

CLASS ELECTIONS DECLARED INVALID

Validity Of Class Officers Is Questioned In Hot Debate

'Are You Real?' Newt Smith Asked

BY LOUISE CASAGRIN

Contesting the validity of the election of class officers, and the worth of their jobs, Senior Newt Smith and Sophomore presidential candidate Jeff Bayer faced a panel of presidential candidates in a rip-roaring roundtable discussion on WUNC's Carrier Current Thursday night.

"It's just a way of getting a picture in the Yack" and planning "happy little picnics" stated Jeff Bayer, who said he feels with no money and no function class officers are useless.

If elected Bayer would not only refuse to have his picture in the annual, but would publicly announce that he would call no meetings of his committee. This "break in tradition" would be a "dramatization of the point."

In his campaigning the candidate has found that "most for a change." However, "this is just a means to an end—we won't abolish class officers for good."

Dr. George Clarifies His Story

Dr. Wesley C. George, retired UNC anatomy professor, has denied his study for Alabama is designed to prove the Negro is inferior to the white man.

"You start out to find what the evidence leads you to," he said.

Admitting that he is making a study for the state, he said officials have "never talked of proving anything." "We talked in terms of what science has to contribute to this problem. If science has anything to bear, we'll bring it out."

Roy Wilkins, NAACP executive secretary, said yesterday in New York, "Is Gov. John Patterson confessing, through the initiation of this study, that for all these decades the segregation policy of the state of Alabama has been based upon guesswork?" Patterson has made $3,000 available for the study.

Prof. George, the author of several booklets on race and its implications, has spent more than 20 years studying the differences between races.

"We have here in this country a racial problem . . . one of the most fundamental issues that confronts the American people," George said. "If we are going to arrive at a proper judgment in understanding the fundamental nature we are dealing with, we are going to have to discover what the fundamental nature is."

FINGER-PAINTING

A finger-painting festival exhibit and sale will be held in the garden of Ruth Faison Shaw, Estes Drive, today and Sunday from 12-5 p.m. The exhibit will include "paintings by world-famous personalities including Gertrude Lawrence." Coffee will be served. The Shaw house on Estes Drive is described as "the first on the right."

Tennessee Alumnus

Sen. E. Kefauver Here To See Game

U.S. Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee will be in Chapel Hill today to watch the game in Kenan stadium between the Volunteers and the Tar Heels. The senator and his family arrived last night by plane and will eat lunch with President William Friday today.

According to the senator, the main reason for his visit is to see his daughter, Linda, who is a student here. Linda is a junior Art History major and lives in Alderman dormitory. She and her date, Ray Francis, will accompany her father and family to the game, and they will be sitting on the visitors' side.

Senator Kefauver, an alumnus of the University of Tennessee, was a member of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity. After the game the senator and his family will visit the Kappa Sigma chapter here in the little fraternity court.

Senator Kefauver has been in the U.S. Senate since 1948, and was the Democratic nominee for vice-president in 1956.

TRAVELING SPACE SHOW—A mobile science demonstration unit sponsored by the Department of Air Science will present two 50-minute programs here Thursday. The programs to be held at 12 and 2 p.m. in Memorial Hall, will include models of satellite launch vehicles, space probes and other electronic devices used in space experiments.

Council's Decision Changes Little In Election Procedure

DTH Comment

Student Council's decision to declare the Election Law B W-29-14, invalid, has thrown the campus, especially the candidates in the coming election, into a terrible confusion.

The decision by the Council actually has changed very little. It means that the election will be conducted according to the previous election law, BW-25-30, and the subsequent amendments to that law, or Constitutional amendments which supercede it.

The most important change occurs in the date of the election. The invalid Election Law stated that the election would occur the first Tuesday of November. The older law which declares the date of the election as the second Tuesday in November now holds.

This, of course, will affect the candidates' campaign plans, and those who have spent their allotted amount will suffer. The extension of time may swing the election to the SP side, who will have more time to set up dorm support, but this advantage will be lost in other differences in election procedure.

The old election law differs in the allotment of campaign expenditures to parties, stating that the parties may spend up to $100 in the campaign and $20 in the run-offs. This will probably aid the UP in their chances of swinging the election. Their treasury boasts a surplus whereas the SP's cannot afford much more than the expected $40 of the invalidated election law.

There is also a change in the qualifications required of the candidates. The candidates are required to have earned at least 25 hours in the two semesters preceding the election, in addition to the C average. It is not known whether this will affect any of the candidates; Dave Buxton, Elections Board chairman, said that it probably would not.

"The candidates will have to turn in their Expense Account at 6 p.m. Monday, which is still at the $15 maximum amount."

Buxton said that the request for the absentee ballots must be turned in by 5 p.m. Friday due to the change. He also announced that the poll-tenders would have to attend a meeting to be announced at a later date. "Anyone who wishes a copy of the old election law, BW-25-30, should come by the Student Government office," said Buxton.

In the actual procedures of the election there are some minor changes. There will be a change in the polling places, but Buxton has not commented how this will be done.

In an administrative decision, Buxton said: "Because there are no clear geographic areas for the Judicial Districts, we will follow the Men's and Women's Judicial Districts as stated in General Elections Law BW-29-14.

The only other change this invalidation procedure will cause will be the effect the controversy has aroused in the student body opinion. Probably, the fact that the invalid law was proposed, passed and signed by members of the UP will cause some beneficial effect on the SP's chances. However, the SP will be hurt because of the economic advantage granted the UP in the old election law.

In effect the disruption caused by the invalidation of the General Elections Law will be negligible. The campaign will last longer and the issues will be re-hashed. However, both parties stand to gain. Reverting to the old elections law will probably insure a close campaign, giving no appreciable advantage to either Party.

