

GM Spring Weekend To Feature 4 Preps

Bob Rerden, president of Graham Memorial, yesterday announced plans for the GM-sponsored spring weekend which will be held here April 26-28.

Rerden said that "The Activities Board is planning a week-end with enough continuous entertainment for everybody that wants to do anything. Also, the week-end will depart from past tradition in that students may date off campus and take their dates to everything without any charge."

So far, plans include "The Four Preps" Friday night in Memorial Hall, with a combo party afterwards at GM.

Saturday afternoon will be "An Afternoon of Folk and Jazz," on the lawn in front of GM, featuring the "Harlequins" and "Ambassadors" from Duke, as well as several other groups. Saturday night GM will sponsor five different combo parties around the campus, with the locations selected so that they are all convenient to each other.

Plans for Sunday are not definite yet, and will be announced later.

The week-end will also feature special Free Flicks. "Butterfield 8" will be shown Friday night, and "The Buccaneer" on Saturday. Dates will also be admitted to the Free Flicks.

Sloan, Lassaw To Judge Show

Dr. Joseph P. Sloan, Director of the Ackland Art Museum and Mr. Abram Lassaw, visiting professor of art at Duke University, will judge the art exhibition currently being gathered at UNC's new School of Public Health Building.

The exhibition, to run year long, will be composed of works by North Carolina artists. More than seventy state artists have indicated their intention to submit pieces for the exhibition, and well over 100 artworks—paintings, drawings, collages, sculpture—have already been received for the show.

Due to the enthusiastic response, school officials have extended to March 4 the deadline for receiving additional work at the Dean's Office in the new building.

The judging will take place on March 16; it will be conducted as would a juried art show. At that time, the pieces judged to be first will be set aside for purchase by the School of Public Health. Other pieces will be given public display according to the judges' evaluation of their merit, those selected as best being accorded the most prominent locations.

Outdoor Drama Conference Set

The nation's first "Outdoor Drama Conference" for anyone interested in any phase of outdoor drama will be held here Friday and Saturday, March 22 and 23, it was announced today by William Trotman, director of UNC's newly created "Outdoor Drama Institute."

The conference will be held in conjunction with the annual try-outs for three of North Carolina's outdoor productions, "The Lost Colony," performed at Roanoke Island; "Horn in the West," performed at Boone; and "Unto These Hills," performed at Cherokee.

The conference will look at the present state of the outdoor drama and will discuss fresh ideas for the future development of the outdoor theatre.

Topics for discussion will include: architecture and theatrical design for the outdoor theatre; the symphonic drama as a medium for the playwright; directing and staging the outdoor play; the actor in the open air; and the management and promotion of outdoor theatre.

Among those attending and participating in the conference will be Paul Green, Pulitzer Prize winning playwright, originator of the symphonic drama medium and author of plays including "The Lost Colony"; Kermit Hunter, most prolific writer for the outdoor theatre; and most of all, we must stage including the scripts of "Unto These Hills," and "Horn in the West"; John Cauble, general manager of a new show, "Home Is the Hunter," to be produced at Harrodsburg, Ky. this summer.

Also, Gene Wilson of the University of Alabama, new director for this summer's production of "Horn in the West"; Elizabeth Welch, Salem College, speech expert and associated with "The Lost Colony" for many years; John Ehle, special assistant to the Governor of North Carolina, UNC associate professor, writer, actor and novelist David Weiss, University of Virginia, prominent designer of outdoor theatre; and Arthur Cogswell, architect who was winner of the North Carolina 1962 American Institute of Architects award.

The conference will begin with registration in the Green Room of the Carolina Playmaker Theatre on the UNC campus from 12 to 2 p.m., Friday, March 22. Seminars will begin immediately afterwards.

Of the conference, Trotman said, "We are attempting to bring together the top people in outdoor drama from across the country. We hope, through seminars and discussions, to create some real excitement and enthusiasm about the dramatic form which Paul Green originated in America with 'The Lost Colony.' We need to analyze what has transpired during the years since 1937 when the Roanoke Island show was first produced, and, most of all, we must stage including the scripts of 'Unto These Hills,' and 'Horn in the West'; John Cauble, general manager of a new show, 'Home Is

Training Program Planned For New Council Members

A new four-point program for the training of Honor Council candidates was announced yesterday by Honor Commission Chairman Tony Miller. The program, which begins Monday night, will last about three weeks and is compulsory for all students who want the endorsement of the Honor System Commission for the April 2 spring election.

Monday night at 7 p.m. all candidates will meet in 203 Alumni where the chairman of the Honor System Commission will address them and outline for them their program of study. The President of the Student Body, or someone representing him, will address the group and explain the purpose of the Honor System and the basic tenets behind it. Copies of the Student Constitution and the Men's and Women's Honor Council procedures will be given to all the candidates. The final written test will be based on the material in these documents.

In a meeting a week later, the Attorney General will explain the function and mechanics of the Attorney General's staff. A copy of subpoenas and staff reports will be given out. All candidates will be expected to know the function of these procedures.

The following week the Chairman of the Men's and Women's Honor Councils will divide the group in order to explain to their own council candidates the function and responsibility of council members.

A final test will be given about two weeks before the election. The candidates will be responsible for all the material that was distributed to them, in addition to the contents of the talks given by the Attorney General and council chairmen. A passing grade of 85 on this test has been set by the Honor Commission.

This program will end early enough to allow un-endorsed candidates to present a petition to the Elections Board Chairman in order to get their names on the ballot.

All meetings are compulsory for candidates interested in getting endorsed by the Honor System Commission. Present members of the Honor Councils are exempt from this program.

