5 Named Summer Interns

The Political Science Department announced this week the selection of five undergraduate students to participate as summer interns in the seventh annual Political Science Intern Program at Washington, D. C.

Those selected from UNC were Vance Barron Jr., Gary Blanchard, Stuart Eizenstadt, Bob Spearman and John Ulfelder.

Their selection was announced by Dr. Don Matthews of the Political Science Dept., who coordinated the program to give promising students on-the-job experience.

Dr. Matthews said the 10-week summer program will bring young men in touch with political activity to benefit their own knowledge of the subject, and to prepare them as leaders at UNC.

Vance Barron Jr. is a political science major and is an honor student. Barron's appointment is exceptional because he is just a sophomore. According to Dr. Matthews, "For a sophomore to be selected he has to be exceptional, very exceptionally." Barron is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Vance Barron of Chapel Hill.

Gary Blanchard, a junior from St. Petersburg, Fla., is enrolled in the Political Science Honors Program where he made the Dean's list for the fall semester. He is a staff reporter for the Charlotte Observer and area correspondent for several radio stations. He is the son of Mrs. Phyllis C. Blanchard of Portland, Maine.

Another honors candidate in Political Science, Stuart Eizenstadt, also was selected. Eizenstadt, a junior from Atlanta, Ga., also made the Dean's List for the fall semester. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Eizenstadt of Atlanta.

Bob Spearman of Chapel Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Spearman is a junior and is taking a double major in History and Political Science. He was president of his Freshman class and has made straight A's since he enrolled in the University.

John C. Ulfelder, a junior working for honors in the history department, rounds out the list of interns. He has made the Dean's List several times. Ulfelder is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Howard Ulfelder of Worcester, Mass.

Dr. Matthews said the five were chosen on the basis of academic achievement, extra-curricular activities and interest in politics.

He added, "We've got a real good group of boys this year." UNC was the first Southern university to participate in the "intern" program and has only recently been joined by Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn.

More Arms In Cuba Would Set Off Crisis, JFK Says

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy declared Thursday that the world would be faced with the greatest crisis in history if the United States ever again should detect Soviet offensive missiles in Cuba.

The President made clear that the United States has no evidence of any such weapons on the island now. He conceded there could be missiles concealed in Cuba. But he said they would have to be set up to be used and "we will find them when they do."

"We hope for the best but expect the worst," the President told a televised news conference. "It's very possible the worst may come and we are prepared for it."

But the President scoffed at any idea that the Russians would launch an attack on the United States with the weapons it now has on Cuba. Any such speculation, he said, is to talk about "the willingness of the Soviets to begin a major war."

Kennedy did not think the Soviets would be so rash. He said both the Soviets and the Cubans are aware that the presence of offensive missiles on the island would create "the greatest crisis the world has faced in its history." At the same time, the President disclosed that the United States is pressing Russia to remove the troops and equipment it now has on the island. He said this is a subject of continuing discussion and he expects clearer information on the outcome "as the days go on."

Without identifying them, the President said that some members of Congress have passed on rumors and reports of a Soviet buildup in Cuba and have refused to say where they got the information. He said he could not carry out U. S. policy on such a basis.

"We have to move with hard intelligence," he said. "We have to know what we are talking about. We cannot base the issue of war and peace on a rumor or report which is not substantiated, or which some member of Congress refused to tell where he heard it."

The President said it may be that some missiles are "hidden away" in Cuba. But he said they have to be put on launching pads to be fired and the United States, with its systematic aerial surveillance, would spot them.

"Quite obviously, if the Soviet Union did that, it would indicate that they were prepared to take the chance of another great encounter between us, with all the dangers," he said.

"I think the Soviet Union is aware and Cuba is aware that we would be back where we were in October, but in a far more concentrated way."

The President deplored the "rumors and speculation" which made it necessary for Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara to "go on TV for two hours" Wednesday to report on the Cuban situation and present information that the government was "rather reluctant" to make public.

He added that he did not know what more the administration could do to convince some members of Congress that the Soviet offensive threat has been removed from Cuba.

Asked what the United States would do if Cuba should "forbid" aerial surveillance by the United States, Kennedy said "We would decide that when it comes up."

President Says NATO Split 'Would Be A Great Mistake'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy said Thursday it would be "a disaster" for the North Atlantic alliance to be divided in what he said is still a time of peril from communism.

Asked at his news conference about French President Charles de Gaulle's opposition to British entry into the Common Market and to multilateral nuclear arrangements, Kennedy noted Europe and North America are still "in stormy seas" of Soviet pressure.

"It would be a mistake for us to be divided when unity is essential," he said. "That must not take place."

It was one of the President's most blunt statements so far regarding the French president who has upset plans for European economic unity and common nuclear defense arrangements.

"We have supported the unification on Europe economically and politically," Kennedy said. He denied charges made recently by some of the European press that the United States would not treat Europe as an "equal partner."

A review of past U. S. policies toward Europe, Kennedy said, would lead to the opposite conclusion.

The President also made these other major points: —If Soviet offensive weapons should be found in Cuba now that they supposedly have been withdrawn, it would raise a "much greater risk" than it did last fall. —Despite withdrawal of Russian troops and missiles from Cuba he still regards the Soviet military threat in the Caribbean island as of "serious concern to this government."

No Negro Athletes Expected

By VANCE BARRON

Carolina will have no Negro athletes on its teams in the near future, but Athletic Director Chuck Erickson has said that no racial bars exist in the recruiting policies of the UNC athletic association.

