Film Critic John Grierson To Discuss Changes In Art

John Grierson, the Scotsman who found and lead the British documentary film movement which exerted revolutionary and lasting influence on film production around the world, will address the Carolina Symposium on Monday evening, April 2. Grierson will share the platform on "Today's Revolutions in the Arts" with critic Gilbert Seldes. He will be the only foreign visitor to speak during the Symposium.

Grierson's visit to this country is jointly sponsored by the Symposium, the UNC-Chapel Hill Film Society, the Museum of Modern Art in New York and the Washington, D. C. Film Council. Introducing him in Chapel Hill will be Richard Griffith, Museum of Modern Art curator of motion pictures, who will be a special guest of the UNC Department of Radio, Television and Motion Pictures.

A colorful, dynamic personality, Grierson became a legend in the motion picture world in his own lifetime. Queen Elizabeth last year bestowed the rank of Commander of the British Empire on him for his contribution to cinema and education and his farm home in Wiltshire, England has been designated a national monument.

Since 1958 Grierson has been affiliated with Scottish Television Limited, where he has produced various programs including "This Wonderful World," which the London SPECTATOR has called "The most exciting program at present available on the little screen . . . (Grierson) still commands more tricks than most of his juniors will ever learn."

He also is a special consultant to the Films of Scotland Committee, a government body set up to project Scotland, in film terms, to the outside world. Grierson wrote the treatment for the Committee's award-winning film, "Seawards the Great Ships," which is an Academy Award "Oscar" nominee this year. More recently he has written the treatment for "The Heart of Scotland," a film on his native county, Stirlingshire.

Before returning to Scotland in 1958, Grierson served as the head of UNESCO's Department of Mass Communications for three years, resigning in 1951 to head up Group 3 in London, a feature film unit which the British Government set up under the National Film Act to train new directors and other young film talent for British studios. Voting Begins In King Race; Chest Solicitors Meet Tonight

Campus Chest
Voting for the position of "King of the Campus" will be held in Y-Court this week. Students may, by dropping their money into the respective box, select a faculty member or dean for this position. The candidates are Dr. Sessoms, Dr. Wallace, Charlie Bernard, and Dr. Hudson. Each penny will count one vote.

There will be a meeting of all solicitors for the Campus Chest tonight at 7 p.m. in Gerrard Hall. Be prompt.

The Judicial Committee of the Student Legislature will meet at 4:00 p.m. today in the Grail Room. Members and other people with bills before the committee are requested to be prompt.

Dr. Sommer, Art Teacher, Dies Sunday

Dr. Clemens D. Sommer, 69, Carolina art professor and art historian, died en route to the hospital Sunday afternoon following an automobile collision in Chatham County south of Chapel Hill.

Mrs. Sommer suffered arm and leg fractures and chest injuries but was in fair condition at Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon.

The driver of the other car was Ned Thomas Lassiter of Apex, according to Highway Patrolman John Raynor. Robert Powell, Apex, was riding in Lassiter's car. The collision occurred on a curve and was apparently head-on.

Dr. Sommer, a member of the UNC faculty for 23 years, was widely known as an art historian. He was the author of several books and a member of the North Carolina Art Commission.

He previously taught art history at Freiburg and Greifswald Universities. He was curator of Augustiner Museum at Freiburg, where he took his Ph.D. in 1919, and was assistant librarian of the Bibliotheca Hertziana in Rome.

He is survived by his wife and three sons. Funeral arrangements were still incomplete yesterday afternoon.

English Dept. Publishes Collection

"The Young Writer at Chapel Hill," a 50-page book containing short stories, poems and comments by students from the creative writing classes in the University of North Carolina English Department will be published here April 15.

The publication will differ from most of its kind, according to Editor Jessie Rehder of the Department of English at UNC in that it has not been edited with the intention of presenting a perfect work. Rather, it is meant to show what students in the writing classes are doing at Chapel Hill in the atmosphere of the University.

Short stories used in the volume, Miss Rehder said, are definitely works in progress. The stories are in several different modes or forms, including stream of consciousness, the realistic, and what has become known as the usual Southern fare, stories with "a hint of magnolia."

