Two Dorms Scheduled For Freshmen Only

Ehringhaus, Ruffin Picked In Experiment

By JOE HODGES

"Next fall we will begin an 'experimental year' in the dormitories, trying some new ideas which have been suggested," Assistant Dean of Student Affairs William G. Long announced yesterday.

Reservations Changeable

Housing Director James Wadsworth has announced that anyone who made a room reservation prior to the announcement yesterday of a new housing assignment system may change their reservation by applying at the Housing Office.

At the top of the list of ideas on the experimental plan, is the establishment of two dorms which will be exclusively for freshmen except for resident advisors and IDC representatives. These two dorms will be Ehringhaus and Ruffin.

Conner, Carr, and floors five and six of Craig will be reserved for post-graduates. The two floors of Craig are especially for students in such fields as medicine and dentistry, since Craig is near the hospital complex.

Five Quiet Dorms

In response to several requests, including a petition from over 200 freshmen, five dorms will be designated Quiet Dormitories. These dorms, Battle-Vance-Pettigrew, Old East, Old West, Grimes and Mangum will function under the premise that "a person will voluntarily remove his presence when objected to by other residents" because of loud and unruly conduct. Grimes and Mangum will be the only quiet dorms open to freshmen.

Other dorms will still be expected to observe quiet hours but violators will be subject to IDC jurisdiction.

Avery, Parker and Teague will be closed to freshmen but the remaining dorms, including the first four floors of Craig will be open to all four classes.

No Overcrowding

"Although Cobb will be converted to a women's dormitory, the addition of Carr, Craig, and Ehringhaus will mean, generally speaking, that there will be no overcrowding," said Dean Long. "Because of expected attrition, there will be a slight amount of overcrowding for the first semester. It will not be equivalent to that experienced prior to the change, however."

"All of these new ideas, being tried on a purely experimental basis, are designed to make the dormitory a more livable place with increased dorm spirit and improved general morale. We feel that these theories deserve to be tried and tested before a permanent policy is established," he concluded.

Judicial Group Work

Long, Students Discuss Codification Of Codes

Ideas Offered To Committee

By LEE FERRELL And RICHARD BURNS

Assistant Dean of Student Affairs William Long met yesterday afternoon with the Judicial Committee to discuss systematizing of procedures in Men's and Women's Honor Councils.

An open hearing on the codification bill will be held tonight in the Grail Room at Graham Memorial at 7. All students are invited to attend.

The Judicial Committee is currently working on a legislative bill for codification of procedures in Men's and Women's Honor Councils.

Suggestions

Dean Long said that on the whole, there was no major criticism to the work of the Judicial Committee; however, he felt that he had several ideas which should be added.

One was that Central Records should be notified at the same time that the student is notified of his violation. This would prevent a student from getting an "unblemished" copy of his record for future use.

Long said that five character witnesses for a defendant is too many. Character witnesses, he said, are not to determine whether or not the defendant is innocent or guilty, but to determine the seriousness of the sentence. Long feels that too many character witnesses might cloud the case up with irrelevant facts.

Records Too Concise

Records of case proceedings have been too concise in the past, said Long. All pertinent information should be included in these records.

A need for the recording of court procedures was expressed both by the committee and by Dean Long. Suggestions were made for the purchase of a tape recorder to be used during council trials.

Hank Patterson, a member of the committee, asked if tape recordings of the trials would be beneficial in case of appeal. Long said yes, providing that sound problems could be overcome.

Responsibility

Long felt that Men's Councils should be responsible for verdicts and sentences, and leave the definition of the sentences to the administration.

He said that conferences such as this were good because communications between students and administration could be direct.

Dean Long said he felt that the action of the students in council trials should not be contingent on what the University will do. He feared that the circumstances of the student might cause partiality on the part of the council.

In the cases where an appeal is made, Dean Long suggested that the student be required to notify the administration within 24 hours of his conviction, that he will appeal. The bill states that the student must submit a written request for an appeal within 92 hours.

Dean Long criticized the bill in that he felt it made disciplinary procedures too complicated and cumbersome. The committee felt, however, that stated motions were essential for uniform procedure.

Symposium Nearly Financially Stable

The 1962 Carolina symposium now is approaching a financially stable position. Dennis Rash, Treasurer for the Symposium, reports that the "break-even" point has been reached... provided that the bulk of the contributions pledged are honored.

Dennis further states that this year the Symposium has received the best financial support since its formation, with many organizations contributing as much as one dollar per member.

