Judge Upholds Honor System; No Ruling On Carter Guilt

Beanbirds Tap 18 Fledglings

It was five o'clock in the morning, but in Chapel Hill, the birds were already up. Huddled in the Morehead Planetarium parking lot, The Noble Order of the Old Beanbirds prepared to take off on its annual Fall flight to peck a new batch of Birds.

After two hours of concentrated chirping, eighteen fledglings had been rounded up and conducted to the mystic nest. The new arrivals included Susan "Songbird" Birdsong, Charles "Crested Tomtit" Shaffer, John "Lesser Redpole" Nash, Judy "Bush Sparrow" Johnson, Roger "Keel-Tailed Grackle" Penland, Bill "Brown Creeper"

Davis, Rufus "Loggerhead Shrike" Edmisten, Susan "Crow" Crow, Eddie "Long-Winged Goatsucker" Connell, John "Ferruginous Finch" McNinch, Gary "Water Pewee" Gischel, Bobby "Yellow-Bellied Flycatcher" Reagan, Rob "Butter Bird" Glenn, Bob "Blue-Gray Gnatcatcher" Madry, Edith "Red-Breasted Nuthatch" Alston, Martha "Asquatic Wood Wagtail" Wolfe, Edith "Bohemian Wax-Wing" Kellerman, and Brooks "Belted Kingfisher" Reed.

The new birds were chosen for their avian looks, as well as their ability to:

- 1) Go out on a limb.
- 2) Perch.
- 3) Do the Beanbird Shuffle.
- 4) Twitter-Tweet.
- 5) Control their squawks (In the air and on the ground).
- 6) Fly alone (Even with a broken wing).
- 7) Use their wings to cling to the strong and sturdy limbs of wisdom.

CAKE SALE

Wives of Medical Students are having a bake sale tomorrow at Fowlers Food Store featuring homemade cakes, pies, cookies, and candy. The sale will begin at 8 a.m. and last until the food gives out.

Writer Betty Smith To Lecture In Fall

Betty Smith, loval novelist of international fame, will be a visiting lecturer in the UNC Department of English during the spring semester, 1963.

The noted author of the best-selling "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" will be teaching English 34, the beginning course in creative writing. She will also teach the honors course in writing with Associate Professor Jessie Rehder.

Miss Smith has formerly served on the UNC faculty as a play consultant and special lecturer on drama in the Department of Dramatic Art. She is the author of over 75 published one-act plays and of a considerable number of three-act plays.

Betty Smith's success-winning novel of 1943 sold some six million copies, was translated into 16 languages, appeared as a motion picture and as a musical version on Broadway. She followed this beginning with two novels, "Tomorrow Will Be Better," published in 1948, and "Maggie Now," published in 1958. All three novels were published by Harper & Brothers, New York.

A native of Brooklyn, N. Y., Betty Smith wrote short plays for several years to help meet family expenses. She later was allowed to be a special student at the University of Michigan by the President of the University. Her first full length play won her the Avery Hopwood Award for excellence in playwriting at the University of Michigan. She then studied playwriting at the Yale University of Drama with the aid of a scholarship from Yale.

Following her study at Yale, Betty Smith heard that Carolina was looking for dramatists. She got the job and came here. It was here that she wrote her first novel, and she is now in the final stages of her fourth which will be published in the spring of 1963. This fourth novel is a departure from the preceding works; its setting is a university town instead of Brooklyn. This book is now being called "Annie Brown."

Debaters Among 8 Finalists At USC

UNC's debate team finished among the eight finalists in the 17th annual Carolina Forensics tournament which was held recently at the University of South Carolina.

Debate teams from 23 eastern universities participated in the tournament, each team debating both sides of the questions. There were eight rounds of debate, four affirmative and four negative.

UNC's team of Bill Patterson and George Carson debated the question, "Resolved that the non-communist nations of the world should establish an economic community."

They finished the sixth round of the debate with a 5-3 record.

Duke University and the University of Miami placed first in the semi-finals, both having a record of 8-0.

In the final round of the tournament the UNC team was defeated by Duke.

