

Offices In Graham Memorial

CHANCELLOR AYCOCK chats informally following his address Monday night of the future of education at U.N.C. Aycock discussed both plans for the expansion of the University at Chapel Hill, and problems confronting the other branches of the Consolidated University.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Chancellor Aycock Predicts

Enrollment 12-13,000 By '70

By CHUCK NEELY

In an hour-long talk to a Gerard Hall audience Monday night, Chancellor William B. Aycock predicted a UNC enrollment of 12,000 to 13,000 students by 1970.

Sponsored by the Student and University Parties and the State Affairs Committee, Chancellor Aycock spoke on plans for expansion for the University at Chapel Hill and the problems confronting the three branches of the consolidated University.

Chancellor Aycock noted that the purpose of student government was an important one in that it was up to student government "to develop leadership in the realistic laboratory of campus life." To attain that end, the Chancellor said a new student union was "essential." He noted that the facilities of Graham Memorial and its floor space are greatly lacking when the needs of the different organs of student government are examined.

He said that the proposed student union would provide 100,000 square feet of floor space devoted entirely to student activities, with another 25,000 square feet for a book store and other needed facilities, Graham Memorial provides only 25,000 square feet to meet the needs of UNC students.

In addition to a new student Union, Aycock said that plans for a new dormitory and an undergraduate library are being pushed in the General Assembly. He stated that the University was virtually assured of the construction of a new auditorium-basketball court in the near future.

Plans for this building are now before the legislature, and stand a good chance for passage, according to Chancellor Aycock. If the plans are passed, construction will begin in time to have the new court open for the 1964-1965 season. At present, some 6600 permanent seats are envisaged, with provision made for the erection of 2300 seats in bleacher form, thus bringing the total seating capacity to 9400.

While the auditorium-basketball court would be entirely state financed, it is probable that the University will have to look elsewhere for at least part of the funds necessary to build the undergraduate library, the student union, and the new dormitory. It is hoped that the state will provide at least half the needed funds for these proposed buildings. If the funds fail to materialize, the University will seek help from private sources, increased dorm rent, and the Federal government.

However, the Advisory Budget Commission has already given its approval for the construction of an undergraduate library which will help ensure its legislative passage.

The proposed buildings would be located as follows: the undergraduate library would be built on the east side of Louis Round Wilson Library, as an addition to that building; the student union would be constructed on Emerson Field; and the new auditorium would be built beside Woolen Gym extending over a portion of the Intramural Field.

Chancellor Aycock's discussion was not confined to the University in Chapel Hill alone. He referred to the proposed name change and clarified the issues involved. He stated that under the three-point system which has been devised by the Pearsall Committee, the three main campuses of the Consolidated University would be expanded, that Charlotte and Wilmington Colleges would become four-year institutions with Asheville-Biltmore joining their ranks in time; and that a system of community colleges, or two-year colleges, would be evolved. Whether or not the new four-year colleges would be an integral part of the University of North Carolina will be decided by the Board of Trustees in the future.

Aycock noted that more emphasis would be given to an expansion of the Graduate School and the schools of graduate study at the University in Chapel Hill, to provide an opportunity for the increased number of college graduates produced by the new four-year colleges.

Under the plan advocated by the committee, WC will accept undergraduate men not earlier than 1964, with State forming a program of Liberal Arts, and with Carolina registering a slight increase in the number of freshman women admitted. These women will be admitted to study Art, Music, or Dramatic Arts in the fall of 1963.

On the whole, Aycock said he felt that the proposed University and college system for North Carolina was a good one and one that must be carried out if the youth of the state are to be properly educated.

Asian Flu Not Yet Epidemic; About 40 Cases In Infirmary

By MARY REGAN

A spokesman for the UNC Infirmary said yesterday the expected Asian flu epidemic is not explosive so far. He added that the number of flu cases entering the infirmary slacked off yesterday afternoon.

If the flu reaches epidemic proportions, the spokesman said students will remain in the dorm and will be treated there. However, he said he "would call the signals when the time comes."

Of the 45 students in the infirmary yesterday, approximately 80 per cent were suffering from Asian flu.

