly; and (3) The nation must exert a vastly greater effort. He expanded on this topic in the light of recent world developments and their relationship to the state of education on the UNC campus.

Judges for the Medal, awarded since 1878, were Dr. Gordon Cleveland, Dr. Rashi Fein, and Dr. James E. King.

Coffin Emphasizes Need For Courage

"Man lives by bread . . . but not by bread alone. We need to find a basic perspective . . . and have the courage to be."

The Reverend William Sloane Coffin, chaplain of Yale University, and a member of the National Advisory Council for the Peace Corps, ended his speech on "American Failures and Peace Corps Opportunities in Africa" with these words, Monday night.

The Reverend Coffin's speech dealt with those failures of America which were pointed out to him by the Guineans, when he was there last summer, and those failures he recognized himself in our foreign policies. The Guineans asked questions such as the following: Why is the racial situation so terrible in America? Why do Americans consider the Soviet Union a menace? (Guineans do not.) What is America going to do in South Africa?

American Slowness

He continued his speech by sketching the slowness of the American government in reacting to newly emerging independent countries in Africa. "We do not send economic aid; we do not recognize the country; we do not do anything as rapidly as does the Soviet Union.

"The cardinal American failure lies in the fact that we are a second-rate nation until we practice what we preach. 'All men are created equal.' Gross hypocrisy and platitudes is what we have offered to newly emerging states for the last fifteen years.

"Man lives by bread," admitted Coffin. "A hungry African cares not whose bread he eats. Russian flour is as good as American flour."

Not Bread Alone

"But man does not live by bread alone." The Governor General of Java said the "tragic flaw in American aid" is the "look in the eye." "The gift without the giver is bare," quoted Rev. Coffin from Lowell. This is where the Peace Corps fits in. Now for the first time the gift can go with the giver. It will be giving and sharing."

It is time, said Rev. Coffin, for us to cease being "nuclear giants and ethical midgets." It is a time that calls for men who have the courage to be men with guts."

AFROTC Holds Sunday Show For Parents

The UNC Air Force ROTC will hold its annual Parents Day Ceremony Sunday at 1:30 p.m. on Fetzer Field.

The objective of the event is to present to the parents and friends of the cadets a general knowledge of Air Force customs, courtesies, and procedures. The ceremony will consist of a pass-in-review by the troops, a drill exhibition by the Drill Squadron, and the presentation of the Cadet of the Month Award. Following the ceremony the Angel Flight, the co-ed sponsors of the corps, will be host to the cadets and their parents for refreshments in the Cadet Lounge.

Power Exhibition

To supplement the day's proceedings, an Air Power Exhibition will be presented in the cadet area starting at 2:15 p.m. The exhibition will be divided into four general categories: flight equipment, survival equipment, engine mock-ups, and history of flight.

The Alpha Phi Omega-sponsored Parents Day will also be held Sunday.

Noted Editor Will Deliver Forum Address

Dr. Martin E. Marty, associate editor of The Christian Century magazine, is scheduled to speak here next Monday night in affiliation with the Carolina Forum and the Religious Forum Planning Committee.

Dr. Marty's topic will be "American Protestantism's Second Chance."

Prelude To Forum

Dr. Marty's talk will be a prelude to the Religious Forum to be held next year, in which leading spokesmen for protestantism, Catholicism, and Judaism will participate.

The speaker is a noted theologian and man of letters. Editorially, he serves on the Pulpit, The American Lutheran, The Cresset, and as editor for Response. He has written a number of theological works and presently serves as pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit in Elk Grove Village, Illinois.

Wake Trustees Approve Negroes In Grad School

Trustees of Wake Forest College in Winston-Salem last Friday authorized the faculties of the college's three graduate school divisions to admit qualified Negro applicants.

But the board deferred action on authorizing the college's school of arts and sciences and business school to admit persons without regard to race.

Med School

The trustees board left decisions on admitting Negroes to the Bowman Gray School of Medicine, the college's school of law and the school's new division of graduate students at the discretion of the deans and faculties of these units.

Mrs. McCain Given Chi Omega Award

Mrs. P. P. McCain of Wilson, N. C. received the North Carolina Distinguished Service Award last night at the annual Chi Omega Eleusinian Banquet held at the Carolina Inn.

The award is presented each year by the local alumnae and active Chi Omega chapters. The Committee which chose Mrs. McCain consisted of Chancellor W. B. Aycock, Dean Katherine Carmichael, Miss Katherine Gocher, and Mrs. Harold Dudley. Chancellor Emeritus R. B. House presented the citation.

A most deserving recipient, Mrs. McCain was a member of the UNC Board of Trustees and was Dean of Students at Flora Macdonald. A health worker for tuberculosis sanatoria, Mrs. McCain is also active in her church. The mother of five children, she was elected Mother of the Year by a group in 1945.

