Use Of Recorder In Trials Being Investigated By SG

The use of a steno-machine is currently being investigated for possible recording procedure of Honor Council trials.

This machine is operated by a clerk who speaks into a steno-mask. He identifies each speaker and repeats the exact words spoken by persons at the trial.

A bill requesting $400 for tape recording equipment for honor trials has been introduced into legislature by Jean Yoder. It has been reviewed by the Finance Committee and the Judicial Committee. However, before final approval is made, the committee desires a report on other means of recording.

Larry McDevitt and Bill Hoyle are trying to determine the value of a steno-machine. They have talked with Mr. and Mrs. Mel Jordan, court reporters in Durham, who have worked with this machine. They say it is an effective recording device as all speakers are identified.

McDevitt said the steno-machine will be used in a future trial. The results will be compared with those of a tape recorder.

A steno-machine would probably be more expensive than a tape recorder. No prices have been quoted.

Student Leaders Split On Red Probe Opinions

By Mary Regan

Col. Royal's request for an investigation of Communism on campus was called everything from an "absurdity" to a "rightful investigation" by campus leaders yesterday. But most students interviewed seemed to think it "uncalled for" and based on "hearsay."

Inman Allen, president of the student government, said, "I have no strong feelings on it. If they want to conduct an investigation, it's their prerogative to make the request."

But Gil Stallings, president of the YMCA, called the proposed investigation an "absurdity."

"Col. Royal has demonstrated before that he's out of touch with the University. It's very uncalled for and detracts from the general stature of the American Legion," he added.

"Highly superfluous" is what Fran Roth, Pan-Hellenic, termed the investigation.

Bob Rearden, Chairman of Graham Memorial Activities Board, said he didn't think the investigation would find anything. "It's a futile effort on their part," he said. "But I think they have a right to do it. For the most part, I think it's uncalled for but it'll give them (American Legion) something to do."

Bill Crisswell, Student Body Treasurer said he thought they are trying to "scare up an issue and this is a good one for their purposes. It's not very helpful for this area, though and I don't think it's well-founded. Much of it is based on pure hearsay," he added.

YWCA president Donna Bailey said it's "rather ridiculous that there should be an investigation. For any learning to take place there has to be an atmosphere of freedom and an investigation certainly inhibits freedom."

Larry McDevitt, presidential assistant, refused to comment.

Chuck Wrye, DTH co-editor, said he felt the investigation was a romantic fling at modern day witch hunting, which might serve to keep some old men busy and give them an opportunity to shout a bit. "The regrettable part," he went on to say, "is that they shout so loudly when they know so little."

I do not feel that the presence of so-called "leftist" groups on this or any other campus threatens the freedom of anyone, and since they would gladly ignore the American Legion, why can't the American Legion return the favor to an equally harmless group."

Larry McDevitt, presidential assistant, refused to comment.

Chuck Wrye, DTH co-editor, said he felt the investigation was a

Leftists Hosted By Summer Paper

Bill Waumett, editor of last summer's student newspaper, the UNC News, said yesterday the News once reserved Gerrard Hall for the use of a group affiliated with the Chapel Hill Progressive Labor Club.

Waumett's statement followed charges by local American Legion officer Henry Royall that the leftist P.L. Club had used University facilities.

UNC Chancellor William B. Aycock recently released a statement saying, "Student organizations must be officially recognized by the University before they can use University facilities and buildings or otherwise before they can use University affiliated agencies."

The UNC News was recognized as an official student organization, but the Progressive Labor Club was not.

The summer school editor said Gerrard Hall had been reserved for the "Chapel Hill chapter of the Monroe Youth Action Committee." Waumett said he "understood" several members of the Monroe Committee were also members of the Progressive Labor Club.

He explained that the News had not "sponsored" the meeting in Gerrard. We agreed to reserve the hall for them because we felt they had a right to express their opinions. Neither the paper nor myself did not, and do not, support these opinions. We only felt they had a right to be expressed."

Bill Hobbs, Co-Editor of the summer school paper, said the paper had acted as "a host, not a sponsor." Hobbs said, "I know that distinction seems vague. Neither Waumett nor myself nor the paper supports their views. As hosts, we gave them a place to speak, but did not in any way approve of their position, officially or unofficially."

The meeting in question occurred last August. The Monroe group presented two speakers, both Negroes from Monroe, N. C. The speakers, Richard Crowder and Harold Reape, described what they termed, "racist oppression" of Monroe Negroes.

Both speakers were and are on bond pending trial on charges of "kidnapping" a white couple during racial disturbances in Monroe in August of 1961.

Waumett said yesterday he believed the UNC administration had been made aware of the fact that the News reserved Gerrard for the meetings.

But U. S. Can't Spend More Than Other Countries

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress Wednesday appropriated the full $100 million requested by President Kennedy for the purchase of United Nations bonds.

But the President will not be able to spend a penny more than other countries are willing to put up to help the world organization solve its current financial crisis. The funds, authorized last month, were contained in a compromise $2,025,895,700 appropriations bill passed by the House on a 172-76 roll call vote and then approved by the Senate on a voice vote.

Most of the funds are for operation of the State, Commerce, Justice Departments and the U. S. Information Agency during the year ending next June 30.

The total was arrived at by a House-Senate conference committee which ironed out the differences between a $1,901,215,700 House bill and a $2,036,908,700 Senate bill. The administration had requested $2,123,248,000.

The Senate included the $100 million for the U. N. bonds when it acted on the appropriations measure early this month. The House version, passed in July, did not carry the sum because the authorization in a separate bill had not been approved at that time.

Kennedy already has signed into law the authorization bill which would require him not to buy any more U. N. bonds than the total purchased by other countries. Congress ordered that U. S. purchases of the funds must be strictly on a "dollar-for-dollar" basis.

