Coeds Shocked By Mannikin In Bra And Very Little Else

BY CHARLES COOPER

"Lord, I was shocked!" This was one coed's reaction to the latest addition to the many signs and announcements in Y-Court. The addition is a mannikin dressed in a skirt and a brassiere, accompanied by a sign reading: "I dreamed I saw the Four Aces in my Maidenform bra."

The display is a part of the publicity campaign being conducted by the University Entertainment Committee in preparation for their first show of the year.

Good Idea

Most coeds, after their initial shock thought the idea a good one and the whole thing funny.

"I didn't think it was in bad taste at all," said one coed, "although I was a little shocked."

Another coed thought it very funny: "I didn't see anyone die or anything. I don't think it was so bad."

Unfavorable reaction was voiced by some coeds. "I wish they would take it down. I just noticed it and looked the other way, was one of the negative reactions."

"Very Impressive"

All male students contacted found the mannikin very amusing. In contrast to the embarrassed coeds, one man said, "It was very impressive."

There was one dissenter among the men who thought the display showed poor taste. But he said he was very amused by it, despite its "bad taste."

UNC's Battle Senate Awarded

Paul Whitfield Accepts 'Outstanding Senate' Award

The William H. Battle Senate of the Delta Theta Phi Law Fraternity has been awarded the "Outstanding Student Senate" award in regional competition.

The award is determined on the basis of excellence in fifteen phases of scholastic, extra-curricular and fraternity activities.

Dean of Battle Senate, Paul L. Whitfield, accepted the award at the farternity's 32nd biennial convention in Atlanta. The presentation was made by William Henry Caswell of Detroit and Meredith M. Daubin of Washington, D. C.

The award was won for Region Three, a division of the national law fraternity, which includes student senates in North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, and western Pennsylvania.

Among the more important of the 15 standards for determining the award are: (1) scholastic standing of the senate, (2) scholastic achievements and honors received by the brothers and (3) participation in student bar association work.

Battle Senate named after UNC's first law professor, was founded in 1924.

Students To Move To Canadian Wilds

BY LINDA CRAVOTTA

UNC's Canadian Exchange Trip club is organizing its third annual trek to the wilds of the Canadian frontier during mid-term break, January 31-February 3.

Applications will be available today through Friday from either the main lobby of Graham Memorial, Y-Court, or the Reserve Reading Room of the library.

Applications should be submitted to the main desk in Graham Memorial by Friday, October 6, and applicants should sign up for interviews to be given from October 9-11.

"Genuine Friendliness"

Applicants should possess a genuine friendliness and interest in people, combined with a willingness to share personalities and communicate ideas, according to Pat Morgan, chairman of the Canadian Exchange Trip.

Miss Morgan is working closely with the Woman's Coordinator Lyn da Richert in preparing plans for both UNC's trip to Canada, and a reciprocal visit of Canadians to the UNC campus.

Extra-curricular activities are not necessarily a prerequisite for application, although they will be taken into consideration along with any particular talents and interests which an applicant has.

Homecoming Weekend The Canadian students will visit the UNC campus on November 10-12, during the Germans-Homecoming weekend. Student Government will pay all expenses of the Canadians during their stay at Carolina, and this will be reversed when UNC students are in Canada.

Transportation and expenses for UNC students will be limited to $50.00, unless individuals plan to spend extra money.

The quota of UNC students who can be selected is twenty-four (12 men and 12 women). A possible trip to New York City may be included in the trip to Canada.

De Gaulle Calls For Unity; May Resume Dictator Power

Edwards Asks Y-Court Litter Be Curtailed

Rudy Edwards, assistant to the Dean of Student Affairs yesterday issued a plea to students to exert an effort in helping to keep Y-Court clean.

"There has been increasing difficulty in keeping Y-Court clean simply because people haven't been using the trash cans," Edwards said.

"We have had a number of comments from administration members and from students about the general slovenliness of the area.

"Rather than station an official to police the area, I would like to appeal to the students' responsibility to help keep the area clean," Edwards stated.

"I believe the students are fully capable of self-government and of conducting themselves in a responsible way, and that there is no need for outside interference," he continued.

Edwards also mentioned that there are six trash cans strategically located in Y-Court for students to use.

