MAKING WAY FOR PARKING LOT

A wrecking crew began this week the demolition of this house at 136 E. Rosemary St. An adjoining house at 140 E. Rosemary will also be razed, and a town parking lot built in the lots.

The Office of Student Affairs ruled last year that students could not live in the two houses because of "poor sanitation."—Photo by Jim Wallace.

Only One Loyalty Oath Required Of Professors

By MIKE PUTZEL

There is no loyalty oath requirement for faculty or student employees of the University other than a pledge of allegiance to the North Carolina Constitution and the Constitution of the United States, an official University spokesman told the DTH today.

Questions relating to membership in the Communist Party, which were placed on the application blanks for prospective UNC employees, were deleted about two years ago by Chancellor William Aycock.

The questions, one of which was, "Are you now, or have you been any time in the past, a member of or in any wise connected with either the Communist party or with any organization or association controlled to your knowledge by Communists?" was placed on the applications in 1949.

The only oath required of University employees, at present, was instituted by action of the Board of Trustees, June 7, 1941, according to DTH files it reads as follows:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support the Constitution of the United States; so help me, God.

"I do solemnly and sincerely swear (or affirm) that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to the State of North Carolina and to the constitutional powers and authorities which are or may be established for the government thereof; and that I will endeavor to support, maintain, and defend the constitution of said state, not inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States, to the best of my knowledge and ability; so help me, God."

The same oath is required of all state employees before they can be paid by the state, Aycock said.

Two Chosen To Positions In Nursing Organizations

Two department chairmen in the School of Public Health have been chosen to high posts in American nursing circles.

Mrs. Margaret Dolan, chairman of the Department of Public Health Nursing, has been elected president of the American Nurses' Association, the professional organization for registered nurses. She will serve a two year term.

Dr. Bernard G. Greenberg, chairman of the Department of Biostatistics, has been given a two-year appointment as chairman of the Nursing Study Section, Division of Research Grants, U. S. Public Health Service.

Mrs. Dolan, who took office in May, will lead the 170,000 members of the ANA and will preside over all board of director's meetings during her term as president.

She has also been chosen to President Kennedy's Advisory Committee on Health Resources and is the only woman on the twelve-member group.

She was recently honored at the Georgetown University Alumni Association's annual John Carroll Award Dinner at Rochester, N. Y., by being named one of five recipients of the University's yearly recognition award.

Mrs. Dolan is a native of Lillington and has served as president of the N. C. Nurses' Association and as second vice-president and chairman of the Committee on Legislation of the ANA.

Dr. Greenberg, in his new post, will be chairman of the committee which reviews applications for research grants in nursing from the Public Health Service. He and his committee will visit nursing research facilities throughout the United States and make recommendations for the disposition of research funds.

A native of New York, he came to UNC in 1949. He is a research scientist as well as a teacher and has published numerous articles on biostatistics and medical science.

He is co-editor of a new book entitled "Contributions to Order Statistics."

Col. Royall Introduced Resolution

By MIKE ROBINSON

Chapel Hill Post No. 6 of the American Legion wants an investigation of Communist activities on the UNC campus, the Daily Tar Heel learned yesterday.

A resolution endorsing an investigation was passed by the Post at its meeting Wednesday night. The resolution was introduced by Col. Henry Royall, a retired Army officer now living in Chapel Hill. He is originally from Johnston County.

Col. Royall, chairman of the Post's Americanism Committee, cited the formation of leftist oriented clubs at the University as a reason for the proposed investigation.

It is not quite clear who would conduct the investigation. Col. Royall refused comment yesterday, but said a formal announcement would be released next week.

The resolution was also endorsed two weeks ago at the 16th District meeting of the American Legion at Schley. Col. Royall introduced the same resolution at the district meeting.

Chapel Hill members predicted the resolution will get state-wide Legion approval. They praised Royall's "extensive and detailed inquiry into this problem."

Legion members generally feel that an investigation into Communist activities will not be harmful to the University's reputation. They stress that an investigation, in itself, does not mean there are extensive Communist activities on campus.

A spokesman for the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution said she was not aware of any Communist activities on the UNC campus. She also commented that the local chapter does not "interest itself with such matters, as does the national DAR."

Two campus groups — the Progressive Labor Club and the New Left — are the most likely targets of the Legion resolution. The New Left is presently sponsoring a seminar in Marxist economics.

The instructor for the seminar, Dudy Edwards, said when it was started that he would make the course as objective as possible. Edwards, a law school student, said he could not comment on the Legion's resolution until he has further information.

President Friday and Chancellor Aycock also refused to comment.

Hodges' New Book Goes On Display In Wilson Library

An exhibit featuring Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges' new book went on display here this week in Wilson Library, according to William S. Powell, librarian of the North Carolina Collection.

The exhibit, Powell said, is in observance of the Oct. 6 publication date by the UNC Press of Hodges' "Businessman in the Statehouse."

In the book, the Carolina graduate and former Tar Heel governor talks about his six-year experience as chief executive of North Carolina.

