

Peace Corps Conference Opens Today

Dr. Paul Geren, deputy director of the Peace Corps in Washington, will open a two-day college conference on the Peace Corps here tonight when he speaks to student delegates attending the first North Carolina Peace Corps Conference.

Approximately twenty colleges are sending delegates, including the University of Tennessee, Randolph Macon and Sweet Briar colleges in Virginia. All others are North Carolina schools.

Chancellor William B. Aycock will introduce Dr. Geren in opening ceremonies tonight at eight o'clock in Howell Hall. Jim Wagner, student chairman of the campus Peace Corps, will welcome visitors and delegates. The public is invited to attend.

Other Peace Corps officials attending and participating in the Conference, in addition to Dr. Geren, are Lee St. Lawrence, Senior Staff Officer; Franklin H. Williams, Special Assistant to Director Sargent Shriver; Richard Graham, Deputy Associate Director for Public Affairs; Dr. Gregg Newton, Field Recruitment Officer, and the Rev. William Coffin of the National Advisory Board of the Peace Corps. Mr. Coffin, chaplain of Yale University, spoke in Chapel Hill last year.

Following the program in Howell Hall, there will be a reception for delegates and visitors in the main lounge of Graham Memorial. Several local folk singers will perform at the reception including Mike Hall, Dan Brock, Marinda McPherson, Gerry Matthews, Hans Frankfort, Dick Mandell, Cherill Heaton, Joan Moser and a Carolina-Duke quartet who will play recorders. Bill Coffin will present the performers.

Saturday events include a morning symposium (10 a.m.) on the Peace Corps conducted by the Peace Corps officials, in Howell Hall, a luncheon in the Carolina Inn ballroom, at 12:30, and afternoon seminars on Peace Corps area programs, conducted by Washington officials and UNC faculty in Gardner Hall. An official Peace Corps test will be given at 2:30 in Gardner Hall to 53 North Carolinians registered to take it.

Annual Carnival To Be Saturday

Rides, booths and beauty queens will highlight the second annual Campus Chest Carnival to be held tomorrow on the Intramural Field beginning at 1:00 p.m.

Highlight of this year's event will be five rides including the merry-go-round, the merry mixer, the octopus, the ferris wheel, and the tilt-a-whirl. Operation of the rides will begin just as soon as someone shows up to ride and will continue until the last person goes home. Tickets for the rides will be 25c.

There will be over 50 booths in operation sponsored by various campus organizations. These will include a basketball free throw booth, a dunking machine, a hugging booth, a tricycle obstacle course, a greasy pole, and bingo booths.

Prizes will be awarded again this year for the best booth in different categories. Tickets for the booths are five cents each.

The King of the Carnival will be crowned this year by Susan Woodall, the reigning Miss North Carolina. Last year's king was Dr. Alfred T. Brauer of the Math Dept. This year's contestants are Doug Sessions, Charles Bernard, Dr. Earle Wallace, and Dr. A. P. Hudson. Votes are a penny apiece, and votes may be cast in Y Court.

Booths will also be set up for those who get hungry while attending the carnival. There will be popcorn, peanuts, cokes, ice cream, and cotton candy. Homemade food has been donated by the Chapel Hill Newcomer's Club and by the Episcopal and Catholic Church Women's Leagues.

A Campus Chest parade will be held today at 3:00 p.m. to publicize the carnival.

Featured in the parade will be appearances by Susan Woodall and Mary Ann Henderson, the current Miss Chapel Hill. Doug Clark's "Hot Nuts" and the AFROTC Band will provide music, and the parade will also include the Yack Court and David Lobdell, the Ugliest Man on Campus.

The parade will start at Woollen Gym and will proceed through downtown Chapel Hill winding back up to the gym.

FIRM TO EXPAND
FULTON, N. Y. (UPI) — Sealright — Oswego Falls Corp. announced a 40,000-square foot expansion of its Kansas City, Kan., plant. Sealright manufactures plastic-paper packaging products and was one of the pioneers in producing the plastic coated paper milk carton. The new addition will expand the Kansas City plant to about 370,000 square feet.

IFC Accepts Fetzer Trophy

The Mrs. R. A. Fetzer Trophy for Outstanding Intercollegiate Athletic Participation was presented to the Interfraternity Council at its Monday night meeting and will be awarded each year to the fraternity with the most participants in intercollegiate athletics.

The trophy was presented to IFC President Jim Dilashaw by Coach R. A. "Bob" Fetzer, for whose wife the trophy is named.

