

Playmakers Slate 'Ponder Heart' Sat. Night

Court Room Scene From Rehearsal For "The Ponder Heart."

The Junior Carolina Playmakers, with the aid of pistachio mashed potatoes, will present "The Ponder Heart" Saturday night at 8 in the Playmakers Theater.

The play will mark the climax for the high school students of a four-week course in all phases of the theater in which the use of mashed potatoes to simulate ice cream was only a minor part of their instruction in theater.

The full-length play, starring journalism professor and veteran playmaker Walter Spearman and the fifty-two students in the course, is a comedy based on Eudora Welty's best-selling novel. Spearman will play the leading role of Uncle Daniel Ponder, an amiable Southern gentleman accused of murdering his seventeen-year-old bride. Spearman was associated with the Charlotte Playwrights Club for a number of years, and has won several Little Theater and Carolina Dramatic Association awards.

Grooming For Life

The Junior Playmakers, many of whom have had no previous experience in the theater, began preparation for this production when they arrived June 17. In ad- (Continued on Page 7)

UNC NEWS

CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, JULY 12, 1962

Group Sees Value Of Out-Of-Staters

A recommendation that tuition and fee charges to out-of-state students "reflect, as accurately as possible, the actual cost of undergraduate instruction" was made by the Governor's Commission on Education Beyond the High School in a meeting here Friday at the Institute of Government.

With this recommendation, the Commission in effect advised against tuition raises in the Consolidated University as it stated, "it is apparent that tuition and fee charges at the University and State College cannot be raised substantially without making those institutions among the most expensive public institutions in the country, both to residents and non-residents of the State."

Individual Ratios

The Commission acknowledged the contribution of out-of-state students whose admission it said was "essential preparation for enlightened citizenship" among North Carolinians. It recommended that the trustees of each state college continue to set the ratio of resident and non-resident students according to the function of the individual institutions.

The Commission also adopted a formula for determining residence which would apply to both public and private institutions. This formula states that attendance at a private college in North Carolina by out-of-state students is not sufficient proof of permanent residence in North Carolina.

College Expansion

The issue of expansion of the state college system, both the community college plan and proposed expansion of the Consolidated University, was obviously near the surface of the minds of the Commission members as a recommendation for re-naming the three branches of the CU was deleted.

The section was stricken on the recommendation of President Friday who said he thought it might impose difficulties in naming new branches when and if they were incorporated into the greater University.

The group also adopted a reso- (Continued on Page 7)

Quincy Is Named Sports Publicist

Robert G. (Bob) Quincy, sports editor of the Charlotte News since 1950, returns to Chapel Hill and his alma mater on July 13 to assume the position of Director of Sports Publicity left vacant by the death of Jake Wade on May 9.

A 38-year-old native of Panther, West Virginia, Quincy graduated from Oak Ridge Military Academy in 1940 and served as a B-17 fighter pilot from 1943 to 1945. Returning to the University upon his discharge, he was awarded an A.B. degree in Journalism.

As a flying "ace" in WW II Quincy flew 30 combat missions for the Eighth Air Force while stationed in England.

From 1947 until 1949 he worked as sports editor of the Rocky Mount Telegram before joining the staff of the Charlotte News. When sports editor Furman Bisher transferred to Atlanta, Quincy was selected as the new boss.

The new Director of Sports Publicity is very familiar with the Atlantic Coast Conference, having served as past president of the ACC sports writers and Sally League sports writers.

Quincy is married to the former Edith Pell of Chapel Hill. They have four daughters and one son.

UNC Gets Three-Year Grant For Juvenile Delinquent Aid

A three-year federal grant totaling $153,744 has been received by the University for establishing a training center for personnel working with juvenile delinquency. These are the first federal funds given to an institution in the South in the administration's program for training youth workers.

No definite plans have yet been set by University officials for use of the funds. Officials of the Institute of Government stated that training centers evolved with the realization that the problems of juvenile delinquency must be met at the local level.

The federal program was established because of the shortage of trained personnel in the area of delinquency work.

reports that V. L. Bounds of that agency would be director of the program were erroneous, since that post has not yet been officially created.

The University is matching the federal funds with approximately $32,000 to be used for salaries and facilities. UNC is one of five universities in the country receiving grants in the Monday announcement by Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy.

A spokesman for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the department through which the grant came, said the idea of establishing university

Touring Students To Visit Campus

A group of students from over 20 different countries will visit the University for two days starting next Wednesday.

The students, recent delegates to the International Student Conference at Laval University in Quebec, Canada, will participate with UNC students and faculty in discussions on the American South and its educational system, especially as pertains to international student exchange.

Chapel Hill will be the only stop the group will make in the South. The visit next week will be the students' last on a tour they are making of several cities in the country.

Their visit and tour are being sponsored by the United States National Student Association, U.S. affiliate of the International Student Conference.

UNC has had several past presidents of NSA. Presently, Bill Harriss, past president of the UNC student body, is a member of the USNSA executive committee.

Board Approves Fraternity Move

The Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen Monday night granted a special use permit to the Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity, allowing it to move onto three lots adjoining their present rented quarters on Pickard Lane.

The board approved the permit without dissent despite protests by Law Prof. M. S. Breckenridge who lives on Pickard Lane. He said the town should not grant the permit because the University was interested in acquiring the property.

The fraternity has an option to purchase the three lots from Dr. Fred Patterson. The permit was granted on the recommendation of the town planning board. It was done subject to the fraternity's meeting certain (Continued on Page 7)

Campus Briefs

LIFE OF ZOLA

"The Life of Emile Zola" will be the free summer cinema flick tonight at 7:30 in Carroll Hall. As usual the film will be accompanied by a color cartoon and Benchly short.

FREE DANCING

Free juke box dancing will be available in Graham Memorial Rendezvous Room Friday and Saturday nights as usual.

MUSLIM MOVEMENT

"The Black Muslim Movement in America" will be the subject of the Baptist Student Union's Supper study program today at 5:45 p.m. in the B.S.U. Center at 151 E. Rosemary St. Jim Forbes, a ministerial intern at the Olin T. Binkley Baptist Church here will lead the discussion.

CAROLINA BEAUTY MARTHA PAT BELL enjoying the flowers in the Morehead Gardens. Martha is a senior transfer from St. Mary's and is majoring in Education. A member of Chi Omega sorority, she likes ballet, classical music and "parties—the crazy kind, you know, where you do something you don't always do."

(Photo by Richard McKee)