The 17th debate on Dec. 7 and 8 is the next debate in which the UNC varsity debate team will participate.

The highlight of the debate team's year will come on Jan. 4 and 5 when UNC will be host to the Atlantic Coast Conference Debate tournament. All eight teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference will meet at UNC for the debates.

The novice debate team at UNC has also been active this semester. The novice team went to Wake Forest for a debate tournament on Nov. 2 and 3, finishing it with an affirmative record of 4-2 and a negative record of 2-4.

Mac Armstrong is president of the debate team. Vice-president is Haywood Clayton; secretary, Charlie Heatherly; and treasurer, Bill Patterson.

Y-Sponsored Trip To Europe Slated

By MARTIN KRUMING

A 66 day trip to Europe for only $1285, or $19.50 a day. Sound impossible? Not at all, according to Claude Shotts.

In 1953 Shotts, general secretary of the YM-YWCA, became distressed that the University had not organized a European tour program. After discussing the idea with Carolina students and contacting people in Europe, he finally accompanied a group across the Atlantic in 1958. The program grew in intensity and on June 11, 1962, 30 students aged 19 to 22 embarked by jet from Idlewild Airport in New York. They were accompanied by Shotts and his wife.

In order to get the maximum value from a summer in Europe, the students met in weekly seminars during February, March and April. There was a three day conference in Washington for briefings with the Embassies and the State Department.

One unique feature about the YMCA sponsored tour is that it caters only to students. "Often you will get a tour which includes both students and older people. And of course you know who will direct the group as to what it sees and where it goes," Shotts said. Although time is devoted for Westminster Abbey, NATO International Headquarters in Paris, and the Roman Forum, students are able to live and mingle with the European people. Meeting with French school children or visiting the Lord Mayor of Dublin is not at all unusual. Shotts said. Included in the tour is a week's stay in London, Paris, Florence, Berlin and Rome. This summer Heidelberg will be replaced by Prague and Madrid.

"It is a program with people," the personable general secretary said. Meetings are arranged with students, faculty members, civic leaders and government representatives in each country.

One of the great problems of European trips is that they are forced to travel from place to place by bus. This is both time consuming and quite boring. "You know how dull it can be to sit in a European bus for three hours and see only Americans," said Shotts. But this difficulty was erased last year when the group flew to each city by commercial planes. The time was cut in half.

An authority on European tours, Shotts is willing to compare the YMCA trip with that of any commercial tourist agency. Certainly the Carolina tour is the most enriching for the least amount of money.

He also emphasized that Carolina students always receive excellent hotels, food and guides. Plans for the 1963 summer trip are already in the making. Although there is no limitation on the number of students taken, Shotts suggests that all those seriously interested in the program contact the YMCA office or see him personally in the Y building.

All Evidence Heard Today In Court

By BILL WAUMETT
Special to the DTH

RALEIGH—The legality of the honor system was upheld yesterday in Wake County Superior Court as Anne Royal Carter appealed her 1961 suspension by the Women's Honor Council.

After hearing evidence in the case, however, Judge Heman Clark said his judgment would be restricted to Miss Carter's case and "would not challenge the authority of the trustees to delegate responsibility in disciplinary matters to the Chancellor or the student body."

Judge Clark did not announce when he would release a decision as to Miss Carter's guilt, but did say, "although my judgment in this case may differ from that of the women's council, I am not sure that there is too much I can do about it at this point."

Material witnesses were heard in the court yesterday after Judge Clark ruled Sept. 21 that records of the trial were inadequate for him to make a judgment on Miss Carter's guilt.

The court heard testimony from Latin instructor John Gatlin, Latin Department Head Dr. Albert Suskin, former Women's Council head Priscilla Wyrick and Miss Carter.

Catlin testified that Miss Carter turned in the answers to an original exam instead of the makeup exam which he gave her.

He said he gave Miss Carter the makeup exam in his office and that she went to an adjoining room to answer the questions. During the examination, he said, she asked for, and was granted, permission to move to another room because of the noise.