At least six authors, all undergraduates and two of whom are from the Honors Writing Class, are included in the volume. One writer has published previously in "The Carolina Quarterly."

Theater Ends Segregation Policies

The Carolina Theater was completely integrated last week after gradually lowering its color bar over a period of seven months. The move followed by two months the desegregation of the other commercial theater in Chapel Hill, the Varsity, which was integrated in December.

The Chapel Hill Citizens Committee for Open Movies has announced that it will disband itself as soon as integration is complete. The committee, a group of students and townspeople, has been working for theater integration here for more than a year.

The Carolina's latest admissions policy change culminated a move toward desegregation which began last August. At that time, the theater began admitting Negro University students who showed identification cards at the box office.

Since then, the theater had gradually liberalized its policy, admitting dates and families of UNC students, and then permitting non-student Negroes to attend as guests of white patrons. Most churches in Chapel Hill and many restaurants have been integrated for some time. Chapel Hill schools voluntarily adopted a policy of integration last year.

The Varsity Tennis Team will practice tomorrow at 2 on the varsity courts.

Graham Memorial Schedule

SEAFARER SPEAKS HERE — Captain Irving Johnson, above, will lecture and show a special color film tonight at 8 in Memorial Hall. Johnson, who is being presented as a part of the GM Travel-Adventure series, will tell of his trips to the Trade Winds Islands. Two persons can be admitted with one season ticket to tonight's performance. All others will be admitted for $1 each.

Health Meet Closes Today

President William B. Friday will greet the annual spring conference of the alumni of the Health Education Dept. of the School of Public Health this morning as the conference begins its second and final day.

The gathering of about 75 alumni is an extension function of the Health Education Dept. and which "gives graduates and others a chance to explore fields of their interest in some depth," according to Dr. H. B. Walker, publicity director for the event.

Yale Chaplain To Speak Here At Corps Meet

Tickets Available
For Luncheon

A speech by Yale Chaplain William Coffin will highlight a Saturday luncheon at the upcoming Peace Corps Day program that will give students a chance to "meet and hear" Peace Corps officials.

Luncheon guests will include top-ranking national Peace Corps officials from Washington as well as members of Gov. Sanford's staff from Raleigh.

Tickets for the luncheon are still available at $2 per person in the lobby of the YMCA building from 2-5 p.m. from this Monday through Wednesday afternoon.

Anne Queen, co-ordinator of the University's Peace Corps Committee, said "The purpose of the luncheon is to give a chance for UNC students and delegates to meet and hear Peace Corps directors and to thereby gain an invaluable concept of what the Peace Corps is all about. I urge all students who may be interested in the Peace Corps, now or in the future, to attend the luncheon."

The principal speaker for the occasion will be the Reverend Coffin. Well known on campus, the Rev. Mr. Coffin is a member of the National Advisory Board of the Peace Corps.

The luncheon will be followed by a round of discussion groups on Peace Corps programs in Africa, Asia and Latin America. The regional discussion groups will be held in Gardner Hall from about 2:30 until 4 p.m. or after. UNC professors will take part in the discussion groups.

RIOTERS TURNED AWAY

TOKYO (UPI) — Two hundred placard-waving Koreans sympathetic to Communist North Korea demonstrated Monday at the opening of high level talks aimed at resolving issues arising from the Japanese occupation of Korea, but were turned away by 300 police.

Rusk And Gromyko Fail To Agree Before Talks

The A Cappella Choir of the Woman's College of Georgia, shown above, will present a musical program of sacred music Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Methodist Church. The director, Dr. Max Noah, was formerly Head of the Department of Music at Guilford College. The group is en route to New York via Hartwell, Ga.; Farmville, N. C.; Strasburg, Va.; Washington, D. C.; and Wilmington, Del. There will be no admission charge.

Harassment Is Continued By Soviet Planes

GENEVA (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko failed Monday to crack the East-West deadlock on critical cold war issues in a three-hour talk marked by new American warnings and hints of a Russian deal on Berlin.

The Rusk-Gromyko talks were part of the Big Three foreign ministers conference preceding the start Wednesday of 17-power talks on disarmament. Gromyko will confer Tuesday with British Foreign Secretary Lord Home. France is boycotting the talks.

