

DUPREE'S Sportscope

The first month of the ACC spring sports season has zipped by and the North Carolina baseball, golf, track, and tennis teams are heading into the thick of the conference battle.

To no one's surprise the four teams have compiled an admirable 20-5 record, but only four of these contests have been against Atlantic Coast teams. Dale Ranson and Joe Hilton's track team has defeated N. C. State, Clemson, and South Carolina, while Walt Rabb's diamondmen have lost to Wake Forest.

Next week the golf and tennis teams take on ACC competition, the baseballers meet N. C. State, Maryland, and Virginia, and the track team hosts Maryland in the biggest meet of the outdoor season.

Don Skakle's tennis team has posted the most victories, eight in a row, by defeating Dartmouth, Harvard, and Williams twice and Michigan State and MIT once each. The netters jump the gun on the golf team by traveling to Maryland and Virginia for conference matches today and tomorrow. Tuesday they meet Duke at Durham in an important ACC encounter.

Ed Kenney's golfers have an opportunity to stretch their mark to 6-1 this afternoon against Navy. Next week they hit State, Virginia, and Maryland in conference matches and finish the busy week against Georgia and Florida. Only the State contest is on the road.

In addition to their dual meet wins the Tar Heel linksmen finished second in the Florida Intercollegiate Tournament at Ocala. The winner was Houston, possibly the top team in the nation this year. Purdue, last year's defending NCAA champs and a top contender again, handed the single dual match loss to UNC.

The Tar Heel trackmen did well in the Florida Relays, besides winning their three ACC meets easily. They travel to Virginia for the Quantico Relays tomorrow in a preliminary to next Thursday's big meet with the perennial champs, Maryland.

Rabb's baseball men have posted a meager 4-4 record, but only the Wake Forest loss was in ACC competition. The Tar Heels are still very much in the conference pennant race and could have the top hitting crew besides.

Fencers Go South For Meet

The UNC fencing team, fresh from wins over Duke, 14-13, and Johns Hopkins, 17-10, in last weekend's three-way meet at home, travels to Charleston, S. C., this weekend for another tri-meet with arch rival VMI and host The Citadel.

weapon division. Nine bouts in each division, or a series of 27 bouts decides the team winner. The team with the majority of the 27 is the overall winner while often a winning team may lose in one weapon, but capture enough bouts overall to win the meet.

A 5-4 UNC margin in the foil accounted for the victory over Duke and an 8-1 foil victory over Johns Hopkins made possible the seven-point win over the Baltimore boys. UNC's 7-2 margin over Duke in the sabre competition was balanced out by Duke's 7-2 win in the epee division. Thus the narrow foil victory was by the same margin as the team score.

The New Left Club will meet at 8:30 on Sunday evening in the Rolland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial. Dick Ginnold will read a paper and lead a discussion on Southern Labor. All liberals, socialists and other interested persons are invited to attend.

Daily Tar Heel Athlete Of The Week

GEORGE SOKOL

By CURRY KIRKPATRICK
 George Sokol is a young man, who since coming to the University of North Carolina in the fall of 1960, has played the game of tennis about as well as anyone could ask.

Sokol, a stocky sophomore out of Haverford, Pa., has yet to lose a tennis match in collegiate competition and last week, ran off four wins on consecutive days to bring his varsity victory string to eight.

For his iron-man four-win performance, the Daily Tar Heel salutes George Sokol as its eighth Athlete of the Week.

George Sokol came to Carolina as a highly-touted national juniors star. Ranked as the 23rd best junior (18 and under) in the country last year, Sokol grew up playing tennis in and around Philadelphia.

The lush green grass and clay courts of Merion, Bryn Mawr and Haverford were the proving grounds upon which the 5-10, 170-pounder polished the solid ground strokes and slashing baseline attack which mark his game today.

Carolina Golfers Seek Sixth Win Today Against Middies

By Curry Kirkpatrick
 UNC's crack golf team, winner of five of six dual matches but idle since a week ago yesterday, returns to action this afternoon when the Tar Heels entertain Navy at 1:30 on Finley Golf Course.

Coach Ed Kenney's linksmen, dotted with sophomores but led by an

In 1956, George entered Haverford's Harrelson High School where he went on to become state singles and doubles champion his senior year. In 1960, the court phenom won both the men's and juniors' championships of Philadelphia and was named the number one Mid-States player.

Last year, armed with these impressive credentials, Sokol along with Ted Hoehn and Sam Applegate proved pillars of UNC's finest frosh team ever.

In last week's matches, George Turned back Harvard's Paul Sullivan twice, 9-7, 6-2 and 6-3, 10-8 and followed this up with wins over Williams' John Botts (6-3, 6-4) and Ned Shaw (6-2, 6-2).

This is just a sampling of what this blonde, nut-brown tennis star has been doing for the past two years. As number one man, George Sokol is the vital cog in Coach Don Skakle's tennis machine—one which may very well be headed to an NCAA Championship.

All-American senior, have lost only to defending national champion Purdue in their six meets. Carolina opened the season with a second-place finish at Ocala, Fla., in the Florida Invitational Tourney and has since then, downed Ohio U., Princeton, Michigan State, and Dartmouth twice to offset that Purdue loss.

GAME SWITCHED
 A scheduled baseball game between North Carolina and South Carolina on May 12 at Columbia, S. C., has been switched to Chapel Hill on April 30. Coach Walter Rabb has announced.

Rabb said South Carolina had requested the change because of a May 12 conflict with the Atlantic Coast Conference track meet. The Gamecocks also play the Tar Heels here on Saturday, April 28.

Franklin, Mich., Jay Harris, a junior from Mebane, N. C., and Greensboro senior George Murphy have been the big guns for Kenney this year, but it has been the steady performances of a group of sophomores that have made the record what it is.

Second-year men Harvie Hill, Abe Andes, Jere Ayers, Mike Dore, and Sam McNairy have all played steady golf for Carolina as has senior John Brabson to contribute much to the team's current success.

Green, the All-American senior, and Harris have both been low man for the Tar Heels twice this year, with Hill and Dore capturing medal honors once each. Murphy, Ayers, and Andes have also shared low honors on one occasion.

The battle with Navy will be UNC's final match prior to starting ACC play on Monday with North Carolina State at Raleigh.
