ALL WET—Campus Chest Carnival co-chairman Gail Woodward looks out over the intramural field yesterday afternoon after rain caused the postponement of the carnival and brought an extension to Greek Week. The carnival is now scheduled for next

Saturday, with the five rides opening Friday night. Also, since fraternity participation in the carnival is part of Greek Week, that activity will be continued, ending with an address by Dean Long Monday, March 18, instead of tomorrow as originally planned. —Photo by Jim Wallace

Game-Rigging Charge Aimed At Georgia, Alabama Teams

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — A sweeping investigation involving the FBI and the U. S. Senate was triggered Saturday by charges that former Georgia Athletic Director Wallace Butts and Alabama Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant conspired to rig a football game. Southeastern Conference Commissioner Bernie Moore called a news conference to announce that his office was looking into the allegations contained in the forthcoming issue of the Saturday Evening Post. Moore brushed aside suggestions that a scandal might erupt that could shatter the 12-member conference. In Washington, the FBI said it has made "preliminary inquiries" into the charges. A spokesman for the Senate's permanent investigation subcommittee, which has been looking into "racketeering aspects" in point-spread fixing in amateur and professional sports said the group also will delve into the controversy that erupted like a bombshell. A Justice Department spokesman said that while no active investigation was under way by the department, developments were being closely followed.

The Post story — called "The Story of a College Football Fix" — quoted an Atlanta man, George Burnett, as saying he accidentally overheard a telephone conversation in which Butts gave Bryant Georgia's plays and outlined its offensive formations.

Butts, who resigned at Georgia Feb. 28 after 25 years as head coach and then athletic director, and Bryant, both denied the charge. Butts called it "the most fantastic and ridiculous thing that I can imagine."

William H. Schroder, attorney for Butts, said Saturday Butts intends to file a libel suit against the magazine shortly after the magazine hits the streets. Schroder said the suit probably would be for $10 million. Bryant, who is suing the Post about another article, said in a statement issued through attorneys that the charge was "completely false."

Bryant's defending national championship team was a 17-point favorite for the Georgia game played the night of Sept. 22, 1962 in Birmingham. Alabama won 35-0. It was the opening game of the season in which the Crimson Tide won 9 games and lost one. Georgia's 1962 record was 3-4-3. Coach Johnny Griffith replaced Butts as head coach when Butts became athletic director at Georgia in 1960. Butts, in submitting his resignation, said he was stepping down because of business and personal reasons.

Executive Committee "Upon the completion of the investigations it will be referred to the Southeastern Conference Executive Committee, which committee directs policy when the conference is not in session."

Moore said he had talked to Butts and Bryant for a "couple of weeks but at the time I didn't consider it an investigation. I also talked to President O. C. Aderhold of Georgia and President Frank Rose of Alabama. "I don't know that that adds anything to it," Moore said.

Moore was asked what action he could take if the allegation were true. "Now you have asked the $64 question," he replied.

Members of the SEC Executive Committee, which would receive the case after Moore's investigation is completed, are:

J. Wayne Reitz, University of Florida; Edwin D. Harrison, Georgia Tech; T. A. Bickerstaff, University of Mississippi; Ralph Draughon, Auburn University; and Earl M. Ramer, University of Tennessee.

A veteran member of the Alabama team was asked if there had been anything unusual in the preparations for the Georgia game. The player, who asked that his name not be used, told UPI: "No, definitely not. I think this thing is ridiculous. Our practice for Georgia was the same as it is every year."

An inquiry also will be made by the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee. Jerome Alderman, the subcommittee's chief counsel, told a reporter: "Of course we'll look into it."

Alderman said the subcommittee, headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., has been looking for some time into a broad area of alleged rigging of college and professional football and basketball games.

Students living in Craig and Ehringhaus dormitories will be able to vote in Y-Court in this year's campus election, according to a ruling made this week by the Elections Board.

This new polling place is designed to make it easier for students in these two dormitories to vote. Prior to this ruling, students who left their dorms early in the morning and returned late at night were not able to vote.

The Elections Board approved a petition which also sets up polls in the Law, Medical, Dental and Pharmacy School buildings.

