

Wacker Hurls Heels To First Home Win

By ED DUPREE

Bob Wacker, UNC's hard-throwing right-hander, limited Delaware's Blue Hens to five hits Thursday as Coach Walt Rabb's Tar Heels took a 10-3 win, their first victory at home this season.

Wacker spotted the visitors two runs in the opening inning and shut them out on three hits in the middle seven frames. They picked up one run against the Florida native in the last inning.

Delaware scored their first two runs on only one hit. Wacker walked two men, they advance a base on an infield out, and scored on a single to right center.

A triple by Larry Neal in the bottom of the inning drove in P. W. Swing with the first UNC run.

In the fourth, two more three-baggers put the Tar Heels ahead to stay. Len Dellolio belted one to deep center field to drive in Jim Speight who had walked, and Heyward Hull tripled down the right field line to score Dellolio.

Rabb's men picked up three more in the fifth, two in the sixth, and one each in the seventh and eighth frames.

Buddy Tilden, the team's leading hitter going into the game, hit a sacrifice fly to score courtesy runner Cronin Byrd in the fifth and a pair of errors after the bases were loaded accounted for two more.

Byrd again in as a courtesy runner for Wacker, scored the first run of the sixth. With the speedy Byrd on first, Swing executed a perfect hit-and-run play on a single to right field sending Byrd to third. But the right fielder let the ball get past him and allowed Byrd to score and Swing to advance to third. He scored on another Tilden sacrifice fly.

The Heels scored their single run in the seventh inning without the benefit of a hit. Neal and Dellolio walked and Hull was hit by relief pitcher Jay Lutz. Jim Umstead had hurled the first six frames, yielding eight runs on six hits. George Lockhart hit a sacrifice fly to score Neal with the ninth tally.

In the bottom of the eighth Tilden doubled to left center and Neal, collecting his third hit of the afternoon, singled to bring home the tenth run.

The Blue Hens from the North, who had defeated Duke Wednesday, scored their final run when Luke Lackman singled with Cihocki on first, and Buddy Tilden muffed the ball in left field.

Wacker, in registering his first win of the year, struck out seven and walked six. After the first inning, he was in trouble only once—that was when the Hens loaded the bases in the seventh. The 6-4 hurler got Gary Hebert on a pop fly to short to get out of the jam.

Neal was three for four to pace the Heels who got eight hits. Swing (1-3), Tilden (1-3), Dellolio (1-2), Hull (1-3), and Wacker (1-2) collected the other hits.

Lackman, who entered the game as a pinch-hitter in the seventh, led Delaware with two for two, both singles.

Netmen Shut Out Williams

By LOUIS LEGUM

Coach Don Skakle's mighty tennis team gave evidence of things to come as the Tar Heels blistered Williams, 9-0, yesterday. The win marked the eighth consecutive triumph of the season for the netters and their twentieth over a two-year span.

Only two matches went into three sets. One of these took place on the number one court where Ted Hoehn fought back to take the last three games and defeat John Botts, 8-6, 4-6, 7-5. Botts, who also played well against George Sokol on Monday, finally buckled under the persistent pressure of Hoehn's sharp net game.

The other singles were easy victories for Carolina. Sokol whipped Williams' Ned Shaw, 6-2, 6-2, while Bitsy Harrison played consistently and forcefully to beat Bob Mahland by a 6-3, 6-0 score. Keith Stoneman, down 4-0 in the second set, swept the final six games to hand Brooks Goddard a 6-1, 6-4 loss. A pleasant surprise for Skakle was the 6-0, 6-2 victory of George Zimmerman against Frank Thayer. Charlie Shaffer also beat Bruce Birgbauer in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3.

Harrison and Shaffer overpowered Shaw and Mahland in the doubles, 6-4, 8-6, with their big serves working to great advantage. The combination of Kirby Jones and Sam Applegate lost only two games in decisively defeating Thayer and Birgbauer, 6-1, 6-1. Relying a great deal on pure enthusiasm, Dave Morgan and Stan Cocke upset Botts and Goddard in an exciting match, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Be an advertising writer in New York this summer

Talented juniors, here is a chance you will never have again: A summer job creating advertisements for one of the world's largest advertising agencies. A chance to find out—while you are still in college—if you can make the grade in the tough and rewarding business of advertising.

Do you have what it takes to succeed as an advertising writer?

The only way to find out is to try it. But if you wait until you graduate, you'll find it almost impossible to land a writing job with a good advertising agency. To get a job, you have to have experience. To get experience, you have to have a job.

Now, an easier way to get into advertising.

This summer, one of the largest and most respected advertising agencies is offering jobs as full-fledged advertising copywriters to a few outstanding men who are college juniors.

You work from mid-June until Labor Day in our office in New York.

You start right out writing.

You don't have to carry mail or sharpen pencils—the usual ways to break into advertising. You do get a chance to think up and write advertisements and commercials for nationally known companies in the food, appliance, soap, gasoline and insurance fields.

You learn, not through lectures or training programs, but by actually working with the most capable professionals in the business.

You earn enough to pay transportation costs from your home, live in New York, and still show a profit at the end of the summer (if you're not too big-hearted about snatching all the lunch tabs).

Can you qualify?

Since this is a temporary job, men in their junior year are preferred. If you succeed this summer, you will be offered a permanent job as a copywriter after you graduate.

No, you don't have to be an advertising major.

Some of our best writers majored in English, philosophy, history, political science, classics. Some didn't even go to college. But all of them are gifted with an instinctive understanding of—and respect for—people.

How can you tell if you have the stuff?

Do you love to read? We've yet to meet a good writer who isn't a reader—hungry for new ideas, excited about new ways of expressing them.

Do you love to write? If you have what it takes, you have probably been writing all your life. Right now, you may be writing articles for your college newspaper; scripts for the radio station; letters that get her to say "yes"; poems, plays, or stories just to please yourself.

If this sounds like you—and you like the sound of working in one of New York's great advertising agencies—write for full details on how to apply. Write a letter that shows how well you can write. Mail it by April 15th.

If you are accepted, you will have a summer you'll remember all your life. And if you succeed, you will find yourself with a full-time job which pays the kind of money it takes to get married and in which there is no such thing as a dull day.
