

Old Jump Record In Danger Sat.

The oldest record on the books could be axed at Saturday's ninth annual Atlantic Coast Conference Indoor Games, held in Woollen Gymnasium.

That would be Charlie Hubbard's record leap of 23' 8 1/4" in the broad jump, achieved in 1935. Hubbard, jumping for North Carolina, is now a Chapel Hill minister. He will also be, as usual, Chief Inspector of the meet.

Threatening Hubbard's record, as Maryland seeks to retain its team championship, will be North Carolina's John O'Bannon and South Carolina's Dan Upton.

O'Bannon won last year's event with a jump of 22' 1/4". Upton has sailed 24 feet outdoors.

"Either boy has a good chance of breaking that record," says meet manager Joe Hilton.

Hilton lists at least seven other conference records which could fall: high jump, pole vault, shot put, 60-yard dash, mile, two mile, and 600-yard run.

Furman Defends Title

In the non-conference division — featuring defending champion Furman, Florida, Davidson, Virginia Tech, VMI, Citadel, Richmond, and William and Mary — Hilton expects at least five marks to vanish: in the shot put, one and two mile, 60-yard dash, and 880-yard run.

Maryland's freshman team will be favored to win in its division, which the yearling Terps did last year. There should be a heated battle for the other top positions, between Duke, North Carolina and Wake Forest.

Always the feature event of the Indoor Games, the Weil Mile shapes up to be the most exciting this year. Duke's Jerry Nourse, who was in the service last year, will bid to unseat defending champion Mark Wells of Maryland.

Also pushing Wells will be Guy Harper of Maryland, and R. E. Everett and Charlie Little of North Carolina.

North Carolina's Jerry Stuver will be the choice to win the 880 again, though Jim Moorhead and Ray Dunkelberg of Clemson, David Turner of Wake Forest, and Bob Bennett and Charlie Little of North Carolina will be strong in the running.

In the 600-yard run Don Stauffer of Maryland has a good chance of breaking Dave Scurlock's record of 1:12.7. Definite threats to Stauffer are South Carolina's Dan Upton and North Carolina's Bob Hart.

Other exciting events in prospect:

High jump. Co-champions Dick Estes and Jim Bland of Maryland return, but teammate George Leonard has already beaten both this year. In addition, North Carolina sophomore Tom Clark has cleared 6'6 1/2" as a freshman — which is 1 1/2" above the Games record, held by Estes and Bland.

Belita Tops Vaulters

Pole vault. Maryland's Tom Belita will be out to break his own conference mark of 14'6 1/2". Last week he vaulted 15'4" to tie 16-footer John Uelses in the New York Knights of Columbus meet. Other fine vaulters: Barrie Tiedemann and Heath Whittle of North Carolina and Tom Glass of Maryland.

Hurdles. Bill Johnson of Maryland won't be back to defend his titles in the high and lows. Succeeding him as the favorite will be Charlie Bradshaw of South Carolina, with hot competition from Jim Brown of North Carolina.

The ninth annual Indoor Games start with the shot put and broad jump at 10:30 a.m. Saturday in the University Tin Can and Woollen Gymnasium.

Afternoon activity starts at 1 with the high jump in the Gym. Following in the evening will be time trials to qualify for the finals, starting at 7 p.m. The last event is the mile relay, starting at 10 p.m.

Conference, freshman, and non-conference divisions will include 430 participants.

JOHN O'BANNON, UNC's 1961 individual champion in the ACC Indoor Games, defends his broad jump title Saturday. O'Bannon will be shooting for Charlie Hubbard's 1935 Games Mark of 23'8 1/4". Another top broad jump competitor will be South Carolina's Dan Upton.

LARRY NEAL (left) and P. W. SWING hold down third base and second, respectively, on Walt Rabb's baseball team. Both hit better than .300 last season as the Tar Heels racked up a 10-4 mark and finished second to Duke in the ACC.

Rabb's Men, After Snow, Prepare For Florida Trip

By ED DUPREE

With the snow gone and the annual Florida trip less than two weeks away, coach Walt Rabb's baseballers are working hard in preparation for the coming season.

When practice started in February, there were a few days of springlike weather suitable to baseball playing, but the snow and cold spell quickly put a temporary damper on outdoor work.

