Emphasis In Laos Changes To Peace

Boun Oum Proposes First Steps To Insure Cease-Fire Agreement

VIENTIANE, Laos, Friday (UPI)—The pro-Western government of Premier Prince Boun Oum proposed to the rebels that a six-man military group from each side meet at noon Friday to take the first steps toward expanding a cease-fire into national reconciliation.

Fighting in Laos ceased except for perfunctory patrols and the emphasis switched to a political settlement and discussion of a possible agreement to set up a coalition government that would include Communists, neutrals and pro-Western ministers.

The proposal for a coalition came from Prince Souvanna Phouma before he left the rebel headquarters at Xieng Khouang yesterday for talks in Cambodia with roving Ambassador Averell Harriman.

The proposal was received coldly by both Laotian and Western observers and Prince Boun asked the rebels instead to send a six-man military delegation to the no-man's land 50 miles north of Vientiane to try to make Wednesday's cease-fire agreement foolproof.

King Savangh Vathana and his cabinet flew to the royal capital of Luang Prabang yesterday after issuing a communique expressing satisfaction at prospects that the military meeting would make arrangements to raise the level of meetings to at least government representatives.

A joint session of the General Assembly approved trustees for the Consolidated University in Raleigh Wednesday.

TO BEAT RUSSIANS TO MOON

House Votes Sum To Space Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Space Committee voted Thursday to add $126.6 million to President Kennedy's space budget in an effort to beat the Russians to the moon.

The committee, acting in the wake of Russia's man-in-orbit success, earmarked most of the increases for the Apollo space craft. It is designed to carry three American explorers around the moon and back.

The moon expedition, now scheduled for 1967, must be achieved before an actual landing can be made on the moon's surface.

Committee Chairman Overton Brooks said the money boosts were designed to instill a sense of urgency into the U.S. space program.

"We want to surpass Russia in space," he said.

Costs $1.36 Billion
Altogether, the committee voted $1.36 billion for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) for the fiscal year beginning July 1. Kennedy requested $1.23 billion.

The measure only authorizes the funds, however, and Congress must pass a separate bill carrying this actual money.

Frolic Cancelled

The IDC Spring Frolic, scheduled for tonight, has been cancelled. Inter-Dormitory Council spokesmen said that entertainer Jim Kapps couldn't assemble the necessary performers to make his appearance. It is not yet decided if there will be a replacement dance later.

All are rising second-year students.

To Curb Student Voting

Group Opposes Bill

A delegation from Orange County appeared in Raleigh Tuesday to oppose a bill that would make it more difficult for college students to vote.

The delegation was formed after it was learned that a bill concerning voting rights had passed the Senate and included a section designed to clarify the voting rights of college students.

This section of the bill would make it almost impossible for a student who moves from the county or state where his parents live to register to vote in the district where he goes to school.

Board Endorsement
The bill carries the endorsement of the State Board of Elections and according to Raymond Maxwell, chairman of that board, it just puts into writing what the law already states.

Samuel McClamroch, mayor-elect of Chapel Hill, said that Maxwell told him that many of the students already registered to vote here were registered in violation of present laws.

The members of the House Election Laws which was studying the bill were impressed by the arguments of the delegation and according to McClamroch, the bill would probably be killed in the committee.

Purpose Of Laws
The purpose of the original election laws not allowing students to vote, was to keep them from taking over local government, according to Maxwell.

Judge L. J. Phipps said, "We are not afraid of students in Chapel Hill taking over the government."

Julian Mason, a professor of English at UNC, pointed out to the committee that all the graduate students and their wives would be barred from voting if this bill passes. He said that there were also 1,431 married men and 261 married women taking undergraduate work at UNC who would not be allowed to vote.

Average Ages
The delegation told the committee that the average age of undergraduates at UNC is over 22 and the average age for graduate students is over 27.

Rep. John Umstead of Orange County will exclude Orange County from the bill even if it should pass the committee and the House according to Mayor-elect McClamroch, but the committee was hoping to have the bill killed for all students in the states.

The members of the delegation were: Judge L. J. Phipps of Chapel Hill; Samuel McClamroch, mayor-elect of Chapel

Oscar Flick Tonight

A comedy and a serious drama will highlight this week-end's Free Flick program.

The story traces the development of a beautiful-but-dumb ex-chorus girl into an intelligent young woman.

Judy Holiday (who won an Oscar for this role) recreates her stage role as Billie Dawn, the brazen blonde beauty whose sole aim in life is to extract mink coats from her rich and rowdy junk dealer boyfriend (Broderick Crawford)—until he hires a political writer (William Holden) to educate her.

Henry Fonda stars in tomorrow's flick—the film version of John Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath."

HARRISS CLARIFIES CASE

Student Poll Against Moe Suspension

Council Action Favored

Students questioned in a Daily Tar Heel telephone poll yesterday afternoon were almost unanimously opposed to Chancellor William B. Aycock's action in suspending Doug Moe.