Catlin indicated that the two exams, the original and the makeup, were similar in that they covered the same material, but that the same answers would not apply to both exams.

After about 15 minutes, he testified, Miss Carter gave him the answers to the exam in the hall outside his office.

He then asked her for the question sheet, according to his testimony, and she left to look for it while he taught a class.

Catlin said he never saw the makeup exam again.

Miss Carter testified that after leaving Catlin in the hall, she went to the ladies room where she had finished taking the exam and found the question sheet there in a trash can.

She returned the question sheet, she said, to the seminar room adjoining Catlin's office where she had begun taking the test.

A copy of the original exam which Catlin said he later found in his desk had his name written on the back in handwriting which resembled Miss Carter's.

Miss Carter contended that Catlin had given her the original exam, by mistake, rather than the makeup he had intended.

She said she had left the question sheet in the seminar room rather than his office because she did not know which desk in the room was his.

Catlin said he had thrown away all copies of the original exam except for the typewritten original copy. He said the makeup exam was also typewritten.

The typewritten original, presented as evidence, had Catlin's name on the back, in handwriting resembling Miss Carter's.

Miss Carter said she would not object to a handwriting analysis of the name on the back of the paper.

The defense contended that the original exam was indeed the one Catlin had given Miss Carter, and that she had written his name on the back.

AFROTC BALL SET

The first Air Force ball in the history of the local AFROTC "Flying Tar Heels" will be held November 30, according to a spokesman for the AFROTC Information Office.

The formal dance will feature a fifteen piece band which will furnish traditional dance music plus jazz and the "twist". According to the spokesman, all AFROTC Cadets, Angels, and special guests are expected to attend the fete at the Durham Elks Club.

The dance is being planned by the Arnold Air Society and will be payed for from the Cadet Social Fund.

WESLEY HOUSE

There will be a supper at Wesley House tonight at 6 p.m. Call for reservations before 2 p.m. today. A group will go to Greensboro to see "Carnival" after supper.

Toronto Exchange Students Scheduled To Arrive Today

Twenty seven students from the University of Toronto will arrive in Chapel Hill this afternoon for a three day visit as part of the fourth annual Student Government Canadian Exchange Program.

The group will be officially welcomed to the campus by President and Mrs. William C. Friday at a reception at their home late this afternoon. Several UNC faculty members will also be present.

After a dinner at The Ranch House, the exchange students will attend the Germans Club concert in Memorial Hall, sitting en masse in the orchestra pit. Saturday's schedule will feature a planetarium show, tours of the Computation Center and Ackland Art Center, classroom visits, and a discussion session led by Dr. Sam Hill of the Department of Religion on "Anxiety in the Post-Modern Age." Various sororities will host the group for lunch, and a cook-out and cabin party is scheduled for the evening.

Members of the Carolina group will each be the official host for one Canadian student, his "Co-Tar Heel" for the weekend. These roles will be reversed during the seminar break when the UNC group visits Toronto.

A panel discussion, "Integration: Is it Moving Fast Enough?" will be held on Sunday, and a banquet at The Carolina Inn will conclude the visit.

IDC Votes $25 To Broadcast Cheers To UNC-Irish Game

The Interdormitory Council Wednesday night adopted a proposal to contribute $25 toward the broadcasting of cheers originating here to the Carolina-Notre Dame football game at South Bend, Ind., on Saturday.

The proposal also urged the residents of the men's dormitories to support the broadcast by going to the Tin Can and participating in it.

Much discussion preceded the voting on the issue and it was passed by a margin of four votes.

Two other proposals were also passed by the Council, both unanimously.

Smith also said that there is also a plan for guaranteeing a company a minimum number of dates in order that the groups participating might get a reduced rate. The reduction, he said, may be as much as 20 percent.

Gerry Good, Chairman of the Dorm Contest Committee, reported the present standings in the contest. The top five are as follows: Everett - 307, Mangum - 267, Joyner - 254, Ruffin - 232, Avery - 182.

Good also said that in future UMOG Contests the committee would recognize a dormitory winner since the fraternities so consistently win this contest. The committee will award points for this at its own discretion.