Bob Bilbro, representative of the Senior Moreheads who introduced Coach Fetzer, explained that the trophy was given to "honor a woman who has given a great deal to Carolina athletics over the years."

The trophy is to be awarded each fall on the basis of the previous two semesters. Its recipient will be a house chosen by a committee appointed by the IFC President. A point system set up by the donors will aid the committee in determining the winner.

Billy Graham Says Colleges Are Scene Of Conflict Today

'Pie In Sky Religion Not Christianity'

By BILL WUAMETT

UNC was challenged last night to start a spiritual regeneration of man that would spread across the country as Billy Graham spoke to an overflow crowd in Memorial Hall.

He offered what he considered to be the "best solution" to man's dilemma in an age characterized by revolt, fear, escapism, philosophical uncertainty and spiritual emptiness.

"Man's problem is himself," he stated, "and his soul is stricken by an outmoded disease called sin. The cure lies in a change in man's dilemma" and then offered faith as an answer.

Need Of God Cited

"I cannot demonstrate God," he said, "I have to accept him by faith. I was not converted by intellectual endeavor, but by pure, naked faith."

"Man is by nature a worshipful creature, and needs a God — even if it is one of his own creation."

A "pie in the sky" religion is not the religion of Christ, he stated. "It is going out and helping our fellow man. 'It is action directed toward your fellow man and not toward yourselves."

"This is not the full solution," he said, "but will create a new atmosphere of opportunity that will bring man nearer to solving his dilemma."

Basic Problem Is Man

Man's basic problem is not social reform or the spread of civilization to the backward parts of the world, he said. When we solve our material problems, we still have problems with man himself.

"That which makes man hate, bear prejudices, cheat and steal — this is man's dilemma with himself."

In an age where man is about to blow himself up, "faith can bring the inner peace and security that may bring man nearer to coping with his dilemma."

He stated that he knew that "all will not agree with me, but I have come to present my case in answer to our dilemma."

Second U. S. Astronaut Disqualified

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — U. S. astronaut Donald Kent (Deke) Slayton, scheduled to make this nation's second manned orbital flight, has been disqualified because of heart trouble, informed sources said Thursday.

The 38-year-old Air Force major has reportedly developed heart palpitations — a condition that could endanger his life should he be allowed to undergo the stresses of flight through space.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration NASA said it had "no comment" on the report.

Slayton was at Cape Canaveral earlier this week, but left by airplane earlier Thursday. He was believed headed back to astronaut headquarters at Langley Field, Va.

Slayton, one of the nation's seven "Mercury" astronauts for nearly three years, was to have gotten his crack at an orbital voyage within a few weeks, possibly May or June. The flight was planned as a three-orbit mission similar to that of spaceman John H. Glenn Jr.

It could not be learned immediately which of the astronauts would move up to Slayton's position. However, there was speculation the job would go to Navy Lt. Cmdr. Walter M. Schirra, who had been designated as Slayton's "back-up" man, or to Navy Lt. Cmdr. M. Scott Carpenter, who served in the same role during Glenn's flight.

The seven astronauts undergo numerous physical and psychological examinations in preparation for spaceflights. It was reported that Slayton's heart difficulties had shown up during one of these tests.

Shining Coeds Grab Scuffy-Shoed Males

By CHUCK MOONEY

"We've collected $59.81 as of today," said Cam Taber, chairman of the Carolina Women's Council Shoe Shine project.

"People have been so wonderful about giving," she said. "We haven't shined that many shoes. We've been given a lot of tips."

Volunteer coeds from dorms and sororities across the campus have been shining shoes at 25c a shine in Y-Court since Wednesday. The money will go to the Campus Chest.

The girls have gone all out to get customers, asking all passers-by to stop for a shoe shine. They won't accept any excuses for not stopping.

"I have a class," one boy yelled. "We have speedy shines for those in a hurry," one of the girls answered.

"I've got a quiz," another boy pleaded. "Study while we shine," a second girl said.

"We even have delivery service," a third girl added. "Leave your shoes while you're in class and we'll bring them to you after we shine them."

Much to the girl's surprise, a third boy, who was hurrying into the snack bar, left his shoes to be shined while he went in and got some coffee — in his stocking feet.

The girls have had a few hecklers too.

"How long have you been shining shoes, little girl?" asked a student.

"Since nine. How about a shoe shine for the Campus Chest?" she said.