With less than 24 hours remaining of Moe's stay on the UNC campus a widespread but small poll found students almost evenly split on whether the star should have been suspended.

The principle objection voiced was that the decision was made by Aycock rather than the Honor Council.

Calls were made to six men's dormitories, three fraternities, three women's dormitories, and two random off-campus apartments.

Doesn't Believe
One of the three students who felt that Aycock was the proper person to make the decision said, "I do not believe in the Honor Council."

The twenty-odd other persons contacted felt that the Honor Council should have decided.

"This is a slap in the students' face," said one. Another felt that, "Aycock tried to pass the buck, but when the Honor Council did not suspend Moe, he reneged and went over the students' heads."

The suspension itself was viewed from two different polls. The people questioned were almost equally divided on the issue.

"Best Thing"
"This was the best thing for the University and for Moe," said one fraternity resident. Another thought the suspension "completely bad."

On the other hand, one off-campus resident said, "Why should Moe receive the same penalty for refusing this bribe as those who took the bribes when he had enough integrity to turn down the money?"

One girl questioned thought the suspension a "shame." Another coed thought he should have been suspended, but not in the manner which he was.

The consensus was expressed by one male dorm resident when he stated, "I am not sure Moe should have been suspended, but I am sure Chancellor Aycock should not have done it."

Only fires causing more than $250,000 damage are recorded in the analysis.

President Defends Acquittal Of Moe

Bill Harris, President of the Student Body, said in a statement yesterday that "the Honor Council was entirely justified in its decision" to acquit Doug Moe of failing to turn in Lou Brown for a bribery attempt.

Harris also pointed out that "there were two different and distinct cases. One case was tried by the Honor Council and the other was handled by the Chancellor (William B. Aycock)."

Harris' full statement follows:

"Douglas Moe was charged with failure to turn in Lou Brown for a bribery attempt. There is a precedent in Honor Council cases of this nature that was adhered to in accordance with just judicial procedure. This precedent is that in cases of failure to report, the original offender has to be found guilty before a person can be convicted on failure to report an offense.

Not Informed
"The Honor Council was not informed that Lou Brown had left school under other than honorable circumstances. Lou Brown was never brought before the Honor Council, therefore, he was never convicted.

"Much of the misunderstanding that exists concerning the Honor Council's decision is due to the fact that persons do not understand the limited evidence that was given to the Council.

"The evidence presented made no mention of the fact that Douglas Moe had lied to the Chancellor or that he on three other occasions had withheld evidence. In the evidence, it was also made clear that the $75.00 gift had nothing to do with the offense.

"The case presented to the Council was tried on the evidence and due to the precedent mentioned above Douglas Moe was adjudged not guilty of the offense.

"There were two different cases, one was presented to the Honor Council as described above, and the Chancellor made his own decision to suspend Douglas Moe on the basis that Douglas Moe had personally lied

BY CHANCELLOR AYCOCK

Complete Statement On Moe Is Released

Chancellor William B. Aycock's statement, made Wednesday afternoon, follows:

The Men's Honor Council met last night to decide whether or not the failure of Douglas Moe to report that a fellow student attempted to bribe him on two occasions (September and December 1960) constituted a violation of the Honor Code. The Honor Council decided that he was not guilty of this charge.

Apart from the charge before the Honor Council was the fact that Douglas Moe assured me on March 22, 1961, that he was in no way involved in the alleged basketball scandals under investigation by the District Attorney of New York City.

After three conferences with him, he still had not divulged the fact that he had received $75 in connection with an attempted bribe in September 1960. It was not until a fourth conference that Douglas Moe, in response to my specific question, admitted that he received the $75.

For his initial misstatement and subsequent concealment of the facts Douglas Moe has been suspended indefinitely from the University by me.

Indefinite suspension is a less severe disciplinary measure than expulsion. No consideration will be given to an application by Douglas Moe for readmission prior to the Spring Semester of 1962.

Louis Brown withdrew from the University on March 29, 1961. He was permitted to withdraw with the stipulation that he could not return without permission of the Chancellor. Thus the withdrawal was under other than honorable conditions. Due to the University's cooperation with the investigation by the New York City District Attorney, it was not possible to discipline Louis Brown at the time of his withdrawal.

New City Officers To Be Sworn In Monday Night

Swearing-in ceremonies for Chapel Hill's new mayor, Roland McClamroch, and three re-elected aldermen will take place next Monday night at the regularly scheduled town meeting.

Paul Wager, Mrs. Adelaide Walters and Hubert Robinson Sr. were re-elected to the town board for four years in a quiet election last Tuesday.

In addition to these three, another person will be appointed to fill out the remainder of Roland McClamroch's term because of his election as mayor.

William Stuart was elected to a two-year term as judge of Chapel Hill Recorder's Court.

Dr. Richard Peters, Mrs. Mary Scroggs and Dr. Fred Ellis were elected to the Chapel Hill County Board of Education in a county election held at the same time. This school district includes the Victory Village section.