Students in the infirmary yesterday

Interviews for the executive positions will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. Monday through Wednesday next week in the Y.

terday included: Allison Allen, Patricia St. John, Roberta Phillips, Ann Morrow, Susan Kenerly, Linda Goldberg, Diane Hile, Linda Stephens, Betty Whitley, Sally Duren, Wilbur Johnston, Richard Johnson, Martin Brennaman, Ralph Reed, Neil Clark, George LaMonte, James Lindley, Scott Silliman, Harry

Lindley, James Poole, Joseph Jones, Wade Taylor, Andrew Harold, Joseph Gibbs,

Frank Silver, William Andrews, John Eudy, Charles Deyton, Senapratt Viswanathan, William Hicks, Larry Moore, Harry Broome, Linda Siltou, David Loftin, Samuel Thompson, Thomas Mimms, John Madsen, Terance Yen, Neil Woodcock, Walter Gunster, Thomas Moore, William Cassidy, Robert Karlson, Harry Ball, and Joseph Crews.

Campus Briefs

A.P.O. RUSH

Alpha Phi Omega, National Service Fraternity, will have Spring Rush at 7:00 p.m. February 18 in the TV room of Graham Memorial, and February 19 in Roland Parker Lounge in Graham Memorial. All who are interested in service to the University are invited.

AFS

The American Field Service will meet upstairs in Lenoir Hall at 6:00 Thursday night.

WESTMINSTER FELLOWSHIP

The Westminster Fellowship has scheduled a retreat for Saturday and Sunday, February 16 and 17. Cars will leave at one and two o'clock Saturday. The topic for the retreat will be a discussion of "mendacity". Further information and reservations are available at 942-3753.

CROSSROADS AFRICA

A film, "Crossroads Africa," about the pilot peace corps project in Africa, will be shown tonight at 7:30 in Carroll Hall.

Jim McCorkle, a graduate instructor here, will introduce the 54-minute film. He participated in the "Crossroads" project in 1961.

THE MARINES HAVE LANDED

A U.S. Marine Corps officer selection team will be on campus on the 13th, 14th and 15th of February 1963 to talk with students interested in becoming Marine Corps officers. All interested students should contact the selection team at "Y" Court through the 15th.

CIRCULO HISPANICO

Circulo Hispanico will meet Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge in Dey Hall, 4th floor. The program will consist of Spanish songs with guitar accompaniment by Maria Elena Bravo and Miriam Almaguer. Refreshments will be served. All are invited.

CWC

The Carolina Women's Council will meet at 6:30 p.m. today in the Grail Room at G.M.

All dorm women interested in playing in the CWC's bridge tournament should sign up now with their dorm social chairman.

Heels Overcome State Lead, 68-63

By HARRY LLOYD (Special to the DTH)

RALEIGH — Billy Cunningham's clutch rebounding in the closing minutes was worth more than his 23 points last night as North Carolina came from behind to defeat the State College Wolfpack, 68-63.

The Tar Heels won their seventh ACC game of the season and their second over the tough Wolfpack.

In a freshman game, UNC's Tar Babies sustained their second loss in 13 games, 83-55. The win for the Wolfpack gave them a 6-7 mark.

Some 11,400 fans in Reynolds Coliseum saw State take a lead with 5:06 to play on Jim Whitfield's three-point play, and then push the advantage to three on Ken Rolhoff's jumper.

But then Yogi Post, Ray Respass, and Cunningham hit consecutively for UNC, and Coach Dean Smith's charges were never headed again.

After substitute Don Greiner hit for State, Larry Brown hit two free throws with 1:28 left to give UNC a 62-59 lead.

State then missed on two straight foul shots, and Cunningham was there both times to make the save for Carolina.

Cunningham's turn shot with 30 seconds left sewed the game up for UNC.

Shaffer, Cooke Out

Poteet trailed Cunningham in scoring with 17, and Ray Respass had 13. Neither Charlie Shaffer, with an injured elbow, or Mike Cooke, with the flu, saw action in the game.

Pete Auksel led State with 15, John Key had 12, and Rolhoff 10. Auksel hit a jump shot at the end of the first half to give State a 29-27 lead at intermission. The opening period was close all the way, with no more than six points separating the teams.

Cunningham's first basket on a layup gave UNC its first lead at 8-6. Billy then canned a free throw, and the Tar Heels had what turned out to be their biggest lead of the period, three points.

After the score was tied at 14-14, State scored three times in a row on baskets by Key, Sinnock, and Auksel to give the Wolfpack its widest margin.

State's halftime lead came from the fact that it had a perfect seven from the foul line. Cunningham, three for three from the line, was the only UNC player to hit a first half foul shot.