GEN. C. DE GAULLE

There will be an important staff meeting for all members of the Daily Tar Heel in the DTH offices this afternoon at 4 p.m. Attendance is required.

Speech Sabotaged In West Algeria

PARIS (UPI)—President Charles de Gaulle appealed Monday for national unity to combat the mounting wave of terrorism, continued bloodshed and the haunting fear of civil war. His television speech was sabotaged in Algeria.

De Gaulle threatened to resume supreme dictatorial powers to guide France through its "hard and dangerous passage." He said he would dissolve parliament and hold a nationwide referendum vote if France becomes embroiled in another grave political crisis.

His speech was broadcast here and in Algeria but in the West Algeria port of Oran settler extremists sabotaged it by blowing up transmission cables 10 minutes before the broadcast was due to begin, darkening screens throughout the city.

The action in Oran, crippled Monday by a 30-minute strike called on orders of the Secret Army Organization OAS followed similar moves recently in Algeria where the OAS twice took over a TV station to broadcast anti-DeGaulle statements.

De Gaulle's voice was stern as he told the nation:

"If it should happen that the political situation endangered the regular functioning of the authorities, government and parliament, and in these threatening times endangered the very destiny of the country, then the people would have to make its decision known by the means open to it."

De Gaulle had abandoned last Saturday the emergency powers he assumed during the April generals' revolt in Algeria but warned he would not hesitate to use them again if necessary.

"They remain, in their fullest possible extent, the supreme guarantee for the country and the state," he said.

De Gaulle spoke against this background: —Movements against De Gaulle have been reported in right-wing circles in France and extremists recently tried to assassinate him with a plastic bomb.

—The OAS is openly defying his regime in Algeria and has carried out a series of demonstrations, including a half-hour work stoppage Monday.

—Moslem terrorists in Algeria have been arming for a showdown with the OAS and the government seems powerless to stop them.

—There was no certainty the powerful French Army in Algeria would obey De Gaulle in event of a new OAS coup or a fight with the Moslems.

Y Launches Drive For New Members

By NANCY BARR

The YWCA launched its annual membership drive for junior women transfers today.

Over 15 committees ranging from international relations to the office force are available to the new junior students who will check their preferences on interest cards Wednesday.

At this time the freshmen women students will be invited to join the '65 club, the YWCA's equivalent to the YMCA's Freshman Forum. Especially designed for new college students, the '65 club headed by Harriet Cox will present programs and discussions of special interest to women entering a university for the first time.

The YWCA committees are planned to appeal to student interests in national and international affairs, welfare work and office work.

Chest Committee

The Campus Chest committee, headed by Jeanie MacDougall, sponsors the annual student Campus Chest drive at UNC. This drive is the single, authorized appeal for funds on campus and employs a working committee of over 200.

The Public Affairs committee, headed by Sara Jo Allen, studies current U. S. problems. Several times during the year the committee brings speakers and films to the campus as well as holds discussions on national affairs.

The International Relations committee handles on the international level the same type of world problems as does the Public Affairs committee on the national level. This year the committee is planning to sponsor several book and clothes drives for university students in colonial countries.

Under the committee foreign students on campus and other speakers on international problems will present programs.

Race relations in the South will be the major topic of studies and discussions in the Human Relations Committee this year. During the year several conferences, forums and speakers will be dealing with human relations in the South.

The Collegiate Council of United Nations, formerly the U. N. Education committee, will again sponsor a multitude of activities concerning the U. N. As well as the annual seminar Thanksgiving trip to the U. N., the committee will participate in the inter-collegiate U. N. Model Assembly along with 25 neighboring colleges and universities.

Welfare Activities

Along with national and international interests, the "Y" also sponsors welfare activities in and around Chapel Hill.

Hospital Aid, headed by Sinclair Kemper, and Hospital Visiting, headed by Blanche Bonner, do afternoon visiting and entertaining in the N. C. Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill. Kay Fletcher heads the Gravely committee which does visiting, shopping and presents programs to the patients in the local TB sanatorium.

The Dix Hill committee, headed by Angelyn Stokes, and the Catholic Orphanage committee, headed by Betti Brown, do welfare work in Raleigh through visiting and entertainment.

Working with young people in Chapel Hill centers around the Girl Scouts committee, headed by Jane Shaw, the Negro "Y" Teens headed by Pat Stallings, and the Blind "Y" Teens, headed by Sylvia Mullins.

