SLUSH - Snowplow on Cameron Avenue.

Driving Easier This Year After The Heavy Snowfall

Two things made driving easier in Chapel Hill after the last snowfall. The first was the new Chapel Hill snow ordinance and the second was the work of Mr. Shelton Womble, Superintendent of Public Works for the town of Chapel Hill.

Since Chapel Hill does not get many large snowfalls, there is no need for having a storage of equipment designed specially for the purpose. Chapel Hill uses two truck-plows and two road graders to plow their snow. All this equipment is used during the year for regular road work.

Standby Crew

The road crew of four men is kept on standby in case of snow or when snow is expected. They have a supply of sand and calcium chloride for icy roads. The men are regular employees of the Public Works Department.

The new ordinance states that there will be no parking in the Chapel Hill Fire District after a two-inch or greater snowfall accumulates. The Fire District includes Rosemary and Franklin streets from Spring Lane west to Carrboro city limits and all crossing streets.

This facilitates work for Mr. Womble and his crew when they must plow the entire street up to the curb. The men are authorized to move automobiles if they are parked and blocking the plows. The owner of the car must pay tow costs.

Cooperation of People

"Drivers in town," Mr. Womble stated, "should not park in the town Fire District when it is snowing or when there is a chance of snow. When the plows go to work, the signs for no parking will be put up and their cars may be towed away."

Mr. Womble, an employee of the city of Chapel Hill for 14 years, stated that, "The people cooperated very well during this last snowfall and got their cars out of the way almost as soon as the signs were up."

The Public Works Department, which controls the cemetery, sewer and sanitation works also, hires private equipment when the snow gets deeper than five or six inches. A road tractor is then used to hoist the snow into dump trucks and have it carried away.

New Snow Plow

The department, according to Mr. Womble, is better equipped than ever but he hopes to purchase a new truck plow, at the cost of $750, during this year. He feels that this past snow removal was the best job that has ever been done.

In cost, the snow removal varies from time to time according to the size of the snowfall. This particular job cost about $200 and, Mr. Womble added, "about $150 of that cost was for labor and gasoline."

McNamara To Eye Aid To Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara will make a series of monthly trips to Hawaii to personally supervise increased U. S. aid to meet the mounting Communist threat to South Viet Nam, it was announced Friday.

McNamara, who will make his first rush flight Sunday to Pacific fleet headquarters, was described by a spokesman as determined that "no stone be left unturned" in helping the South Vietnamese against Viet Cong Communist guerrillas.

The secretary's trip was disclosed after Frederick E. Nolting, Jr., U. S. Ambassador to South Viet Nam gave President Kennedy a first-hand report on the worsening situation in the tiny Southeast Asian country.

The State Department said no immediate new crisis prompted McNamara's trip. Rather it is part of increased U. S. efforts to deal with a situation in which Communist-led guerrillas have been stepping up their raids against South Viet Nam.

In a related development, the department announced that Averell Harriman, assistant secretary of state for the Far East, would fly to Geneva this weekend for meetings early next week between the three rival princes of Laos. The princes are trying to work out a coalition government.

At the same time, the department announced that it had resumed U. S. financial aid to the government of Prince Boun Oum by forwarding a $3 million check for January. Aid was held up after Boun Oum broke up a meeting between the three princes in Vientiane, the Laotian capital, several weeks ago.

McNamara was scheduled to leave Washington for Hawaii Sunday afternoon and be back Tuesday to prepare for congressional hearings on the defense budget.

Accompanying him will be Nolting; Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and a group of other top advisers on southeast Asia.

Thompson, Gromyko Battle

MOSCOW (UPI) - U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko held their second sparring round on Berlin Friday and indications were the three-hour session was a tough one.

The two men met in Gromyko's office in the skyscraper building housing the foreign ministry. This session was 40 minutes longer than Thompson's first probe of Soviet intentions on Berlin Jan. 2.

There was no official statement after the meeting. Thompson simply confirmed that it was a continuation of the probing for avenues of reaching agreement with the Soviets on Berlin and Germany. Asked whether he was optimistic or pessimistic, he commented: "I don't think I can say anything."

Thompson said he would send a report on the meeting to Washington at once. He also was expected to brief the British, French and West German ambassadors as he did after the first meeting with Gromyko.