The announcement by Maryland coach Tom Nugent last week that Darryl Hill, a Negro transfer from the U. S. Naval Academy, will play on the Maryland football team in 1963 has focused attention on the recruiting policies of the schools of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Wake Forest College Athletic Director Billy Hildebrand has announced that his school will begin recruiting Negro athletes who meet the standards of Wake Forest College. Wake Forest thus became the first school in the state to announce plans to recruit Negro athletes.

Athletic director Chuck Erickson said earlier in a statement that, "when we recruit we look for good students, good athletes and good campus citizens. We have never given consideration to anything else." Erickson was not available for further comment yesterday.

When asked yesterday whether or not Carolina is considering any Negro prospects, football coach Jim Hickey replied, "We at this time are not in contact with any." Basketball coach Dean Smith said that two Negro boys tried out for the freshman basketball team earlier this year, "one of whom made the first cut. The other boy quit earlier."

Coach Smith went on to say "the University has no policy against Negro students or against recruiting Negro athletes. We have screened a few in the past, but they either failed to meet the academic requirements or were not selected for other reasons." He added, "We go after the best student athletes, period."

Both coaches said that they were in full agreement with the statement of policy by Erickson.

In other schools across the state, State football coach Earle Edwards has said, "We don't have any plans to recruit Negro athletes." Three years ago, Irwin Holmes of Durham, N. C., was co-captain of the State tennis team and the first Negro athlete to compete in ACC (Continued on page 3)

Search For Missing Student Fails To Produce Any Clues

By MICKEY BLACKWELL

The search continued yesterday for missing graduate student and instructor Richard Lee Brand, but nothing new has turned up, according to the Chapel Hill police and University officials.

Two thorough searches were held yesterday for Brand, a part-time instructor in the French Department.

The searches were entirely voluntary, according to Assistant Dean of Men William Long.

The first search ranged from the Forest Theater vicinity to the area around Gimghout Castle. The search party consisted of members of Sigma Nu Fraternity and was led by Bill Harris, Assistant to the Dean of Men, who received search experience last summer while working for the State Prisons Department.

However, it was learned that the note made no specific mention of suicide but it did indicate that Brand was depressed and despondent.

Brand's landlady told authorities he has been depressed for the past year.

Some officials believe Brand might have decided to simply "get away from it all" without telling anyone. However, his car is still here and there is no evidence he packed any clothing.

Brand is a former Fulbright scholar and an honorary Woodrow Wilson fellow. He is described as about six feet tall, of slender build and has dark thinning hair.

Britt Says Splinter Group Followed Basic SP Ideals

SP Chairman Robin Britt, in the wake of the departure of several of his key party members, said yesterday that the legislators who withdrew expressed the "same ideals that are the basic concepts of the Student Party."

Mike Lawler, Student Body vice-president and an SP member, said he too was in sympathy with the motives of the group, but that their methods might need re-evaluation.

The Student Party has been and must continue to be the party for the dormitory student," said Britt, "the party existing for the liberal tradition, the party seeking to defend against any encroachment upon the rights of the student, and the party that represents the students on this campus. The situation which has resulted stems from a lack of communication between the party and these legislators. The Student Party is being redirected towards these goals and will continue to strive in this direction. The leadership of these eight legislators, if it were re-channelled through the Student Party, could be an important factor in the revitalization of the party and of Student Government."

Lawler said, "Their complaint is a valid and reasoned position. However, because their action involves the welfare of the student community as a whole, their methods of

Independents Make Pledge For Service

A new campus political party has been formed by a group of former Student Party members, according to Dick Ellis, chairman of Student Legislature's Ways and Means committee.

The new party is called the Independent Student Party (ISP). Existing parties are the SP and University Party.

Ellis said the party is beginning a membership drive immediately, and said he expects additional support from "dissatisfied SP members." Ellis was one of the eight members of Student Legislature who announced Wednesday night they were renouncing their SP endorsements.

A "declaration of purpose" issued by the ISP yesterday pledges the new party to "the concepts of service to the student body . . . active representation of students' interests . . . and student autonomy."

Ellis said, "A broad-based student government in the liberal tradition is what we're working for. I want to see an active and progressive legislature that tackles the needs of every student in this university."

The text of the Declaration is as follows:

"We believe that the student body is best served when our community is governed from within, rather than managed from above. We shall work for a climate of student self-government, feeling that such provides more of a stimulus for individual participation and civic experience, and more of an adult atmosphere, than any situation developed by South Building administrators."

"We believe that student government should more fully provide services to the student body; should more fully represent the student interest in dealing with the administration, the faculty, the town and state; and should more fully lead and stimulate the student body in discussion and scrutiny of current issues and intellectual matters."

"We believe in a year round broad-based, active central student government representing all areas of campus, in strengthened local governments with more liaison with the central government, better communication between students and their government, and in improved party politics to achieve these ends."

"We repudiate politics for prestige, obstructionism, control by cliques, and political pettiness. To these goals we pledge ourselves with faith in the individual students of this campus to create a responsible student government."

Britt Says Splinter Group Followed Basic SP Ideals

achieving what they espouse must be critically examined.

For example, I think we must distinguish quite clearly between an independent third party and an independent group that will be a liberal coalition with the University Party.

We must distinguish between the Student Party tradition of "liberalism" and the higher tradition of liberalism which has always maintained the right of every position to speak within the party.

At this time I see three possible avenues for this party:

(a) It continues in the idea that it will be a coalition with the University Party's liberal leadership.

(b) It maintains an independent stature based truly on the principles of a Student Party exemplified by Hank Patterson, Bill Harris most recently.

(c) It consider itself an honest movement which has caused a reaction which will enable its spokesmen to return to the Student Party integrity intact—to a Student Party that has re-evaluated its essential principles and functions.

I do not mean to wave the good old flag or invoke motherhood. But this present situation is intimately related to the future growth of student government and welfare of the student body and these must
