Intersectional contests with strong Indiana and Kentucky, following Wednesday's Alumni game, will complete the 1962 schedule. 1963 will bring games with Yale and Notre Dame, then twelve conference battles-and if South Carolina's surprising showing is any indication every ACC game will be a battle,

Dean Smith's men do not meet another ACC opponent until January 9 when they play at Wake Forest. The Tar Heels don't play host to a league foe until January 16 when North Carolina State furnishes

The Tar Heels will have to play those 12 league games within 45 days, but this should be to their advantage. The four non-conference International's second weekly rat- New York University, St. Bonavencontests which precede the remainder of the ACC schedule should well prepare them for the always interesting ACC race.

The four outside foes are among the strongest in their respective league and area. Indiana in the Big Ten, Kentucky in the Southeasem. Yale in the Ivy League and Notre Dame in the midwest-sort of reminds you of the UNC 1962 football schedule.

UNC's Academic All-Stars

UNC's fodotball team dominated the All-ACC Academic football team announced last week with co-captain Joe Craver repeating from last year.

Ken Willard-the only sophomore to qualify for the team-and junior Gene Sigmon joined Craver, giving UNC three selections. Duke and N. C. State followed with two selections.

Two team captains and five dean's list students were on the 10th annual selection announced by Commissioner Jim Weaver. The 11 players on the team will be nominated for the All-American Academic team sponsored by the College Sports Information Directors of Craver is the honor team's center with a B average in pre-med. Willard, the fullback, also had a B average in pre-med. Sigmon, a tackle, compiled a B average in political science.

Gary Cuozzo, Virginia's quarterback who broke all school passing records, topped the grades with a 3.7 average out of a possible 4.0 in his senior pre-medical year. Cuozzo is one of the eight scholarathletes chosen by the National Football Foundation for a $500 Earl Blaik Fellowship, and the Cavalier quarterback will use it at Yale served. medical school next fall.

Other members of the team are ends Ken Lester of South Carolina and Oscar Thorsland of Clemson; tackle Dick Havens of Duke; guards Skip Matthews of State and Bill Shendow of Wake Forest; and halfbacks Joe Scarpati of State and Bill Futrell of Duke.

McSweeney's Luck

Bryan McSweeney, UNC's 6-5 junior forward who had been counted on for possible first-string duty, is Carolina's hard-luck basketballer. The New Yorker, who has a 3.76 academic average, injured an ankle on opening day of practice and was in a cast for five weeks. He returned to action a week ago. Just when it seemed he was rounding into shape, he was down again. This time he sprained the

The "Chair" goes to the winner of the long rivalry and came into being when Wake coach Bones McKinney "destroyed" one of the Reynolds Coliseum chairs in the heat of his Deacons 99-91 loss to the Wolkpack in the 1960 Dixie Classic.

Rather than pay cost for the chair, when presented a bill by State Coach Everett Case, McKinney had the chair repaired and Painted Black and Gold (Wake colors) at the top and Red and White (State colors) at the bottom and stated, "We'll play for the chair and let the winner keep it until the other wins it back."