ECONOMICS SEMINAR

Donald W. Taylor, Yale University psychology professor, will speak on "Problem Solving and Decision Making" at a UNC seminar in economics and business at 4 p.m. this Wednesday in the faculty seminar room on the third floor of Carroll Hall.

Laos Receives Aid After Short Delay

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) - The Laotian government of Premier Prince Boun Oum Friday received its monthly aid allotment of $4 million from the United States after a 12-day delay.

At the same time, it was announced that Boun Oum would leave Sunday for Geneva for talks with the neutralist and pro-Communist Laotian princes on formation of a coalition government.

Although neither Laotian nor American officials would comment, the decision to release the funds was believed prompted by Boun Oum's acceptance of the invitation from the 14-nation conference on Laos to meet in the Swiss city with neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma and Prince Souphanouvong of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao.

The United States was known to have been disturbed by the collapse of scheduled princely talks here last month. The breakdown generally was blamed on the insistence of Boun Oum's right-wing faction that it retain the key defense and interior ministries in a future coalition regime.

The delay in releasing the funds stirred speculation that the United States was applying economic pressures to break the impasse and speed a solution to the Laotian crisis.

While Boun Oum will go to Geneva, it was made clear the right-wing faction intended to maintain its tough attitude.

Deputy Premier Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, the recognized strongman in the Boun Oum regime, declared in a belligerent speech this week that the government will not give up its fight to keep the defense and interior police posts. Phoumi will go to Geneva with Boun Oum.

Souvanna and Souphanouvong also have accepted the invitations from Britain and Russia, co-chairmen of the conference in Geneva. Souvanna is in Europe. The Communist Chinese news agency said Souphanouvong will leave rebel headquarters in the Plain of Jars for Geneva "very shortly."

Peiping radio also broadcast claims by the Pathet Lao that the rebel forces had "routed" three government battalions in fighting at Muong Sai in northwestern Laos. The rebels also said there had been fighting in other areas during the "past fortnight." The communist rebels claimed 100 government troops were killed and 30 taken prisoners while "others" surrendered.

GINA LOLLOBRIGIDA

'Never So Few' Tonight's Flick With F. Sinatra

Tonight's Free Flick features "Never So Few" starring Frank Sinatra, Gina Lollobrigida, Peter Lawford, and Brian Donlevy.

The story involves an American Army captain, played by Frank Sinatra, who leads a handful of guerrilla troops against overwhelming Japanese forces during World War II.

The plot is complicated by the captain's diplomatic battle with his military superiors and the competition for his luxury loving mistress in Calcutta (Gina Lollobrigida).

The movie will be presented in Carroll Hall at 7:30 and 9:30. Students must show I. cards.

No smoking or refreshments are allowed in the auditorium.

The UNC Student Wives will meet Tuesday evening at 8:00 on the second floor of Graham Memorial for an End of the Fall Semester party. Featured will be Bridge, entertainment by members of the club, and lessons on the Twist and the Limbo.

The UNC School of Public Health will present a program on "Ions in the Atmosphere—Do They Affect Man's Health?" at 10 a.m. on January 13. Dr. David A. Fraser of the school's Department of Sanitary Engineering will speak in the Public Health building.

Protests Expected From Army Brass

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The administration will announce next Tuesday a shakeup in the Army department so controversial it is certain to bring protests from Army officers and meet criticism in Congress.

Contemplated for years, the reorganization is one that former Defense Secretary Robert A. Lovett once said it would be no more painful for government leaders than backing into a buzz saw. But he agreed it should be carried out.

The final plan was developed by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and approved by President Kennedy. Chiefly affected are such old line technical services as the ordnance, chemical, quartermaster, signal and transportation corps.

Asked about the plan, a Defense Department spokesman said the Army would "have something to say about this" Tuesday.

Draws Sharp Protest

Some details of the plan have been leaking out for weeks. The authoritative Army - Navy - Air Force Journal said Friday that the reorganization already had "drawn sharp protests from a number of senior officers."

The office of the chief of engineers, which is responsible for civilian and military construction projects, and the office of the surgeon general, will hold their own. But other technical services will disappear or be absorbed in new commands.

The plan calls for two new commands—material development and logistics command, and combat and combat developments command. The continental Army command will take over nearly all training including that now conducted by technical services.

Just before he left office in 1952, Lovett sent a memorandum then President Harry S. Truman in which he said the technical services overlapped and complicated the problem of administration and control.