As of Wednesday, 23 countries have bought $34,103,000 of the bonds. In addition, other nations have promised to buy an additional $39,505,257 worth. If all followed through, the total would be $73,608,257.

U. S. Denies Spy Charge, Declare Man Assaulted

MOSCOW (UPI) — The United States charged Wednesday in a formal note of protest that a U. S. assistant naval attaché expelled by the Soviet Union was "physically assaulted." It also denied he was engaged in espionage.

U. S. Embassy sources said the expulsion of 41-year old Lt. Cmdr. Raymond Smith "looks very much like an outright reprisal operation" for the ouster of two Soviet United Nations diplomats last month on similar charges.

"The Soviets did the same sort of things with Smith as they claimed were done against their two citizens," the sources said. "But the outstanding difference was that the two Soviets in New York were involved in purchasing documents."

The Russians, Yegeny Prokhorov and Ivan Vydrov, were expelled for allegedly buying defense secrets from U. S. sailor Nelson C. Drummond, who has denied complicity. The Soviet Union charged at the time that the diplomats were manhandled.

The sources confirmed Soviet charges that Smith was carrying binoculars, a miniature camera, and a tape recorder when arrested in Leningrad Oct. 2 but called this "normal practice" for military attaches and denied the equipment was being used for espionage.

The sources denied, however, that the binoculars and camera were out of Smith's pocket when he was seized and said alleged maps he had on his person were only maps of Leningrad's public transportation system.

TORONTO EXCHANGE — Interviews for the Toronto Exchange Delegation are being held in Roland Parker II from 2-6 p.m. today and Friday.

E. Germans Nab 3, Two More Escape

BERLIN (UPI) — East German Communist police Wednesday captured three refugees trying to swim a border river to West Berlin. In another venture, two 15-year-old East German boys escaped through the barbed wire along the border.

The Communists fired 60 shots from submachineguns near the frontier in the pre-dawn darkness. Their target was not determined. Western sources reported, meanwhile, that the Soviets have shifted some of their new supersonic delta-wing jet fighters to bases along the Frankfurt-Berlin air corridor, one of the 20-mile wide strips used by the Allies for air access to Berlin.

Planes In View — Pilots and passengers could see the new planes clearly on the apron of the Soviet airfield at Zerbst, about 60 miles southwest of Berlin. One air expert reported spotting one high over Berlin recently.

The sources said the new planes appear to be the twin-jet Mig E166 or "flipper" as NATO calls it. This plane recently claimed a world speed record of 1,695 miles an hour. But they also could have been the older and slower delta-wing Mig 23 or fishbed, capable of speeds of about twice that of sound.

The fact that the jets were lined up in clear view of Western planes indicated the Soviets expected them to be seen. Western sources said the Russians were reminding the Allies of their power to harass Western air traffic to Berlin.

Boat Catches Refugees — West Berlin police said the three refugees caught by the East Germans were trying to swim the Spree River, near the ruins of the old Reichstag Building. A patrol boat raced after them at full throttle and the Communists hauled them aboard. There were no shots. The refugees were arrested and taken to an undisclosed location. They face prison terms for attempted flight.

The two boys were not detected as they crawled through several strands of barbed wire on West Berlin's border with East Germany. They chose an isolated spot on the city's northern limits and fled in darkness.

FROSH BASKETBALL — Any freshman interested in trying out for the freshmen basketball team should report to the main floor of Woolen Gym, dressed and ready to play at 7:30 p.m. on October 15.

CUSC

There will be a meeting of the CUSC in Greensboro Sunday. All delegates please meet at Graham Memorial at 1:45.

Di-Phi Accepts Open Trials

Honor Council trials should be open to two reporters, the Di-Phi voted Tuesday night. The members passed Bill Hobbs' resolution as amended by a 14-2 vote.

Heads of the Honor Council were split on the resolution. Walt Dellinger, Men's Council Chairman, supported it as amended. But Bev Haynes, Woman's Council Chairman, said the resolution would make individuals pay for the "mistake" of the Honor Councils in not handling cases better.

The original resolution said the student constitution should be amended to have all trials open to two reporters "who shall report trial proceedings in full, with the exception that the name of the defendant and any witnesses shall not be used without their written permission."

Roger Foushee proposed the amendment that the student could request a closed trial "if he can validate an argument that undue embarrassment and self-incrimination will ensue from an open trial."

His amendment called for a committee consisting of the chairman and the attorney general of each council and the president of the student body to determine which trials should be closed. A two-thirds vote would be necessary for a closed trial.

An earlier amendment proposed by former Di-Phi member John Randall providing that a trial could be closed at the request of any defendant was soundly defeated by a vote of 12-3.

The proposed measure drew fire from several speakers, including Foushee, and Dellinger. Both said they opposed the amendment chiefly on the grounds that it placed the issue solely in the hands of the defendant.

Former DTH editor Wayne King also spoke against the amendment on the grounds that "it would hamstring the entire purpose of the open trial plan." King also said he opposed any amendment which would limit campus knowledge of council cases.

Foushee's amendment passed 9-4. Mike Lawler, speaker of the Student Legislature, censured the Legislature after noting that only two representatives were at the debate. President Arthur Hayes of the Di-Phi Society noted that less than half the members were present.

Hobbs said the resolution would further the concept of student responsibility, be more realistic, look out for the students' interests, and let the students know what the members of the Honor Council were doing.

But Jim Reston said keeping names secret would arouse more curiosity, suspicion would be cast on the defendant and the bad record could not be wiped out as it now can.

Members of the society and guests voted after the amendment passed. The vote for the resolution as amended was 14-2 in favor by the society and 18-3 in favor by all present.