Election Is Slated For November 14

The Student Council declared the General Election Law invalid late Thursday night on the grounds that the law never legally passed the Student Legislature.

This decision brings into effect the previous election law; therefore, moving the election of class officers from this Tuesday to Tuesday, Nov. 14.

The Council, acting on an appeal by Senior Newt Smith, ruled that "there is no evidence which can in any way verify its passage as a law under Robert's Rules of Order or any special provisions."

Smith presented the minutes of the Student Legislature as evidence of his contention that the final copy of the elections law had never been voted upon.

Defending the validity of the law, John Randall, parliamentarian of the legislature, presented a statement from Bob Sevier, Sevier, vice-president and presiding officer of the legislature when the law was brought up, said the law had been passed.

Smith, however, presented testimony from two legislators also present who said they had no recollection of its passage. He also quoted from the minutes.

According to the minutes of the legislature, the General Elections Law was brought before the legislature for final consideration on October 6, 1960. It passed by a vote of 17 to 2 after the addition of several amendments.

Smith claimed that a quorum (26 members) was not present at that vote, but Randall explained that the law was still valid since no one challenged its validity at that time.

On October 13, the bill was brought up for reconsideration by Rep. Oppenheimer. The reconsideration was granted and several amendments voted into the bill. A bill was then introduced concerning funds for the Toronto exchange, and the legislature continued business without voting on the final version of the elections bill.

Smith claimed that once the bill was accepted for reconsideration, it was no longer considered passed and must be passed again to become law. The Council upheld this interpretation.

Earlier in the Student Council session, Smith had argued that the now invalid general Elections Law did not contain any provision for the election of Junior class officers. The Council did not rule on this contention since the later ruling invalidated the whole law.

Council Chairman Tom Cannon said that Smith's appeal on the Junior class officers case did not enter into the council's decision on the law as a whole.

Randall also argued against Smith on the Junior class officers issue. The parliamentarian said that the law originally passed by the legislature contained provision for the Junior elections and that their omission in the version signed by Vice-President Bob Sevier and President David Grigg was only a typographical mistake.

Marathon Ends In Raleigh

The "Torch for Education" marathon ended yesterday morning at 11:55 in downtown Raleigh before the Charles B. Aycock Memorial in Capitol Square.

A student from North Carolina College and one from N.C. State ran the final mile ending the 700-mile marathon which began at the mountains and the sea.

Several hundred students from 12 state-supported schools participated in the marathon which was designed to gain support for the upcoming $61.7 million statewide bond issue referendum on November 7. The issue carries a large portion designated for capital improvements for the state-supported colleges.

Two teams, starting from Wilmington on the sea, and Murphy in the mountains, carried the kerosene-filled torch the 700 miles in about 70 hours.

Meeting the students at the Aycock Memorial, Gov. Terry Sanford told the crowd gathered there, "I want to thank all of these student representatives who have participated in carrying to the people of North Carolina this message of the importance of new expansion of institutions of higher education."

"We have an opportunity to move forward," Sanford said, "if we are going to lead the nation in education we have to be prepared." Sanford said he felt the bond issue would be approved at the polls.

TV Show Honors John M. Morehead

Governor Terry Sanford and Chancellor William Aycock were among the participants featured over WUNC-TV last night in celebratory luncheon. Officers from 16 countries enrolled in Special Warfare Center at Fort Bragg, N. C., will be visiting.

Student Body President Bill Harris was master of ceremonies of the program which included Scott Summers and Dennis Rash, both Morehead Scholars.

Gov. Sanford, appearing on tape, called attention to the "invaluable" enhancement of Carolina's educational program by Mr. Morehead's contributions, especially the Morehead Scholarship Program.

Chancellor Aycock, referring to the Morehead Scholarship Program, noted "he created this formula—his resources—plus young men of promise—plus the University of N.C.—and then proceeded to mix these ingredients to produce an effective solution for providing the leadership he visualized."

The Men's Glee Club, directed by Dr. Joel Carter, added a musical touch with their renditions of the "Old North State," the "Carolina Loyalty Song," and "Hark the Sound."

The following Morehead Scholars who lead various campus activities were introduced on the program: Bob Bilbro, Tim Burnett, George Campbell, Al Cronenberg, Allen Eure, Doug Fambrough, Tony Harrington, Al Roper, Pope Shuford, Bill Sullivan, Tom White and Ward Purrington.

Openings & Interviews

Professor Leroy F. Merrifield of George Washington University Law School will be here Tuesday to interview prospective students for the law school. Several scholarships are available. For further information contact Dr. Gordon Cleveland in South Building.

The following companies will be interviewing on the campus next week:

Correction

During the 1958 Symposium, Harry Ashmore did not defend segregation but attacked it. He won a Pulitzer Prize for his articles on integration. The DTH regrets this error.

From 13 Countries

64 Allied Officers Touring Campus

Sixty-four allied officers from 13 countries will tour the UNC campus today. During their stay, the officers will view a program in the Morehead Planetarium, tour the Institute of Government and attend the UNC-Tennessee game.

The officers, many of them from southeast Asia, have been attending special classes at Ft. Bragg on unconventional warfare and counter-insurgency operations since early October.

Dean of the Faculty James L. Godfrey, who will meet the group, said it was "good to see friends from abroad when they can visit us. We hope their stay in this country has been good and that their visit to UNC will be a happy one."

During their tour, the officers will be guided by seven to ten UNC students, some of whom speak Spanish, French and possibly Vietnamese.

Nations represented by the officers are Canada, Germany, Italy, Korea, Nicaragua, Norway, Republic of China, Thailand, Vietnam, Argentina, Australia, Bolivia, India, Great Britain, Indonesia, Lebanon, Pakistan and the Philippines.