Now the weather seems to be ready to warm up again and Rabb and his men have until March 21 to prepare for the Florida trip which includes two contests with Florida, one with Vanderbilt, and one with Georgia Southern.

Lettermen Bob Wacker, Larry Jenkins and co-captain Dave Murr head the nine-man pitching staff. Five of the Tar Heel hurlers are sophomores, six are right handers.

The three lefties are soph. Clayton Burns, who pitched for the frosh two years ago and sat out last season, Jenkins, and Murr.

Two of the sophs, Andy Billesdon and Spencer Willard, will be counted on heavily to pick up the slack left by Nick Warren who was signed last season by the Los Angeles Dodgers. Warren had another year of eligibility remaining and had never lost a college baseball game.

Rabb's remaining two moundmen are sophomore Bobby Cox and John Eichberg, a junior.

Another sophomore, Bernie Isgett missed last year's frosh season because of a broken leg, but is presently the number one catcher for the Tar Heel. Wendell Brande, a junior, is the most experienced man on the squad. Other for the Tar Heels, Wendell Grant, who doubles as a 157-pound wrestler in the winter, and transfer student Reid Davis.

Around the infield the probable starters are co-captain Len Dellolio at first base, Paul Swing at second, Larry Neal at third, and soph Jim Speight at shortstop.

Last season "Woogie" Dellolio, "P. W." Swing, and "Charlie Brown" Neal all hit in the .300 bracket. Dellolio and Swing were second team All-ACC selections. Speight, in 1961, was one of the top hitters on the freshman team as a third baseman. Rabb shifted him to short and moved Neal from short to third in fall practice.

Other infielders are Bob Hundley and Bill Brown, both sophomore first basemen, Milford Cox and Tom Wright, both sophs and second-sackers, shortstop Croning Byrd, and third baseman Pete Rose. Byrd is a senior, and Rose a junior.

The list of 12 outfielders is led by three lettermen, Heyward Hull, Dee Frady, and Russ Hollers. Hollers started in the outfield two seasons ago, but by-passed the sport when he entered law school.

Dave Pope and John Kouri, both juniors, and Bob West and Jud Spainhour, seniors, should see a lot of action. Pope and West saw some duty last season. Kouri, a pitcher by trade, has had a sore arm since his frosh year and may not pitch any this season. Spainhour, who also plays quarterback in football, has seen light action during the past two seasons.

The remaining fly-chasers are Pete Farrior, a senior, juniors, Buddy Tilden and Mike Traynor, and sophs George Lockhart and Dave Wilday.

Coach Rabb's assistants are Dallas Branch and Ben Tench.

After the trip to the land of sunshine, the Tar Heels return to Chapel Hill for their first home game with Ithaca on March 26.

Shaffer Passes Up Football, Reports For Tennis Team

Charlie Shaffer Jr. has made his decision. He will pass up winter football practice and already has reported to the tennis squad. Next fall, however, he plans to join the football squad.

Charlie is a UNC sophomore, resident of Chapel Hill, Morehead Scholar, and former brilliant three-sport athlete at Woodberry Forest prep school. As a freshman here he sustained a severe knee injury which required an operation that was followed by complications. With remarkable patience, hard work and co-operation with delicate treatments by physicians and trainers, he readied himself for basketball and was able to play this past semester.

He played well. In fact, he played so well and with such an impressive competitive spirit and usage of skills that only excellent athletes have, that at times he was the toast and talk of the team. It was only his first few weeks in college varsity competition, but he captured the imagination and fancy of the crowds. He likely will be one of Carolina's all-time basketball greats.

North Carolina football coaches are just as certain that Charlie Shaffer can reach the heights in their sport. They did not press him, however, to report for football this winter, and he made his own decision. There had been apprehension that his knee might not hold up in the rugged sport of basketball, but it did. If it continues to do so through the tennis season, he should be ready for football next fall.

Charlie learns quickly. The football staff feels that in pre-season practice next fall, this remarkable athlete can catch up quickly. He showed, as a freshman, that he has all the equipment to make a great quarterback. He is an exceptionally good passer.

Meanwhile, tennis coach Don Skakle is a happy man. The Tar Heels have excellent tennis prospects this spring. It conceivably could be one of the school's finest ever. A half a dozen candidates rank with the best college players in the country. Shaffer, off his prep school and summer tennis record as a schoolboy, is among the six. Tar Heel tennis opens the season against Dartmouth here March 20.