Lovett said he was amazed that the system worked at all, and added: "A reorganization of the technical services would be no more painful than backing into a buzz-saw but I believe that it is long overdue."

Graduated In 1916, '18 Two Carolina Men Retiring In June

Chancellor Emeritus Robert B. House will retire from teaching at the end of the current academic year and Albert M. Coates will retire as director of the Institute of Government, although he will continue his duties as a Law School professor.

Their retirement, along with that of four other prominent UNC faculty members, was announced by Chancellor William B. Aycock following a meeting of the Board of Trustees' executive committee this week.

Chancellor House retired from his administrative duties as required by the state regulations that University administrators must retire at the age of 65 but may continue to teach until the age of 70. Since then he has taught classes in classics and English.

Mr. Coates founded the Institute of Government in 1931 and has served as its director since that time. He graduated from UNC in 1918 and joined the Law School here in 1923 after receiving a law degree from Harvard.

Mr. House graduated from UNC in 1916 and received the M. A. degree from Harvard. He held major administrative posts from 1926 until 1957.

The four other professors whose retirements were announced at the same time are Dr. John W. Lasley Jr., Dr. Milton S. Heath, Mar-

Longest Teaching Career

Dr. Lasley, a professor in the mathematics department, has a longer teaching career than any other member of the faculty. He entered the University in 1906 at the age of 14. He became an instructor upon his graduation and later received the M.A. degree here and the Ph.D. at the University of Chicago. He also studied at John Hopkins University. He is

Student-Faculty Seminar Slated For This Monday

The first in a series of student-faculty seminars of the School of Public Health, on Public Health and Medical Care Administration, will be held here Monday.

The guest speaker will be Dr. L. S. Goerke, associate dean of the School of Public Health of the University of California at Los Angeles. His subject will be "Medical Care, Southern California Variety."

The program will be held in the Assembly Room of the Louis R. Wilson Library at 3 p.m. The public is invited.

This particular program is sponsored by the Departments of Epidemiology and Parasitology of the UNC School of Public Health.

The next seminar in the series will be held on Feb. 12. At that time, Dr. Cecil Sheps, professor of medical and hospital administration of the Graduate School of Public Health, University of Pittsburgh, will be guest speaker.

'Country Only Weak As Fears' AFROTC Told

"Our country is only as strong as the hopes or as weak as the fears of its people," Chaplain Oscar L. Sylwester, Capt. USAF, told AFROTC cadets Thursday.

Chaplain Sylwester's speech "Dynamics of Spiritual Leadership," was delivered during the unit's Leadership Laboratory. Sylwester is Chaplain at Pope Air Force Base at Fayetteville.

The cadets, as future leaders of men were challenged to bring out what "no firing squad can kill," to "bring out what is within."

Battle for Minds

The true conflict is not between Communism and the West, the Chaplain emphasized, but is a "battle for the mind." Communism is an attempt to "denature man," he stated, and it seeks to break down the "moral fabric of man."

Sylwester commented that while "990 million people and one-third of the earth's surface are under Communist control, only 3 1/2 per cent of Russians are Communists."

Belgian Airliner On Way Home

MOSCOW—A Belgian Sabena Airliner forced down over Soviet territory by Mig jets Monday with 18 passengers aboard arrived Friday en route to Brussels.

Pilot Freddy Moureau confirmed that a defective radio compass caused the plane to stray off course on a flight from Tehran to Istanbul and said it had been repaired with the help of Soviet technicians.

Drastic Plan Possible In Algeria

PARIS—Government sources said Friday France is planning drastic measures to combat growing chaos and bloodshed in Algeria.

The death toll exceeds 170 in the strife between Europeans and Moslems since New Year's Day. Government officials were concerned over the possibility of civil war.

Pakistan Asks UN Hearing

UNITED NATIONS—Pakistan Friday requested that the Security Council again consider the Indo-Pakistani dispute over Kashmir as a threat to international peace.

A U.N. spokesman said that a date for the council meeting will not be set until next Monday, when the 18th General Assembly reconvenes following the holiday recess.

Two Biggest Railroads Merge

NEW YORK—The nation's two biggest railroads—the Pennsylvania and the New York Central—announced Friday plans to merge, subject to government approval, into a $5.5 billion transportation system. The Interstate Commerce Commission ICC, which must pass on all rail consolidation, was certain to take a long and hard look at a merger that would create by far the largest rail network in the country.