While the two diplomats conferred at the Soviet villa, the Russians renewed their interference along the West Berlin aerial lifelines and Rusk warned that further harassment would be met with storm measures — possibly jet fighter escorts for Allied planes.

The Soviets countered by publishing a proposal for the creation of nuclear-free zones, including one in central Europe. The Russian move appeared to be a prologue to a possible offer of some kind of European security arrangement package in return for a new Berlin agreement.

The Russian proposals, made in a letter to acting United Nations Secretary General Thant, called for freezing the transfer of nuclear weapons to non-nuclear nations and to create geographical zones in which such weapons could not be manufactured or stored.

A spokesman for Rusk Monday night dismissed the proposals as nothing new, but said Gromyko may present them to Wednesday's 17-nation disarmament conference. The proposals first were made by Polish Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki who arrived Monday for the arms talk.

The British delegation said Gromyko's letter "does not appear to contain any new or startling elements." He said Britain could agree with the idea of non-distribution of nuclear weapons "but there are other issues non-nuclear zones which are not in line with British policy and are not acceptable."

The Bonn government is known to oppose such moves in fear it might turn West Germany into a second class power and weaken NATO. The West German Foreign Ministry announced that a Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder will pay a "courtesy call" Tuesday on Gromyko.

Candidates Must Meet Tomorrow

A compulsory meeting of all spring elections candidates will be held Wednesday at 9 p.m. in the Howell Hall Auditorium.

All candidates and party chairmen or a representative of the chairman must be present.

Any student may become a candidate for any office provided that he submit to the Elections Board a petition signed by 25 qualified voters and by himself. This petition must be submitted by Wednesday, and all candidates must have an overall "C" average.

The purpose of this meeting is to explain the rules for the conduct and control of the election. Absence excuses shall be granted only for interment in the infirmary and other reasons approved by Dave Buxton, chairman of the Elections Board.

Candidates not attending this meeting and not having excuses shall be dropped as candidates. They may be reinstated by contacting Dave Buxton within 48 hours after the meeting and paying a $5 fine.

200 Collectors Make Rounds

Chest Solicitations Begin With $1-Per-Student Goal

By Jim Wallace
The Campus Chest will begin this year's solicitations drive tonight. Their goal is $1 per student.

Two hundred solicitors will contact students living in dormitories and sorority houses. Fraternity collections will be made through regular chapter meetings. Faculty members are asked to contribute through special boxes placed in each department office.

The drive will last through Thursday.

Students donating $1 or more will be given a Campus Chest button. Each button has a number on the back. Three numbers will be drawn at Saturday's carnival by Susan Woodall, Miss North Carolina, and students holding the lucky numbers will be given door prizes.

First prize will be a dinner for two at the Ranch House, second a Madras or Batik sport coat or a London Fog from Milton's. Third prize will be five 20-minute back rubs from coeds in Whitehead Dorm.

Students may vote for the "King of the Carnival" this week in Y-Court. Candidates are: Dr. Doug Sessoms of the Sociology Department; Charlie Bernard, Dean of admissions; Dr. Earle Wallace of the Political Science Department.

NEWSPAPER BEGINS

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (UPI) — The Malayan Times, a new English-language newspaper serving the federation of Malaya and Singapore, began publication Monday.

URGES SEPARATION

LONDON (UPI) — The Rev. Alfred Cole, pastor of St. Mathew's Church, has urged sweethearts to curtail courting during Lent because a "little separation is good for the soul."

and Dr. A. P. Hudson, professor of English.

Money raised from this year's drive will aid the Children's Mental Hospital in Butner, the World University Service, heart research at Memorial Hospital and the Tours Scholarship.

Campus Chest Chairman Charlie Shelton said, "We are only asking for $1 per student because we feel that is enough. Duke is asking $1.40 per student and Harvard $10," he said.

The following has been pledged so far: ADPI, $55; ATO, $55; Chi Phi, $50; DKE, $58; St. A, $25; Lambda Chi, $30; Phi Gam, $25; Pi Kappa Phi, $32; Sigma Nu, $30; ZBT, $44; UP, $50.