Few students realize the tremendous financial undertaking which the Carolina Symposium represents. The projected budget was in the vicinity of $10,000, but will probably be a good deal less. All of this money comes from contributions made by students, campus organizations, and members of the surrounding community.

No Men's Dorms

To date, sizeable contributions have been made or pledged by several Women's Dormitories: Alderman, Carr, McIver, Nurses' Dorm, Smith, Spencer, and Whitehead. All Sororities have contributed substantially, but no Men's Dorms have been heard from as a whole... yet!

Rash said response has been outstandingly good by a number of fraternities: ATO, Beta, DKE, KA, Kappa Sig, Lambda Chi, Phi Delt, Pi Kappa, SAE, Sigma Chi, St. Anthony, and ZBT.

The Art, Journalism, and RTVMP Departments have helped a great deal financially and with advice, as well as The Falk Foundation of Political Science.

Ciardi At Duke

Poet Cites 'Duty To Hate'

By GARRY BLANCHARD

Speaking at Duke University Tuesday night, poet John Ciardi said the trouble with national patriotism is that "there is inherent in patriotism the duty to hate. And hate is a frustrating and a warping emotion."

"Unless we solve this problem of nationalism — the feeling that I hate you because you were born on the other side of the world — we're going to blow ourselves to pieces."

"The world has shrunk into one neighborhood," said the poetry editor of Saturday Review magazine. "We must either be citizens of the world or we have to learn to hate on demand."

Speaking on "The Poet and Society" at Duke's third annual student symposium, Ciardi declared the principal pressure poets — and every one — have to cope with is "Big Daddy in Washington — big, paternalistic government."

Ciardi said this situation is caused by "population pressures... neighbors... too many of them."

"The more densely settled we become, the more we need to be licensed. The danger is that this leads to too much regulation, and if we get into the habit of too much regulation, we begin to lose our freedom of mind."

Ciardi said he realizes "a great amount of regulation is necessary — but only as a necessary evil," because regulation "leads to the growth of government and Big Daddy in Washington."

"We're getting more and more government," he said, and this breeds "more and more bureaucrats, more and more forms to fill out, and more and more policing of thought."

This situation, he said, "has made protest unfashionable."

Ciardi said his own protests often have taken the form of signing petitions, which have caused a dossier on him to be compiled in official Washington. He added he was rather pleased with the evaluation stamped on his dossier: "Foolish But Loyal."

Billy Graham To Be Here Thursday

By RICHARD BURNS

Evangelist Billy Graham will be at UNC on Thursday, March 15 in a visit which will include a press conference, a luncheon in his honor, a reception at Graham Memorial, and an address to the student body.

His visit here is being sponsored by the Billy Graham Committee, a special branch of the Religious Emphasis Committee of the YWCA. The main purpose of the Religious Committee is "to emphasize the 'C' in the YWCA" according to Chairman Mary Sue Simpson. Committee officials feel they can do this by bringing the students in contact with the most outstanding spokesman of their faith.

The hope that Graham can give the students "something to think about concerning the relationship between religion and problems on the international as well as individual level."

'World Dilemma'

At 10:00 a.m. Graham will hold an open press conference in the main lounge of Graham Memorial. A luncheon will be given in his honor at 12:30 in the Carolina Inn which will be attended by about 30 students and about 15 faculty and clergy.

He will address the student body on the subject of "The Answer to the World's Dilemma" at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall. Following the address, students will be given the opportunity to meet Graham in a reception which will be held in the main lounge of GM from 9 to 10 p.m.

Admission to the address at Memorial Hall will be by ID card until 7:45 p.m. At that time the general public will be admitted. Faculty members may secure admission cards at the Y building.

Last Visit

Graham's last visit to UNC was ten years ago as described as very successful by a committee official. At that time he declared that there was a great religious revival among college students throughout the country.

The 43-year old evangelist, a native of Charlotte, N. C., has recently returned from a seven-month Latin American tour. His half-hour radio program, "The Hour of Decision," is broadcast every Sunday over nationwide networks. Additional shortwave stations in 17 countries carry the program.

Best Seller

Graham is the author of several religious works. "Peace With God" was published in 1953 and subsequently earned a "best seller" status. In 1955, Graham's second volume, "The Secret of Happiness," earned a place in the top 10 new non-fiction best sellers of the year.

On several occasions, Graham has been invited to address sena-