The Board approved an item calling for an increased number of pollholders in both Craig and Ehringhaus to eliminate the lengthy lines at these polling places.

Professor Adams will speak on "Classical Moral Philosophy and Metaethics." He gave the same lecture at the University of Alabama on March 13 and will give a paper on "Mental Causality" at Mississippi State College for Women on March 14.

The Sophomore Social Committee will meet Monday at five o'clock in GM.

TO STUDY IN FRANCE

Wales Picked Tour Scholar

Pete Wales, a junior English major from St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, has been named UNC's second Tours Scholarship winner. Al Fairchild, selections committee chairman, announced yesterday. Ann Spencer, a native of Chapel Hill and a French major, was named as alternate.

The Scholarship provides for a year's study, at Tours, France, including room and board with a French family and transportation, is administered by the International Students' Board here.

Wales, stated in his application for scholarship that he felt this trip would add considerably to his education to know and have a better understanding of a people of a different country. He added that "he has career ambitions for the Foreign Service so that his mere being in France and being in contact with French people would be tremendously useful as well as educational for him."

Wales, a member of the Chi Psi Lodge, has been active in both student government and fraternity affairs. He has participated in the freshman and sophomore Honors Program and served on the Men's Honor Council for two years.

Professor Adams will speak on "Classical Moral Philosophy and Metaethics." He gave the same lecture at the University of Alabama on March 13 and will give a paper on "Mental Causality" at Mississippi State College for Women on March 14.

Reconnaissance Aircraft Said In Violation

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two Soviet reconnaissance planes flew over American territory in Alaska Friday and were chased back to Russia by U. S. jet fighters, it was disclosed Saturday.

The United States protested sharply to the Kremlin, demanding the Soviet Union "take all necessary measures to prevent any repetition" of the air violation, the first of its kind.

The Defense Department said the invaders penetrated 30 miles inside U. S. territory. They were over American soil for about a half an hour and set off a "scramble" by U.S. fighter pilots at Alaskan bases.

The Pentagon said that F102 jets "intercepted" the planes but no shots were fired.

Asked why the U.S. fighters did not fire on the Russian planes a Defense Department spokesman said:

"When the interception was made, the Soviets were clearly on a course which would take them out of U.S. air space."

The F102 "Delta Dart" fighters used in the interception are supersonic, and could fly at twice the 460 mile-an-hour maximum speed at which the department said the Russian planes flew.

No Description

There was no description of the Russian planes other than that they were reconnaissance types. This would usually imply that they were not heavily armed.

Radar tracked the Soviet aircraft streaking back to Russia.

A State Department spokesman told newsmen it was "the first clearly established incident of a Soviet overflight of the United States."

There have been reports that Russian planes from Cuba have flown over Southeastern United States but Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara has emphatically denied all such claims.

A defense Department spokesman said the Russian planes were spotted on radar approaching southwestern Alaska. They came in from the west southwest over Kuskokwim Bay, about 200 miles north of the Aleutian Islands. They flew at an altitude of from 17,000 to 35,000 feet and at speeds of 400 to 460 miles an hour.

Dormitory Spotlight: Joyner

"It should be a good semester." Ronnie Joyner, president of Lewis dorm, had this to say when interviewed by the Communications Committee.

"We have made careful plans for the remainder of the year, and if we can get the participation we have had in the past, we will be able to present a very diversified program."

"The 'Lewis Casino' will be in operation for the Campus Chest Carnival, and we will have something up for bids at the auction."

"We have a good social program lined up for spring, including a beach party during the Azalea Festival in Wilmington and a combo party in the quad," Joyner said. "However, these are not definite."

"The social room will be renovated. We will put in new furniture and will paint it this summer," he added. "A new TV set was put in in November."

"Our intramurals have been good this year, and we have had excellent participation. Bill Eller has done a great job, and in addition to the regular program we will have an interform ping-pong tournament in the latter part of this month."

Residents have access to a good quiz file, which was started three years ago. The dorm newspaper, edited by Bob Pustilnik, is above average and the dorm stands ninth in the race for the "Best Dorm" trophy.