I Musici Gives Concert At 8 In Memorial

I Musici will present a concert in Memorial Hall Friday night at 8, sponsored by Graham Memorial in conjunction with the Chapel Hill Concert Series. The entire balcony will be reserved for UNC students and admission will be free upon the presentation of ID cards.

I Musici means the Musicians, and there are twelve in the group. The ensemble, comprising 6 violins, 2 violas, 2 cellos, a bass and a keyboard instrument, concentrates on Italian music of the 17th century.

The group sits in a semi-circle and plays without conductor or first violinist. Emphasis is on tone and ensemble. At times the orchestra suggests "the full-bodied sonority of an organ which can be accounted for by the purity of the Italian string intonation."

Evangelist Supports State Universities

By HARRY W. LLOYD

Evangelist Billy Graham, on a one-day stopover in Chapel Hill, said in a news conference yesterday that "the battle for the mind of mankind may be decided in the halls of learning."

Graham, the Charlotte native who made his first return to the campus after a 10 year absence, disclosed that he will devote the latter part of next year and much of 1964 and 1965 to crusades at various colleges and universities in this country.

"The greatest number of those attending our services in Latin America were college students," Graham said. "The battles I see are emerging in the universities. The communists are not making any inroads among the minds of the masses. I see a religious curiosity on campus that I did not detect ten years ago."

"Students in the western world are searching for something to believe in. They have created a religious inquiry."

"I spoke at Vassar not long ago. The officials there told me to expect about 200 to 300 students. I gave the address in an auditorium seating about 1,400 and it was completely filled. Following the address, we were supposed to break into small discussion groups. We met in a smaller room, and there were over 400 students there. We took them in groups of fifty, and weren't through there until after midnight."

The Baptist evangelist said that state-supported colleges could fulfill a student's spiritual needs as well as religious schools, and may do a better job. "A student may come out of a secular school with much stronger belief than he would have had by attending a school where his beliefs were not tested," he explained.

When asked if this country's colleges would have to raise their academic standards to higher levels in order to relieve crowded conditions, Graham said that he was in favor of high academic requirements. "I was amazed when I traveled in India, where the state of illiteracy is so high," he said. "The academic standards are much higher there than they are in this country. But we should build more schools too."

The minister, who has held crusades on six continents, said that his warmest remembrances came from little personal experiences. "One of those was in New Zealand. I was in bed at night after preaching and a college senior, majoring in philosophy, came to see me with what he called a very urgent problem. We talked there in my room for at least an hour. Today he is a minister."

In reply to the questions of whether his crusades have had any lasting effects, Graham said that while Christ was preaching for three years, he drew very large crowds. "But when he was crucified, only a small, dedicated minority remained with him. But would you say that his cause was a failure? Much of our work is carried out by one person."

"In 1934, I was converted in an evangelistic meeting in Charlotte. Only a small group came forward that night, but it now includes eleven ministers, among which are me and my associate, Grady Wilson. A columnist writing in the paper the next morning said that the meeting was unsuccessful."

Graham said that his movement was in no way connected with the anti-communist movement, but that he was encouraged by the advances being made by the churches in Russia. "Atheistic propaganda hasn't been able to squelch belief in God," he said. "Lenin gave the churches the right to open up, in hopes that other protestant churches would run out the Orthodox church. The revivals were so successful that Stalin closed the churches until the Russians went to war against Germany."

"People in Russia go to church only at tremendous costs. The children of church members are not allowed to attend the universities. They are only given the most menial of jobs. But the churches in Russia are still crowded. There is one Baptist church in Moscow, but it is filled five times every Sunday. For every active believer, I am sure that there are many secret believers."

"There are many differences among people—in races, languages, and cultures, but there is a common denominator spiritually. The belief in God is innate."

"No man has gone so far that he cannot be saved by God. If I had 30 minutes to talk with Khrushchev, then I would tell him what he could do to become a Christian."

Graham said that he was in full support of the Peace Corps program. "It is giving a necessary challenge," he said.

"American young people are searching for a creed to believe in, a song to sing, and a flag to follow," Dr. Pusey has said. "John Glenn is now the idealism of an American hero. He combines the intellectual with the physical, the spiritual, and the moral. He isn't afraid to get up and say that he believes in God."

Graham's visit was sponsored by the UNC YM-YWCA. He met with this group in a luncheon yesterday, and spoke last night to the student body in Memorial Hall. He will speak at Camp Lejeune Sunday, and at Wake Forest College two days next week. On March 26 he will be at Harvard. He begins another Latin American tour later this year.