BLOOD URGENTLY NEEDED
Duke Hospital is in urgent need of O negative blood for the treatment of a patient with a serious blood disease. Any person having O negative blood is requested to call Mr. Shirley Woodall at 942-1575. Mr. Woodall will supply transportation to Duke.

If Requests Are Met Professor's Pay In State May Near National Average

Salaries paid Tar Heel college faculty members will be at or near the national average for similar institutions if the proposed state budget is adopted, Board of Higher Education Director Dr. William C. Archie said yesterday.

Dr. Archie made the comment as he reviewed for reporters the board's biennial report, an exhaustive roundup of things as they are and as they should be in state higher education institutions.

He said specific figures would not be accurate because of supplementary funds used.

In arriving at salary recommendations for the coming biennium, Dr. Archie said the board surveyed the national averages for institutions similar to those in North Carolina and then recommended increased state funds to bring institutions here up to that average.

A growth factor of 6.5 per cent was also figured in.

In the case of the University of North Carolina, for instance, the institution was compared with other members of the elite Association of American Universities. UNC was found to be 25th from the top of 31 reporting members of the association. An average salary being paid by the institutions was determined, and an appropriation to bring UNC to this level was recommended.

Teacher colleges in North Carolina were compared with teacher colleges in other areas.

To bring colleges in the state to the national average for similar institutions would require the $7 million plus recommended for salary increases, Dr. Archie noted.

The Board of Higher Education and the Advisory Budget Commission have recommended the money be appropriated in a lump sum to the institutions involved, to be distributed in salary increases as the institution head sees fit.

This means, said Dr. Archie, some professors might receive big raises while others might get little or none. An institution which found it had to pay $18,000 to keep a particular professor could do so if it so chose.

The fact that funds to bring institutions in this state to the national average for similar colleges and universities does not mean the state institutions would equal the best salaries paid at top colleges and universities.

The attempt being made is to reach the national average, which means that several institutions would still be well above the salaries that UNC, for instance, will be able to offer.

Compromise Possible On Berlin Issue

MOSCOW (UPI)—Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev warned Wednesday that U. S. invasion of Cuba would be met by a Soviet thermonuclear attack that would crush the West the first day. But he couched the warning with a hint of compromise on Berlin.

Khrushchev extended the defense pledge to Red China, North Korea, North Viet Nam, East Germany and all other Communist nations although he acknowledged that the "imperialist camp is armed to the teeth."

In an 87-minute radio-television speech to the nation Khrushchev said Soviet armed forces would "rout out" the imperialists if they attack Cuba—an implication the Russians would fight on Cuban soil.

"The President of the United States pledged himself not to attack Cuba and we agreed to withdraw strategic missiles and B-52 bombers from Cuba and did withdraw them," Khrushchev said.

"But this does not mean that we have abandoned heroic Cuba to the big sharks of American imperialism. We gave the Cuban people our word, the word of a brother, that the Soviet Union would come to Cuba's assistance and we shall not leave her in the hour of need."

Khrushchev previously has spoken of a pledge by President Kennedy not to invade Cuba but the United States does not recognize such a pledge because it did not win the right of on-site inspection in Cuba to make sure all offensive weapons were withdrawn.

Rules Out Concessions

Khrushchev vowed that Russia would keep up its military might as long as a threat exists and said Western insistence on using inspection for espionage purposes ruled out any further Soviet concessions on the question of a nuclear test ban.

Khrushchev made these other points:

—The enemies of Communism should realize that disputes such as that between Communist China and Russia will be overcome.

—The Soviet Union is ready to sign a disarmament treaty now but the imperialists are hampering success by building up NATO.

—The Soviet Union will make no more concessions to the West to write a nuclear test ban treaty.

—France is fraternizing with the revenge-seeking West Germans and any war brought by the revenge-seekers will turn against France.

—NATO and the Warsaw Pact powers should sign a treaty of non-aggression but the West fears this would be a serious moral victory for the Communists.

—The tension in Central Europe is brought by the lack of a peace treaty recognizing two Germanies; Russia will continue to seek a treaty.

—The Soviet Union's industrial growth is coming along to the point where "we are treading on the heels of the United States."

Keppel, Sanford Will Speak Here

Francis Keppel, U. S. Commissioner of Education, and Governor Terry Sanford will speak in Memorial Hall at 3:45 p.m. Friday, March 8.

The appearance of Commissioner Keppel is sponsored by the North Carolina Citizens Committee for Better Schools. Commissioner Keppel and Governor Sanford will discuss educational progress and problems in North Carolina.

At 2 p.m. the same day, Discussion groups will meet in Peabody Hall, led by qualified discussion leaders, to focus attention on significant educational problems to be solved.

Students Owe $27.5 Million gymnasium.

The biggest debt at present belongs to State College, which has pledged student fees and rents to the tune of $9.4 million. The University at Chapel Hill has also borrowed heavily to the tune of $7.8 million.

The new state budget—which proposes several new dormitories on a 100 per cent self-liquidating basis—would hike the debt at both institutions.

The question of just how much the students should be expected to pay in the way of school buildings has already created an issue over the new budget.

The colleges—in hearings before the Joint Appropriations Committee—have contended that more self-liquidating projects will price college out of the reach of many students.

All of the institutions have been requesting that the state pay at least half of the new dormitories that are planned, and even this would add to the total that students are expected to pay.

The Board of Higher Education has adopted the attitude that students should pay for the dormitories and student union buildings that are needed but that state appropriations should be increased in other areas so that the total cost to the student for a year at college can be held to approximately the same as it is now.

The borrowing for self-liquidating projects a state higher education institutions is now limited to UNC, State, Woman's College, East Carolina, West Carolina, Appalachian, A&T, Winston-Salem Teachers and N. C. College at Durham.
