

Flatt, Scruggs Play Here Next Week

Columbia recording stars Lester Flatt, Earl Scruggs and the Foggy Mountain Boys will bring their blue grass music to the Carolina campus in a concert to be held next Wednesday night, at 8 in Memorial Hall.

The concert, sponsored jointly by Graham Memorial and the senior class, will feature the kind of mountain music which in less than ten years has skyrocketed the group to international notoriety.

Proceeds from the show will be used to finance this year's senior gift and to provide prize money for a forthcoming campus-wide essay contest.

Tickets may be purchased for one dollar apiece and are now on sale at Kemp's in downtown Chapel Hill and at Graham Memorial.

3,000 Bottles Wine Broken

BEAUNE, France (UPI)—Three thousand bottles of Burgundy wine were broken in the cellar of Louis Chavy here Monday when an army jet plane from the Dijon-Longvic airbase crashed through the sound barrier.

So let it rain! New rainy day apparel offers added benefits in durable water repellency and easy care.

U.S. Asks Funds Release To Aid European Nations

PARIS (UPI)—The United States is asking for the release of some $600 million in former Marshall Plan funds for aid to economically backward European countries, authoritative diplomatic sources said Tuesday.

The money is currently in the so-called European Fund of the 20-nation Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development OECD. The sources described it as a "hangover" from the days of Marshall aid which ended gradually more than six years ago.

He offered a slightly different interpretation than Seldes of revolutions in television and films: "The reality was creating its necessary medium."

Grierson said TV was the middle man between writers and the consumers. In answer to a question later, he said, "But I wouldn't be too pessimistic, it's simply a matter of getting better and more imaginative sponsorship and backing."

In a discussion group yesterday in Howell Hall, Grierson compared American TV to Scottish, saying that while his own country may have "better" TV on the whole, "American television, when it is good, is excellent and when it is bad, is really bad."

"There are new realities just around the next corner—we have got to appreciate the world as a changing world."

During the question and answer period following Tuesday speeches:

What will be the effect of (Newton) Minnow's (chairman of the Federal Communications Commission) "get tough" policy on television?

Seldes: "I think Minnow made a grave tactical mistake in his choice of words, calling TV a great wasteland. A jungle or swamp perhaps, where too many things are happening, but not a wasteland."

"I don't think this sort of policy will create the proper atmosphere for good programming. We, 'we,

the civilized few,' should tell them what we want."

What does it mean to say that "I am an artist"?

Grierson: "How many semesters are you available? I guess you could say the pursuit of beauty, that is, you want to bring alive the world of your observations—the world of reality."

"Also there is a sense of public responsibility—duty to your audience, or giving people a sense of being uplifted. There really is no specific answer to that."

How do you answer the charge that television has made us a nation of observers?

Seldes: "We never were a nation of participants."

"However, I do think that the tendency to sit back and watch is being strengthened by TV. There is a tendency to become spectators not only of events but non-events, sheer fakery—not fiction—fakery."

Has the film industry done any films in the past five years that justifies the industry being called an art?

Grierson: "I never go to features any more—I'm getting old and am not a romantic any more. 'Savage Eye' and 'Jazz on a Summer's Day' both had certain quite moving scenes, especially the handling of Mahalia Jackson and the 'Lord's Prayer.' On the documentary side I have seen some films that I definitely consider to be art."

OAS Troops Hit Hospital

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI)—European gunmen of the outlawed Secret Army Organization (OAS) invaded a Moslem hospital here early today, machine-gunned helpless patients in their beds and wrecked part of the building with a bomb.

Early reports said 10 Moslems were killed and eight wounded, most of them seriously.

There was no immediate indication whether the terrorists were after certain Moslems in the hospital or whether the raid was a demonstration to show the OAS will stop at nothing to wreck the ceasefire and keep Algeria from becoming independent.

In other terrorist attacks, two Moslems were killed and three wounded.

The attack on the Beaufrasier hospital in the Algiers suburb of Bouzareah followed Monday night's mortar shelling of the Algiers Casbah in which seven Moslems were wounded.
