NSA Meeting Will Be Held Here Friday

Student leaders from 33 colleges and universities in North Carolina and Virginia will assemble here Friday for a regional conference of the National Student Association.

Because UNC is the host school, the meetings will be open to all interested Carolina students. Applications are in the Student Government Offices.

A banquet in the Carolina Inn will begin the two day conference Friday evening. Al Lowenstein, past NSA President, will give the keynote address.

Curtis Gans, past vice president of NSA, will speak at a seminar Saturday on "The Role of Southern Schools in NSA resolutions and Policies."

Mike Lawler, vice president of the UNC Student Government, will speak on "The Southern Universities Student Government Association and its challenge to NSA."

Other seminars includes a discussion led by Duke Marston, NSA regional chairman, on "NSA's Value to Student Governments."

Wake Forest College, a non-member school, will have observers at the meeting. According to Marston, Wake Forest has been interested in NSA for several years, and may join the Association this year.

The University of Virginia and Washington and Lee University have also been invited to send observers.

"Students who wish to attend the region should come to the Student Government Offices in Graham Memorial today or Thursday," said Harry DeLung, NSA Coordinator. "The registration fee is $5, which includes the banquet. I would encourage all interested students to take advantage of this NSA meeting at Carolina, since the conferences are held here only at four or five year intervals," he added.

The official delegates from UNC will be Inman Allen, Mike Lawler, Lynda Colvard, Bob Spearman, Ford Rowan, and Harry DeLung.

"Chez Hickory," off-campus organization, will be entertaining all participating students at a party on Friday night. The group held a similar function for the Toronto Exchange.

A general plenary session will be held at the end of the conference Saturday afternoon. No resolutions or elections are anticipated, according to DeLung.

GM Forms Group To Publicize

Graham Memorial announced yesterday the formation of Current Affairs Committee. Its chairman will be Ford Rowan.

The new committee "offers great potential in exciting an awareness among students of current happenings both in the community and beyond," Rowan said.

"We plan to sponsor immediate programs of faculty speakers, discussions, and debates on newsworthy topics; we also plan to publish a leaflet from time to time presenting an analysis of current events as developed by student and faculty writers."

Bob Reardon, President of Graham Memorial, said yesterday that this committee will sponsor discussions featuring students, faculty, and administrators primarily from this campus, "because one of the objectives of the committee is to broaden the informal educational contact between students and faculty at Carolina."

Reardon added that "it is not the objective of this committee to bring outside speakers to this campus, for this is excellently done by other organizations with this as their purpose."

Interviews will be held today from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Grail Room and tomorrow from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Woodhouse conference room at Graham Memorial.

'Forgotten Village' Closes Film Series

The movie "The Forgotten Village" will be presented tonight as the third and final film in the series "A Trilogy on Latin America."

"The Forgotten Village," by John Steinbeck, is the story of a small Mexican village and the struggle of one of its dozens of women to do away with the medical aid and import modern medicine.

The program will be held at 7 p.m. in Carroll Hall and is open to the faculty, their families, and townspeople, in addition to students.

Two-Party System Has Not Arrived, Congressman Says

Third District Congressman David N. Henderson said Monday night the results of the November election cannot be interpreted as proof of the beginning of a two-party system in North Carolina.

Speaking to the University of North Carolina's Young Democrats Club, Henderson said most of the successful Tar Heel GOP candidates either sold pedaled their Republican label or ignored it altogether.

Republicans also openly acknowledged their dependency on Democrat votes, he said, citing the action of Guilford County Republicans in saying they would keep Democrat workers in county government because they need their votes.

Asked his prediction on the outcome of the 1964 gubernatorial contest Henderson said "He'll be a good Democrat and he'll be elected."

He blamed the religious issue tied in with the 1960 national election for the fact that GOP gubernatorial candidate Robert L. Givens of Sanford polled 46 per cent of the vote. He said Tar Heel Democratic congressmen were also hurt by the religious issue.

But, he said, President Kennedy's bold action in the Berlin and Cuban crises has solidified the nation behind him and the national ticket will not be a hindrance to the State ticket in 1964.

Speaking about recent Republican gains in the State, Henderson said, "Some people regard Republican membership as a status symbol. They believe a GOP bumper sticker on an old Ford puts it into the Cadillac class."

He said those who accept Republicanism as a status symbol "will find it hard to digest when forced to swallow all of it in its entirety."

"My feeling on the UN is not too much one way or the other," said Congressman Henderson.

