

'It's Not Sufficient To Endorse The Status Quo,'—Aycock

An address by William B. Aycock, Chancellor of the University at Chapel Hill, in connection with the State-wide bond issue on Nov. 7.

The bond election to be held on November 7, 1961, will pass if the people of the State are adequately informed on the issues involved. The purpose of the state-wide bond election is to provide essential capital improvements for several state agencies and institutions. The ten items to be voted on involve an initial outlay of $61,665,000. But this is not the full picture.

Item 6 to provide $13,500,000 for the development of our ports in Wilmington and Morehead City is in reality a loan which is to be repaid from port receipts. Thus the ultimate expenditure from state tax sources will not be $61,665,000, but only $48,165,000.

Another important point is that several projects in item 3 (Higher Education) and item 4 (Community Colleges) must secure matching funds in order to qualify for support from the bond issue. Matching funds of not less than $12,200,000 will be required. Consequently, the total value of the capital improvements program is approximately $73,000,000 rather than $61,665,000. This program involving over 200 specific projects has been carefully screened by the Advisory Budget Commission and approved by the North Carolina General Assembly. The basic issue on November 7, 1961, is whether or not we concur in the judgment of our elected representatives in the need for a capital improvements program of $73,000,000 which will require an initial investment by the State of $61,665,000 but an ultimate tax expenditure of over $48,165,000.

Can the State of North Carolina afford this investment? It has been stated forthrightly by state officials that the credit rating of the State is high and that low interest rates on the bonds would be secured. Also it has been asserted that the present tax structure is broad enough to retire the bonds in an orderly manner without the necessity for a tax increase. Regardless of political or economic views we—as North Carolinians—must agree that members of the General Assembly and the executive branch of our State Government have through the years proved highly responsible in fiscal matters.

A bond issue for a growing State is comparable to borrowing by an individual with a growing family. A person with a good credit rating and a steady income often finds that the only feasible way to finance a new home or a growing business is to borrow. So it is with a growing and developing state. In the past when the people of North Carolina have invested in the future of the State, the decision proved to be a wise one.

Over two-thirds of the proposed capital improvements is for education in some form. Item 2 (State Training Schools), Item 3 (Higher Education), Item 4 (Community

Race Measure Tabled By SG

Financial Bill Is Withdrawn

A resolution which would have voiced support for complete racial integration of downtown theaters was tabled by Student Legislature Thursday night after considerable debate.

Although one of the theaters has admitted Negro students, there is no clear policy on the matter, Tim Tellow, sponsor of the bill, said in debate.

The motion to table was made by Bill Whichard, a supporter of the bill who used the move to test the chances of the bill's passing. In effect, opponents of the bill voted to table, proving that had the bill been submitted for a vote it would have met defeat.

Another controversial proposal, to appropriate $300 to reimburse the Orientation Committee for a dance held this fall, was withdrawn by its sponsor, Bill Criswell.

The bill will be rewritten and submitted. In its new form the bill will state what funds the Orientation Committee will need to continue this year's program. The proposal had been criticized by opponents who claimed that if passed in its original form the bill might indicate Legislative approval of spending funds and then expecting the body to meet the bills.

Asks $155
A bill asking for $155 for Student Government offices was returned for further study to the Finance Committee.

A bill which clarifies and expands the powers of the Rules Committee was passed by voice vote.

In other action at the session, Finance Committee Chairman Arthur Merrill announced a permanent weekly meeting time of 8:30 Mondays. Rules Committee will meet Monday at 5 p.m.

Ben-Gurion's Aide Speaks Monday

Zvi (Harry) Zinder, public affairs advisor to Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion of Israel, will speak Monday night at 8 in Howell Hall.

Zinder, a native American and graduate of Northwestern University, will speak on "Turmoil in the Middle East." Beginning in 1936, Zinder covered Palestine, Syria and Lebanon for AP, and later became Middle East war correspondent for Time and Life at its Cairo headquarters. During the war he covered both the China-Burma-India and European theatres of war.