Billy had 13 in the first half to lead both teams in scoring.

State's halftime lead came from the fact that it had a perfect seven from the foul line. Cunningham, three for three from the line, was the only UNC player to hit a first half foul shot.

Billy had 13 in the first half to lead both teams in scoring.

State's halftime lead came from the fact that it had a perfect seven from the foul line. Cunningham, three for three from the line, was the only UNC player to hit a first half foul shot.

Billy had 13 in the first half to lead both teams in scoring.

State's halftime lead came from the fact that it had a perfect seven from the foul line. Cunningham, three for three from the line, was the only UNC player to hit a first half foul shot.

Billy had 13 in the first half to lead both teams in scoring.

State's halftime lead came from the fact that it had a perfect seven from the foul line. Cunningham, three for three from the line, was the only UNC player to hit a first half foul shot.

Billy had 13 in the first half to lead both teams in scoring.

RICHARD LEE BRAND

Brand Found Body Found Yesterday Afternoon

By MICKEY BLACKWELL And GARRY BLANCHARD

The body of French graduate student Richard Lee Brand, a 22 caliber pistol still in his hand, was found at 4:45 p.m. yesterday. Brand had been shot once in the head.

The body was found in a wooded area about 30 yards from the intersection Pittsboro Street and Chase Avenue by Dr. Phillips Russell, out walking his dog at the time.

Police said they believe the gun to be the same one reported missing Monday from the home of a girl classmate of Brand's, where a note was found last week indicating Brand had been despondent for some time. Police are still not releasing the content of the note.

Police declined to release the exact content of the note.

Police declined to release the name or address of the classmate. Brand's mother and stepfather had left only hours before Brand's body was found to return to their home in Oklahoma City. Police revealed that while they were in Chapel Hill they received a telephone call from their daughter, still in Oklahoma City, during which she said she had received a letter from Brand postmarked Feb. 6th. Brand was last seen on Feb. 5th, walking in the general direction in which his body was found.

Police said Brand probably mailed the letter from the vicinity of Victory Village on the 5th, but the mail had not been picked up until the following day.

The body is at Walker Funeral Home in Chapel Hill. Orange County Coroner Allen Walker Jr. has ruled "probable suicide."

Pendergraph said a picture of Brand and descriptive information has been sent to authorities in both these towns. "We haven't heard a thing from them yet," he said.

Brand's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leo W. Scott, were in Chapel Hill several days trying to provide information on Brand's disappearance.

Before they left yesterday to return to their home in Oklahoma City, Mrs. Scott said she had heard nothing about her son. She said she felt her son "may come walking back in here."

Mrs. Brand doesn't believe her son was bent on suicide. "I don't think he'd ever take his own life. I think he's just plain tired and wanted to go off for awhile."

A note written by Brand indicated he was in a depressed mood, according to local police. Some officials agree with Mrs. Scott that Brand might have decided to "get away from it all" without telling anyone. However, his car is still here and there is no indication he packed any clothing.

Chapel Hill police and University officials organized a mass volunteer search last Thursday, but no clues or further evidence turned up.

Tour Program Data Available

Dr. Robert E. Cralle, Executive Director of the University Study Tour to Hawaii, announced recently that bulletins and application forms for the 1963 University Study Tour Program to the University of Hawaii Summer Session are now available.

Special rates for Mainland students and teachers for the 6 week (54 days via ship) Hawaii Summer Session Program begin as low as $555.00. Round trip jet transportation, Waikiki Beach Hotel accommodations, plus a full schedule of 22 planned activities are included in the price. Off-campus activities include dinner dances, island sight-seeing trips, beach parties, cruises and field trips.

Bids Being Taken For New ZBT House Near Golf Links

Construction bids are now being prepared on the new ZBT Fraternity House on Finley Golf Course Road, according to Larry Fine, ZBT President.

The bids will be received in Chapel Hill in late February by the fraternity's building committee and architect. April 1st is set as the proposed date for the beginning of construction.

According to ZBT President Fine, "We are extremely pleased that we will be able to begin construction in the early Spring so that the new house will be ready next fall. The new house is a symbol of ZBT's progress and bright future at UNC. Zeta Beta Tau Fraternity was chartered at U.N.C. in 1927 and is presently housed in its own building at 121 W. Rosemary Street.