"Where we can use it and get some good out of it, I think we ought to, but I think Kennedy's action in Cuba is typical of what our stand should be.

"It very decidedly proved that strong action is the answer," the Congressman said.

"Those who charged that the Democrats are soft on Communism were soundly defeated in the last election. This shows that the voters are solidly behind the President and the Democratic Party. The President has taken action, starting in Berlin and culminating in Cuba.

"The international Communist conspiracy has been stopped dead in its tracks," Henderson continued. "Pro-U.S. sentiment is highest that it has been in the past decade.

"Khrushchev is too busy digging out of his own difficulties to bury anyone else," the Congressman said.

"I have been asked to explain the withdrawal of the Russians from Cuba. My opinion is perhaps not worth very much, but I have a very strong opinion.

"It is that the military might of the U. S. was great enough to make the Russian forces back out, and was capable of unleashing the force of power on the Russian sailors and ships."

French Demand Independent Force De Gaulle Blocks Rusk's Drive To Restore Unity Among Allies

PARIS (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk began an intensive drive Tuesday to restore the shaken unity of NATO. But almost at once he ran headlong into an uncompromising demand by President Charles de Gaulle for an independent French nuclear force.

Rusk will head the American delegation at a three-day session of the NATO council Thursday, Friday and Saturday. In an airport statement he appealed to other NATO members to sink their differences and bolster the strength of the alliance.

But in a message to the French National Assembly later, De Gaulle said it was "inconceivable" that France should not have its own nuclear striking force, something the United States has opposed.

De Gaulle also declared that "at the moment" NATO is indispensable for the defense of the free world. The statement appeared to NATO only a temporary institution.

Rusk was host at a dinner Tuesday night to British Foreign Secretary Lord Home at a time of another brewing crisis in Anglo-American relations over reported U. S. plans to scrap the Skybolt air-to-ground missile under development for the British Royal Air Force.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara was in London conferring with British Defense Minister Peter Thorneycroft over the Skybolt plans. The issue has touched off a furor in Britain which fears scrapping the project would cripple its independent nuclear power—an issue that could basically affect NATO.

Both Rusk and McNamara are expected to tell America's European allies bluntly during the Paris NATO talks that the United States believes they should make a greater contribution in conventional forces to the alliance.

In addition, Rusk will confer Wednesday with De Gaulle and possibly with Premier Georges Pompidou. He was expected to try to iron out some of the differences which have made France the odd-man-out in the Western alliance.

Parking Problems May Grow Deeper In Coming Years

Will student and faculty parking on the UNC campus become a major problem in the next two years as the number of students and staff members increases?

Bill Harris of the Dean of Men's Office says no.

But other members of the faculty and Chapel Hill residents seem to feel differently.

Kai Jergeson walked into his 9 a.m. class yesterday and said, "I'd like you all to know that things are fine this morning in Elizabeth City... that's where I'm parked."

Lucien Foust, of the staff of the Chapel Hill Planning Board, when asked about future parking problems, said that "the lack of parking facilities on the University campus presents a problem now which can only get worse as enrollment increases."

The Planning Board, he said, is concerned with problems generated by both the town and campus, but works directly only with solutions which take place in the town itself.

Foust added, however, that if the parking facilities on the campus are not increased, and the number of cars does increase, the problem will directly concern the Planning Board, because student and faculty cars overspread into Chapel Hill residential areas.

The fraternity zoning question is much a result of parking congestion, Foust said. The high ratio of cars per student creates a parking problem which has been of concern to the residents of Chapel Hill.

The Chapel Hill Planning Board, he said, is now working on a 20-hectare site, now working on a 20-hectare site.

Chancellor Asks New Appellation For Cow College

State College Chancellor John Caldwell met with his students Monday night in an attempt to convince them of the merits of the proposed name change of the school.

Caldwell, who requested the meeting, said he would have "suggested a neutral presiding officer, but I quickly realized no such person exists around here." He added with a grin, "I did request a body guard down the center aisle."

He then presented his views on the proposed name change and defended the move as being in the interests of symmetry, uniformity, and unity.

He pointed out that the legal name of the college at present is North Carolina State College of the University of North Carolina, and said the UNCIR proposal came about because of changes that have been proposed within the University.

Under these proposals, State College would be allowed to award liberal arts degrees, and male undergraduates would be admitted to Woman's College.

Caldwell said that this necessarily means that the name of Woman's College must be changed. In addition, there is the problem of what to name any future branches of the University.