Atlas Spans Oceans

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—An Atlas missile carrying two "piggyback" packages of instruments to be used in future U. S. space flights thundered into the sky today on a planned ocean-spanning flight.

The gleaming 80-foot rocket blasted from its launching pad at about 1:22 p.m. A delicate guidance system aimed an instrument-packed dummy warhead at a target 5,000 miles away, in the South Atlantic.

Pressure On Union

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy will put just as much pressure on the steelworkers union to make non-inflationary wage demands as he exerted on the steel companies to avoid price increases, Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg said Monday.

The cabinet officer said the administration would speak with equal force to the union before negotiations start next spring on a new contract covering half a million steelworkers.

Money For Ghanaian Dam?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana has written President Kennedy asking for a firm U. S. decision on aid to the controversial Volta River dam-smelter project.

Informed sources said Nkrumah asked for a reply by Oct. 13. He said he had no objection to Kennedy's suggestion that an economic mission be sent to Ghana for a final review of the project.

The United States said last week it was withholding, pending a final review, a decision on whether to go ahead with more than $30 million in loans to the Akosombo Dam and loans or investor guarantees for an aluminum smelter which would cost between $128 million and $178 million, depending on size of the plant.

DeGaullists Raid Settlers

ALGIERS (UPI)—French police loyal to President Charles de Gaulle Monday raided a headquarters of the Secret Army Organization (OAS) at Blida, 25 miles south of Algiers. Earlier the OAS successfully called out French settlers in a 30-minute strike.

Informed sources in Algiers said the "forces of order" arrested about 20 members of the underground organization. They acted on a tip by a young army sergeant who deserted last week with a truckload of arms destined for renegade soldiers who had gone over to the OAS.

Agrarian Reform For Spain

BURGOS, Spain (UPI)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco outlined Monday a new program of agrarian reform that will keep his regime busy for years, but he kept quiet about his own political future.

Franco, in a speech to the Falange party's national council, said economic development study for the country is in progress and assured Spanish citizens there would be no problem of succession to the post of chief of state.

Takes Possession Of New CU Flag

As a result of Saturday's win over the State College Wolfpack, UNC took possession of the new Consolidated University flag.

"We didn't think we could add to the rivalry but we did want to recognize it," said Bill Shipp, president of the Consolidated University Student Council, in explaining the creation of the symbol of State-Carolina football wars.

Made at a cost of $190, the flag contains the emblems and colors of all three institutions which comprise the Consolidated University. The seals joined are the blue and white of UNC, the red and white of State College and the gold and white of the Woman's College. The background is white and the lettering C.U.S.C. is in gold.

The flag will be displayed at key university functions and at all football games. It will remain in Chapel Hill until the 1962 Carolina-State game. The winner will then take possession for the next year. As to how Woman's College can win the flag, Shipp had this explanation, "In case of a tie... the flag will go to them."

To Stay In Race

Rayburn Sees Tax Lift

By ROBERT BARKDOLL
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Speaker Sam Rayburn said Monday that Congress will not hesitate to raise taxes if more federal revenue is needed to keep this country in the arms race with Russia.

He predicted that federal spending and tax rates would remain high as long as "reckless people have hold of weapons that are totally destructive." The United States will stay in the arms buildup just as long as Russia forces it to, he said.

Until the Berlin crisis flared up last summer, President Kennedy had looked forward to some tax cuts next year. But Commerce Secretary Luther H. Hodges said several weeks ago that the U. S. military buildup had about wiped out any chance of reductions.

SAM RAYBURN

However, Congress is scheduled to act early next year on the President's big tax revision proposals.

The most controversial feature is the proposed tax incentive for businessmen who invest in new plants and equipment.

Other parts of the plan would withhold taxes from dividends and interest, repeal the special tax credit for stockholders, limit expense accounts deductions and eliminate tax advantages for Americans living abroad.

Rayburn discussed the tax and spending outlook in a copyrighted interview in U. S. News & World Report.

Declaring that the United States must stay in the arms race with Russia as long as it lasts, Rayburn said: "If we just had to have more money—I don't think there would be anything that would prevent Congress from raising taxes in certain places."

The veteran congressman said he believed the people would pay higher taxes without great protest if they were convinced that the international situation demanded it.
