

To Drop 80 Pct. Rule IFC Proposals Introduced In Legislature

Support of Interfraternity Council proposals for the improvement of fraternity scholarship and the withdrawal of the 80% rule was introduced in the form of a resolution by Bob James (Ind. TM 1) at Student Legislature Thursday night.

Jones' proposed desolution, like the other four measures introduced, was not acted upon by the legislature at Thursday's session.

Stating that the success of the 80% Rule has been, "very limited at best," Jones asked the legislators to formally endorse an IFC proposal that the individual members of each fraternity "would either have to maintain good grades or would have to dissociate themselves from the fraternity."

Asks Bus Study

Ford Rowan (S.P., DM 1) introduced a resolution calling for a legislative study of free bus transportation to outlying portions of the campus.

A bill to provide for "more equitable" distribution of salaries for members of the Daily Tar Heel staff was introduced by George Rosenthal (S.P., DM 1), chairman of the legislature's finance committee.

Communication Bill

Other action in the legislature included the introduction of a bill to appropriate $100 to be allotted to the legislators for the purpose of better communication with constituencies.

Larry McDevitt (U.P., DM VI), the University Party's legislative floor leader and newly appointed Presidential Assistant, introduced a bill to appropriate $60.70 to pay for the expenses of UNC's delegation to the spring regional conference of the U.S. National Student Association now in progress at Belmont Abbey school in Belmont, N. C.

Student Body President Inman Allen sent three messages to the legislature asking it to approve his appointment of Johnsey Massenburt to the Graham Memorial Board of Directors, Walter Dellinger to a vacant post on the Men's Honor Council, and six UNC delegates to the regional NSA conference.

UNC To Produce Film On Graham SG Appropriates Sum For Film Biography Of Ex-UNC President

The Student Government has appropriated $2,500 for a TV film biography of the life of Dr. Frank Porter Graham, a long-time Southern liberal, political leader, mediator at the United Nations and president of the University for 19 years.

Dr. Frank P. Graham ... Ex-UNC President

The bill, as passed by the student legislature of the University and signed by retiring student body president Bill Harriss, states that few men have contributed as much to UNC and the state as has Dr. Graham. Harriss is from Columbia, S. C.

John Ehle, Associate Professor in the Department of Radio, Television and Motion Pictures here and the author of five books, is serving as Coordinator for the film biography. Also on the Planning Committee are Joel Fleishman from Raleigh, James C. Wallace of Chapel Hill, Warren Ashby from Greensboro, and Miss Anne Queen of the University YWCA.

Made in CH

The video recording will be made in Chapel Hill in the television studio in Swain Hall by the UNC Communications Center. Present plans call for the work to begin the first week in June.

The film committee states that they will attempt "to capture something of the substance and flavor of Dr. Graham's distinguished work. By means of interviews and discussions we intend to put him on the spot concerning some dozen periods and actions of his life—here at the University, as a southern liberal active with labor unions and race relations, as a senator, and as a mediator at the United Nations."

The completed biography will be placed in the Wilson Memorial Library at UNC and kept there permanently.

20 to Appear

The committee has selected about twenty people who have worked closely with or against Dr. Graham over the years, to appear in the film. Each person will be given a specific subject area to cover, either in private interviews or as part of a discussion group.

The committee states that "This is the first in a series of studies we know of. Maybe this study is the first in a series of studies of our leaders. Such recordings if made a hundred years ago would be immensely valuable to us."

Heard Heads Presidential Study Group Report Discusses $$ And Campaigns

By BILL WUAMETT

The belief that widespread voluntary participation by private citizens and groups is the most desirable method of financing political campaigns is the underlying principle of a report on "Financing Presidential Campaigns" issued last week by a committee headed by Alexander Heard, Dean of the UNC Graduate School.

DR. ALEXANDER HEARD, Dean of the Graduate School, who is head of a committee that last week released a report on campaign expenditures in national campaigns. President Kennedy said this week he would ask for legislation based on the committee's report.

Dr. Heard was appointed head of the bi-partisan committee by President Kennedy in November of 1961. The committee was directed by the President to make "recommendations with respect to improved ways of financing expenditures required of nominees for the offices of President and Vice-President."

Heard is nationally recognized as an authority on the financing of political campaigns. He headed a seven-year study of this subject that was conducted by the Institute of Research and Social Science here from 1953 to 1960.

From results of this study, Heard wrote "The Costs of Democracy," the only book-length treatment of campaign financing that has been written since 1932.

Following this directive of the President, Heard's committee made 12 recommendations as to ways of raising adequate campaign funds that would avoid placing candidates in "moral hock" to large contributors.

No Federal Aid

One of the main areas explored by the committee was a system of financing national campaigns by the federal government, as Puerto Rico now does.

The committee rejected this approach, Heard stated, because "in our society, the presumption is always in favor of private voluntary action where this will suffice."

"The Federal government should not subsidize campaigns until full efforts have been made by private organizations and these efforts have been proved inadequate. Neither political party has yet made a maximum effort to raise money by widespread solicitation."

"The healthiest way of financing campaigns is through large numbers of small and medium sized contributions."

STUDENTS PROTEST BOMB TESTS

Japanese Stone US Embassy

TOKYO (UPI)—Screaming and chanting Japanese students, protesting U. S. nuclear testing, Friday stoned the walls of the U. S. Embassy compound and fought police in an unsuccessful attempt to storm the building.

More than 2,000 students surged through the streets of downtown Tokyo in the largest anti-bomb demonstration since the United States resumed testing in the atmosphere Tuesday. They clashed repeatedly with 700 policemen.

Most of the students were members of the militant leftist Zengakuren Federation. Their leaders urged them on with loudspeakers as the students snake-danced their way toward the embassy.

Police said 10 student leaders were arrested and 30 students and 10 policemen were injured in the demonstrations, which began at noon and lasted until evening.

Try to Enter Embassy

The march reached its climax in the attempt by about 1,500 demonstrators to enter the embassy compound, marching four abreast with arms locked. They charged the massive embassy gate, but ran into a wall of policemen braced three feet deep against the gate, and were hurled back.

The students organized a second charge, and the police, now kicking, slapping, and punching the demonstrators, beat them back again.

Then hundreds of students slumped to the pavement in a defiant sit-down demonstration, and others pelted the compound walls with stones. Police loudspeakers ordered the demonstrators to move on. When they refused, policemen moved in, wrestled the students to their feet, and hustled them down to an intersection about five blocks from the embassy entrance.

Some had to be carried bodily. Others allowed themselves to be dragged, but most walked willingly, jeering and hooting at the policemen.