It was only natural, he said, that in the interests of symmetry and unity, the educators turned to the idea of using the UNC designation with the city in which the branch is located.

He said that the picketing of the chancellor's house was a legitimate enterprise. "I would simply ask that if you picket anymore in the full view of the public, please spell all the words right."

Caldwell said that there is absolutely no political motive behind the proposed name change and said that the proposal did "not originate with the partisans of UNC at Chapel Hill."

He added "They don't want this much either."

Communists Finally Go On Trial

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Attorneys agreed Tuesday on a jury of eight women and four men to hear the government's charge against the Communist party of the United States that it defied a federal order to register as an agent of the Soviet Union.

Federal District Judge Alexander Holtzoff recessed the case until Wednesday afternoon immediately after the selection of the jury.

Only about 50 spectators were on hand to witness the start of the trial, the latest round in the government's 12-year legal fight against the party.

Prospective jurors were questioned about membership in various organizations, or subscriptions to extremist publications of the left or right.

U.S. attorneys complained about two men, later identified as party members, who stood in the halls of the court building outside the trial chamber handing out literature attacking the registration law. Judge Holtzoff later ordered U.S. marshals to arrest anyone who continued to distribute literature in the building.

NO LOYALTY OATH
The Women Strikers demand no oath of loyalty, said the spokesman. "Only that its members want immediate total disarmament with proper UN safeguards, an end to the nuclear menace, and world cooperation with the United Nations to secure a permanent peace."

When asked whether any of the women called before the

Women For Peace Refuse To Reply At HUAC Hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A House hearing on possible Communist infiltration of American peace movements was punctuated Tuesday by a series of angry episodes, including the forcible ejection of a former FBI agent.

The one-time agent, Jack Levine, was hustled from the room by three Capitol police when he interrupted the hearing by the House Committee on Un-American Activities to denounce the inquiry as "just disgraceful."

Levine, who served 11 months with the FBI in 1960 and 1961, resigned and recently wrote an article hotly criticizing FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

In the midst of the hearing, Levine leaped to his feet, demanding that the investigation stop. "I just became so aroused," he told newsmen later.

Three women witnesses balked at answering a number of the committee's questions.

They were: Mrs. Blance Posner of Scarsdale, N. Y., who invoked the Fifth Amendment 44 times during her appearance. She refused to say whether she had ever been a Communist or whether she was an official of the Women's Strike for Peace Movement.

Mrs. Ruth E. Meyers of Roslyn, N. Y., who cited the First and Fifth Amendments in refusing to say whether she was a Communist party member. Outside the hearing room, she told newsmen she had never been a Communist but on the witness stand she termed the questions "insults to an American citizen."

Mrs. Lyla Hoffman of Great

Neck, N. Y., who represents Nassau County on the peace group's central coordinating committee. She refused to answer the First Amendment to say whether she had been a Communist party member in Brooklyn in 1944. She commented, however, that she was not now a Communist nor had been for the past five years.

Mrs. Hoffman said she was active in the peace group "under no discipline or direction other than my own conscience."

In advance of the hearing, Rep. William F. Ryan, D-N.Y., criticized the inquiry.

"The hearings apparently are intended to discredit the Women's Strike for Peace and to cast doubt upon the loyalty of those active in it," Ryan said in a statement. "The action of the committee induces conformity of thought and action and intimidates citizens who are seeking to express their concern for peace."

The Strike for Peace members have protested nuclear testing by both the United States and the Soviet Union. They have picketed both the White House and the Russian embassy here.

The first witness was Richard Flink, a young New York attorney, who worked in cooperation with the FBI after Soviet agents offered him money to help in his campaign as Republican candidate for the state assembly.

Flink testified that the Soviet officials had urged him to speak on behalf of trade with the Soviet bloc and support of peace groups. He did not directly link any group with the Russian offer.

Orderly Hearings
She said that the open hearings were orderly, but that over three hundred women were sitting in during the investigation and applauded "when they felt the women testifying had given a particularly good answer." "They also applauded when the women left the stand," said Mrs. Gordon.

Asked what the significance of the hearings would be, both for the Women Strikers and for the HUAC, Mrs. Gordon said that she felt the hearing would certainly strengthen the Women Strike for Peace, because they have already received enormous support from all over the country, including many Congressmen and the U.S. National Student Association.

She said that she felt, because of the support the group has gotten, that HUAC might not get its appropriation from Congress again.