On the eve of the establishment of the Jewish State of Israel, Zinder joined the staff of the Jewish Agency in Washington, which was to become the first Embassy of Israel. He remained at the Embassy until 1950 as Public Relations and Information Officer and later became Press and Public Relations Officer of the Israel Delegation to the UN.

Zinder returned to Israel in 1954 as Director of the Press and Information Office of the Government and served as Director of the Israel Broadcasting Service, establishing the country's modern broadcasting network.

At the end of 1960 he assumed the post of Adviser to the Prime Minister on Public Affairs.

Chemistry Grant Is Set Up

The R. O. E. Davis fellowship in chemistry has been established at UNC through a $10,000 bequest in the will of Mrs. R. O. E. Davis.

The fellowship was named for her husband, Royall Oscar Eugene Davis, recognizing his interest in sciences in the University here.

Mrs. Davis was the former Birdie Pickard, native of Chapel Hill and a graduate of the University in 1902. She died here June 25, 1961. She lived at the Carolina Inn several years after the death of her husband in 1949. They were married in Chapel Hill in 1906.

The fellowship, according to Chancellor William B. Aycock, will be awarded annually to a student who is adjudged as outstanding in chemistry.

Mr. Davis was a member of the class of 1901, and received the Ph.D. in chemistry in 1903. He taught chemistry at the University here and later became a chemist for the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, D. C.

Fallout Shelters Panel Set Monday

The Chapel Hill-Durham Branch of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom will sponsor a panel discussion on the studio in Swain Hall on the UNC campus at 8:30 p.m. Monday.

The studio will accommodate from 75 to 100 persons and audience participation is invited.

Mrs. Wayne A. Bowers, chairman of this meeting, will introduce the following panel: Moderator, Dr. Donald Irish, formerly on the faculty at Ohio Wesleyan, and now at UNC working on a three-year Research Grant in the Institute for Research in Social Science.

Panel speakers, the Rev. Vance Barron, pastor of the Chapel Hill Presbyterian Church, who has had a long-standing interest in this question; Dr. Warner Lee Wells, professor of surgery at Memorial Hospital, who served with the Atomic Energy Commission in Hiroshima, Japan, from January 1950 to June 1952, and who translated the book "Hiroshima Diary" written by a Japanese doctor.

Dr. Emil Chanlett, Professor of Sanitary Engineering in the University, and Director of a Training Program for Radiological Health Specialists in the School of Public Health; and W. G. Wren of Hillsboro, Veterans' Service Officer for Orange County, as well as Director of Civil Defense for Orange County.

The public is invited to attend.

UNC Student Injured

UNC student Norwood G. Clark, Jr., 19, was admitted to N. C. Memorial Hospital with a badly bruised left arm yesterday authorities said, after he was struck by a car while crossing Raleigh street near Lewis Dorn.

Chapel Hill police said the accident, investigated by Campus Police Chief Arthur Beaumont, occurred shortly before 5 p.m. Authorities said Clark, who lives at 204 Graham, apparently ran between a bus and a car into the traffic lane, where he was struck by a car driven by UNC student Zebulun Ward May. Police said no charges would be filed against the driver.

Hospital authorities said Clark is in satisfactory condition. They said X-rays showed his arm, although badly bruised and scraped, was not broken.

Music Group Honored

The local chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia music fraternity was selected by its national office as the outstanding chapter in its province.

The award came last Tuesday at the province convention held here at UNC.

This plaque is the second in the past year for Alpha Rho chapter. At the fraternity's national convention in 1960, it was the winner of this area's manpower award. This area consists of chapters from South Carolina, Furman, William and Mary, East Carolina and Davidson.

The outstanding chapter award is for the past year, during which Jay Lambeth was president. Presiding now is Bob Greason, who is also president of the band.

NEHRU HITS BOMB TESTS

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru said Saturday the resumption of Soviet nuclear tests was an evil thing and that it "is of the utmost importance to put an end to all nuclear tests by formal treaty."

The explosion of the big Soviet bomb "shocked us," he told reporters at London Airport where he arrived from India en route to the United States and talks this weekend at Newport, R. I., with President Kennedy.