The new quarter-million dollar fraternity house will be located in the new fraternity court in the southern-most 1 1/2 acre. With sleeping accommodations for 44 men in the beginning, the two-story, completely functional fraternity house features light, airy two-man rooms with dining and recreational facilities for over 100. All resident living and study areas are on the second floor with bedrooms opening through sliding glass doors, to a walled courtyard on both sides of the house.

Artist's Concept of New House

Architect for U.N.C.'s newest fraternity house is Mr. Jerome M. Cooper of Atlanta, Ga. The new house is being financed by the local chapter's Alpha Pi Foundation with the assistance of the chapter's alumni and National Fraternity.

Students Urged To Reserve Dorm Rooms For Fall, Summer

UNC Director of Housing James Wadsworth yesterday urged all students who want to make sure they have a place to live next year or who want to reserve the same room they have now to pay their deposits by Apr. 1. This date also holds for summer school reservations, Wadsworth added.

"The student takes a real chance when he doesn't pay his deposit on time. Every year we have people coming to us complaining because they were placed in a dorm where they didn't want to be. And every time it's because they didn't pay their deposit by April 1."

Wadsworth said that the Housing Department couldn't designate rooms for incoming Freshmen until April 2. "At that time students on campus who haven't paid their room deposit stand a very good chance of losing their rooms for the next year," he said.

Summer school rent is $20 for a double room, $30 for a single room and $40 for married couples. This rent is due with the Summer School Application.

The Pen's Poison, But Manners Are The Motive

'Otelia'—It's No Pseudonym

By ALAN K. WHITELEATHER

Otelia Connor writes such stinging comments on the social manners of our times that she has been suspected of being the pseudonym of a crotchety editor whose pen has an acute case of acid hemophilia.

Over a goodly number of years—the exact number is better left unsaid — Mrs. Connor has been nipping the group conscience of the Durham-Chapel Hill area.

Currently, she operates as The Gadfly of Chapel Hill, particularly raising welts on the hides of University of North Carolina students. At any time of day or night, she will be on hand to pick off the wanderer from good manners.

Only the lone transgressor will be aware of her attack—until the arrival of the first newspaper she can find space in. Mrs. Connor, better known just as Otelia, is an inveterate letters-to-the-editor writer.

Otelia doesn't confine herself solely to manners. Her forays into nose-picking, door-holding and telephone-monopolizing have come primarily since her migration to Chapel Hill about six years ago.

Otelia says she writes about "anything that hits my head." Devout readers of the letters-to-the-editor columns will confirm that everything gives Otelia a pretty hard knock.

Otelia's bypaper is the social injustice, the underdog, the over-inflated forehead who needs pricking, the plain, old common decencies. Her interests may touch on an ill-deserved parking ticket or underpaid teachers.

Otelia's accent is on people — that renowned "human factor" in any situation or circumstance. And among people, it is the individual that is important to her.

Otelia is a product of the plantation South. In fact, she was educated in her home, spending only three years in public schools.

She hankers after and practices the social code of yesterday, a system that soundly preserved a woman's femininity. But she has just enough brashness to make her genuinely exciting.

Otelia's lament is that she has to remind today's youth she is a lady. (She doesn't think only of herself here, but of all women.) As a result, she finds herself doing what "their parents should have done." Take the following example from her writings:

"One day I was going out of a double door at Lenoir (UNC campus dining hall) and had pushed the right door out, when a swarm of students came marching through.

"I said, 'Look here. Don't you see a lady trying to get through?'"

The students snickered, but Otelia got through, the students having been stopped "dead in their tracks."

Otelia's sometimes blunt broadsides have built up the Otelia Connor myth. (One newspaper even found it necessary to reassure its readers that there really is an Otelia Connor.)

In actuality, Otelia was a housewife and mother of two children. "All those 9,000 (students) are my children, now." She is the widow of an American Tobacco Co. executive and lived all of her married life in Durham.

"I lived in Forest Hills in Durham, and all I did was chauffeur the children. I never want to live in the suburbs again."

Her children grown, she looked around for a place to light. She stuck to Chapel Hill. "It's a wonderful place to hang your hat . . . and you can get around without a car."

Otelia just chuckles when she is called the unofficial guardian of the public manners.

"I always tell people I'm one ambassador without portfolio. They don't know what that means. . . . I guess I really don't either, but I usually starts a conversation that gives me something to write about."

Many are the people who have found she will present credentials at the drop of a social courtesy. And with her youthful spirit, she promises to be on the job for years to come.