Sociology Award

Also presented at the Chi Omega's banquet was a Sociology Award to the outstanding girl in the Sociology department. The recipient of this was Jacqueline Hoyt, a senior from Durham.

Infirmary

GUIDED TOURS

Guided tours of the University for tourists and visitors are now available through a service being provided by two student service organizations at the University.

Under the sponsorship of the Carolina Women's Council and Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity, the tours will be formed at the information desk of South Building, University administration center at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., Monday through Friday. Saturday tours will be conducted beginning at 11 a.m.

Thursday Or Friday Probable New Date

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Surly weather grounded "prime astronaut" Alan B. Shepard Jr. Tuesday—but only temporarily.

He will attempt America's first manned-rocket trip into space later this week, probably Friday morning.

He would have gone Tuesday if officials of the Mercury man-in-space project had given the word. But they refused to add any hazard to an inherently dangerous mission by shooting him off into a cloudy sky.

The 37-year-old Navy commander and his 66,000-pound Redstone rocket and his ton-and-a-half cabin were all set to ride 115 miles into space and 290 miles down the Atlantic missile range at 8 a.m. EDT Tuesday.

Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., Shepard's "backup," was ready to pinch-hit if necessary. The Mercury scientists, trackers, launch crew, doctors, range controllers, recovery ships, and the five other Mercury astronauts all were ready for their special and vital roles, too.

Generates Squall Line

But something not yet controllable by man, the weather, said not yet. A cold front spawned in the Central Plains states some days ago had generated a squall line which swept down through Florida Monday night.

At the same time clouds covered and strong winds whipped the sea 80 miles northeast of Grand Bahama Island where a seven-ship recovery fleet was delayed to pick Shepard from the water after his 15-minute ride.

At 8:35 a.m. EDT with Shepard in his silvery 20-pound space suit, the Redstone fully fueled, and the countdown only two hours and 20 minutes from liftoff, the shot was "scrubbed."

On the basis of later forecasts, Mercury officials said another attempt probably can be made Friday morning—possibly as early as Thursday morning.

CORRECTION: Bob Grover is chairman of the Library Committee, not Bill Bilbro as the DTH printed yesterday.

added as the demands upon the committee are determined. There are presently nine students on the executive committee.

Kept Small

Joe Masi was named to the Last Lecture Committee, whose chairman is Henry Mayer.

Miss Allen Appointed

Sara Jo Allen has been appointed to sit in on all Student Council cases involving constitutionality.

Balloting Heavy At Precinct 3

Precinct three poll directors reported fairly heavy returns in the school board and city officers elections at 2:45 yesterday afternoon.

The precinct, with polls at Woollen gym, had recorded 312 votes in the school board election and 229 in the municipals. The polls closed at 6:30 yesterday.

ESSAY ENTRIES

All entries for the Junior Class Essay Contest must be turned in today in order to be eligible for the prizes. They will be accepted at the editorial office of the Daily Tar Heel.

Singing At GM Sunday

Appearing here Sunday for a lawn concert in front of Graham Memorial are Dan Brock and Sandra Norwell, balladeers. A sophomore here from Lexington, Kentucky, Brock met Miss Norwell, from Danville, Ky., last summer and the two have given several concerts together since that time. Their program Sunday, scheduled to begin at 8:30, will consist of popular ballads and folksongs with several audience participation numbers.

Partial Cease Fire In Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos—A government spokesman announced Tuesday a cease fire was in effect in the Ban Khy area 45 miles north of Vientiane. But military sources said Communist rebels on another front were driving toward the border of South Viet Nam.

Foreign Secretary Chao Sopaisana told newsmen the cease fire went into effect at 5:30 p.m. Monday when peace emissaries of the two warring factions met for the first time under a flag of truce. He said the emissaries were expected to broaden the agreement to cover the other fronts.

Eichmann's Defense Hindered

JERUSALM—Israel delivered a heavy blow to Adolf Eichmann's defense Tuesday by refusing to grant safe conduct to four former Nazis to come here and testify for him.

Attorney General Gideon Hausner told the court trying Eichmann for the murder of 6,000,000 Jews there is nothing to prevent the Nazis witnesses from coming. But he warned they would be arrested the minute they set foot on Israeli soil and tried as war criminals.

Unemployment Drops 533,000

WASHINGTON—The Labor Department Tuesday reported a drop of 533,000 in unemployment during April but said it reflects the season, not necessary a business recovery.

The drop, which was about what could be expected for this time of the year, still left 4,962,000 unemployed in the nation. This was second only to April, 1958, as far as that particular month is concerned.