Also remaining on display "for about three weeks," Powell said, are two other exhibits featuring a collection of "University Keepsakes" and Thomas Wolfe's "Look Homeward, Angel."

Among the "keepsakes" are: Dr. Elisha Mitchell's watch that stopped ticking the hour he lost his life in 1857 while exploring Eastern America's highest peak—Mt. Mitchell; and a bell used to assemble classes at UNC "in the old days."

The Wolfe display is composed of Danish, Italian, French, British and Japanese editions of "Look Homeward, Angel"—together with a copy autographed by the famous Tar Heel writer in 1937.

Women's Council To Oppose Mandatory Open Trial Plan

By MIKE ROBINSON

The Women's Honor Council said in a statement yesterday to the Daily Tar Heel that they oppose a mandatory open trial system.

Their statement was in reply to Men's Honor Council Chairman Walter Dellinger who has called for student honor trials to be open to two representatives of the DTH.

Under present rules, students accused of honor council offenses can request an open trial, but it is optional. Most students do not use this privilege.

Bev Hanes, chairman of the Women's Honor Council, said the honor council system would become based on fear and threats if trials became open.

said a student should not be put on public display for the entire campus to criticize.

Dellinger's proposal would not reveal the name of an accused or convicted student.

The Council continued to say that an open trial would give control of the Honor System to the DTH.

Council Statement

The council proposed that a general statement of the violation and the verdict be submitted to the DTH. But, no reporters would be at the trial, unless requested by the defendant.

This statement would, the Council said, appear on Tuesday's editorial page.

cil contends, serve to inform the student body of the Council's work, but not encroach upon the "right" of a defendant to have his identity protected.

Dellinger said open trials would allow students and faculty members to determine how well the Councils are fulfilling their function.

His proposal will require an amendment to the student constitution. It is expected to become an issue in November's campus elections.

(The complete text of the Women's Council statement will appear on Tuesday's editorial page.)

Students Give FBI Account Of Walker's Part In Riot

Two UNC students who were in Oxford, Miss. during last Sunday's riot have given the FBI state-ments on Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker's part in the disturbances.

Ford Rowan and Mike Putzel, told an FBI investigator that they heard Walker's speech and saw him lead students in a march toward the Federal marshalls. Rowan and Putzel were part of the seven-man Daily Tar Heel reporting staff in Oxford.

They have volunteered to testify against Walker if necessary. The former army general has been charged with insurrection against government authority.

Other students interviewed by the FBI Friday were DTH co-Editor Jim Clotfelter; Managing Editor Wayne King; News Editor Bill Wuamett; and staff members Neill Clark and George La Monte.

An FBI spokesman in Charlotte the Justice Department wanted to know "why they went down and what they saw."

The investigator talked to each student individually.

Clotfelter said "He asked us if we had gone to Ole Miss to 'fight' for either side—for CORE-NAACP or the White Citizens Council and Klan."

"We told him we went only to report the news and to get a better insight into the situation," the co-editor said.

Clotfelter told the FBI that he saw Mississippi state troopers leave the campus after the riots were under way. King, Clark and he reported seeing large numbers of troopers' car parked near an off-campus restaurant while the fighting was going on between marshalls and students.

State troopers stood by while a newsman's car was wrecked, King told the investigator. Several other incidents were reported by other Tar Heel reporters who were questioned.

Rowan and Putzel told the investigators they heard Gen. Walker praise the student for "protesting" the admission of Meredith. The general told the crowd they had been "sold out" by the state police director.

The UNC students said Walker had urged against violence in his speech to the crowd, but had asked for "continued protest."

Walker was doing nothing to incite violence when he saw him later Sunday night, Wuamett told the investigator.

Clotfelter said an Associated Press report that he had seen the Walker incident was mistaken.

The FBI spokesman in Charlotte said the interviews were ordered by the Justice Department. He emphasized that neither the FBI nor the Justice Department saw anything wrong in the students being in Mississippi.

No Investigation Planned At USC

COLUMBIA, S. C. (UPI) — The FBI said Saturday it was doubtful that its agents would question four University of South Carolina student newsmen who went to report on the situation at Oxford, Miss., this week.

Their stories were published in "The Gamecock" Friday and told of troops, streets lined with used tear gas shells, and the plight of Ole Miss students.

They said their car was searched eight times by federal authorities.

University Dean of Men George Tomlin denied reports that the trip to Mississippi led to disciplinary action against the students. He said the matter was under study.

Several University of North Carolina students were questioned by the FBI after a similar trip.

OVERFLOW CROWD HEARS WEAVERS

An overflow crowd of more than 2200 persons turned out Friday night to see the Weavers. Graham Memorial head Howard Henry said the doors to Memorial Hall were closed at 7:30, and estimated that the folk singing group would have drawn 4000 persons if there were an auditorium of that capacity on the campus.

An outdoor speaker was set up on the east side of Memorial Hall, and about 300 persons heard the concert from the lawn.—Photo by Jim Wallace.
