Students From 12 Schools To Run Torch Marathon Across The State

Students from 12 schools, including the three branches of the Consolidated University, will run a "Torch of Education Marathon" across the state of North Carolina Nov. 1-3.

Torch Marathon will follow this trail in its bid for bond issue support.

The purpose of the marathon, according to UNC sophomore Larry McDevitt, co-chairman of the State Affairs committee, is to draw public attention to the Nov. 7 bond issue.

The 65-hour race, stretching from Wilmington to the Great Smoky Mountains, will cover 312 miles in eastern North Carolina and 415 miles in the west.

Runners, each carrying the torch one mile, will leave from Murphy in Cherokee County and from Wilmington, meeting at the Capitol building in Raleigh on Nov. 3.

Two sound trucks, urging support of the bond issue, will accompany the runners during the march. The marathon has the okay of the State Highway Patrol and will be assisted by the radios of the Civil Air Patrol.

"Student participation in this marathon will be indicative of their support of the bond issue," said Brown. He said all such student action would contribute to the bond publicity.

He said, "Judging from the size and interest of other participating schools we are anticipating a larger amount of interest here at Carolina. The fact that UNC will receive more benefit from the bond passage than any other school should be reason enough to prod students to participate in this event."

McDevitt urged all individual students or groups from dorms, fraternities or other organizations sign up at the information office in Graham Memorial. "We have already had very much interest shown in the marathon," he said.

Over 200 students from each school except Carolina have volunteered for the marathon. UNC will be in charge of the torch from Winston-Salem, High Point, Greensboro, Burlington to Chapel Hill and Durham—a distance of 90 miles.

"If this bond issue is passed, it will be a great step forward for education in North Carolina," said McDevitt. "We hope this marathon will arouse public opinion and get them to the polls on November 7."

Girls from Woman's College will carry the torch through the city of Greensboro. Complete radio and television coverage have been obtained for the entire state.

McDevitt said that the entire basketball team from Western Carolina College has volunteered. "Fraternities, dorms and other campus groups in all the schools have pledged their aid in this marathon," he added.

Heading the UNC marathon are Charles Brown and Senior Mike McClister.

WRITING HOME—Judy Allen writes a letter home urging her family to support the Nov. 7 bond issue, which includes funds for the University. Judy O'Grady is sitting behind the table.

Bond Won't Increase Taxes, Gill Reports

The $61.6 million bond issue which goes up for approval before the state on Nov. 7 will not increase taxes, according to State Treasurer Edwin Gill. The opinion was incorporated into a pamphlet issued by the state on Thursday.

The pamphlet asks for the approval of the bond issue. Gill was quoted as saying that the state is in excellent financial condition and that bonds issued by the state carry AAA rating, the highest possible rating for securities of this type.

According to Gill the 1961 state General Assembly appropriated money to take care of debt service requirements on the bonds. This will constitute one per cent of the annual general fund appropriation.

Gill said that North Carolina would be able to market the bonds to good advantage because of its long record of fiscal integrity.

Governor Terry Sanford told reporters at his press conference on Thursday that unless there were another depression there would be no need to alter the tax structure for the next generation.

A tape recording of the NBC "Biography in Sound—Thomas Wolfe," will be played in the main reading room of the North Carolina Collection. All interested persons are invited.

The Cosmopolitan Club will meet at 4 p.m. in the Roland Parker Lounge II, G.M. All members and interested students have been invited to attend by Maurice Charpin, social chairman. Preference sheets will be given out so future activities may be selected.

The Finance Committee of Student Legislature will meet at 7 p.m. in the Student Government Office.

The Morehead Day Committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Naval Armory. A film of last year's Morehead Day program will be shown.

The YWCA orphanage committee will leave for Raleigh at 2 p.m. from Y-court.

700 Students Urge Support In Bond Vote

Seven hundred students responded to the University Party's letter-writing campaign urging voters to support the bond issue in the Nov. 7 statewide election.

A UP bond booth was set up in Y-Court Tuesday-Friday to supply students with stationery and stamps.

The issue is a proposed $61,665,000 bond, approximately one-third of which is earmarked for improvements of the state's educational institutions.

UNC students were asked by sorority girls who operated the booth to write letters home, soliciting support for the bond.

Dick Lewisohn, UP publicity chairman, pleased with response, said the letters covered every corner of the state.

Sororities involved were AD Pi, Kappa, Chi O and Tri Delta.

NO COMMENT FROM PALACE LONDON (UPI)—A Kensington Palace aide refused to comment Friday on published reports that the Duchess of Kent is expecting a baby.

VIENNA, Austria (UPI)—Indonesian President Su Karno arrived Friday to enter a hospital here for medical treatment. Informed sources said he would undergo gall bladder surgery.

games. They represented the Chi Omega 2-AFOTC team.

The carnival took up all of the main floor in Woolen Gym and also spread out into the Tin Can. After the competition was over, trophies and plaques were presented to the individual winners and to the winning teams. The entire program took three hours.

Although neither the number of teams nor the number of spectators reached last year's record proportions, Intramural Director Tom Johnson still considered it an extremely successful night.

Sparks Cause Fire

Twenty-five bales of straw were destroyed yesterday afternoon by a fire caused by sparks from an acetylene torch which was being used by workmen on Highway 64 near Glen Lennox.

The straw was used to cover the newly planted grass along the road. There was no other property damage reported.
