IFC Will Try Individual, Not House, For Misconduct

The Interfraternity Council passed an amendment to its Constitution on Monday night that will give the IFC court the power to try individual cases.

The amendment, which was passed by a vote of 18-6, contains four major provisions. The first will allow the IFC court to try individuals where it could only try fraternities as a whole before.

The second provision enables the court to decide whether the individual or the fraternity is at fault in a particular case. The third provision grants the court the privilege of passing a case on to the Honor Council when necessary. The first provision gives the court the discretion of punishment. An amendment to this provision, introduced by Dave Reynolds for the court and passed by the body, states that the limit of the punishment that the court can mete is a $25 fine and an official reprimand.

This amendment to the Constitution was prompted by the new rule, recently adopted by the IFC prohibiting scholastic inactives from participating in fraternity functions. In this new situation fraternities would have been liable to punishment if any inactive was at the house for any fraternity function.

Brooks Emory, chairman of the IDC court, announced at the meeting that "The court will make every effort to ensure that all IFC regulations will be strictly enforced."

A questionnaire was also distributed at the meeting which will be given to every fraternity member. The purpose of this questionnaire, drawn up by the Office of Student Affairs, is to discover the "value" of the fraternity system, as seen by the individual member. The findings of this questionnaire will be published by the IFC in a booklet at a later time.

CANDIDATES' MEETING

All candidates for spring elections must attend the compulsory candidates meeting tonight at 9:00 p.m. in Howell Hall unless they have been excused by Polly Hastings.

Failure to attend the meeting or to have an excuse will result in disqualification of the candidate unless he contacts the Chairman of the Elections Board and pays a $5.00 fine within 48 hours.

Men Orientation Counselors Will Be Selected Soon

Men Orientation Counselors will be picked next week, Chairman Archie Davis announced yesterday. Interviews will be held in Graham Memorial from Monday through Friday, March 25-29, from 2 until 6 p.m. All applicants are requested to obtain applications from the Graham Memorial office, Scuttlet, Y-Court and the Reserve Reading Room and then sign up for an interview in the Office of GM. Applicants are requested to bring their application blanks with them to the interview.

Med School Open House

The School of Medicine will hold an Open House on Saturday, March 23, for advanced pre-medical students interested in medicine as a career. Short talks by members of the faculty and student body, and a tour of the Medical School, will be followed by lunch in the Hospital cafeteria.

In addition to a visit to patient areas and student laboratories of North Carolina Memorial Hospital, the tour will include demonstrations in Neurophysiology, of the Electron microscope, and of a Recording Spectrophotometer.

Invitations have been mailed to pre-medical students who have not previously attended an Open House. Students and faculty advisers who did not receive an invitation and who would like to attend, may call the Dean's Office of the Medical School for information.

Davis stressed the need for 220 Men Orientation Counselors who would be willing to return to school next fall, September 15. All persons interested in applying for Orientation Counselor must have a 'C' average and plan to be in school next fall.

There will be four training sessions for those picked as Orientation Counselors which will be spaced out from the time of selection until the end of school this spring.

Order Of Grail Honors 13 In Pre-Dawn Ritual

Writer-In-Residence Plan Going Well Says Stallings

Chances for obtaining a writer-in-residence at Carolina appear good, according to replies to feeler letters sent out by Gil Stallings, head of the Writer-in-Residence program.

Although the resident artist would not be assigned a particular class, he would conduct seminars, lead discussion groups and essentially generate interest in his field. Stallings, working with the administration and a faculty committee, has drawn up a list of the outstanding men in their particular area. The replies from Stallings' letters have been favorable and a Writer-in-Residence should be selected in the near future.

Those faculty members composing the faculty committee are Walter Spearman of the Journalism School and Ralph Dennis and John Clayton of the Radio, TV and Motion Picture department.

This afternoon at 3 p.m. in Y building there will be a meeting of all those students interested in participating in the Writer-in-Residence program. The meeting is open to members of all four classes. Stallings has encouraged all those freshmen, sophomores and juniors who are at all interested to try and attend the meeting since a great many members of this year's committee will be graduating.

3 Sophomores, 10 Juniors Are Selected

Thirteen students were initiated in the Order of the Grail in pre-dawn ceremonies this morning.

The Order of the Grail is the highest undergraduate men's honorary.

The new Knights are Charles Henry Battle, Miami, Fla.; Archibald Hilliard Davis, Winston-Salem; Harry Leonard DeLung Jr., Atlanta, Ga., and Harry Whitney Durand, Lookout Mountain, Tenn.

Also: Gerald LeRoy Good, Hialeah, Fla.; William Albert Graham Jr., Chapel Hill; Thomas Franklin Henley, Chapel Hill; Edward Stephens Martin, Chapel Hill, and Kellis Earl Parker, Kinston.

Also: Robert Nelson Peery Jr., Newton; Charles Milton Shaffer Jr., Chapel Hill; Robert Walter Spearman, Chapel Hill, and Trawick Hamilton Stubbs, Atlanta, Ga.

The Order of the Grail was established in 1920 as a means of recognizing outstanding men of the University who exemplify the virtue of leadership as characterized by the four cardinal goals the Grail symbolizes: friendship, truth, courage, and service.

The specific problem which inspired the formation of the order was the growing awareness on the part of the founders of a serious lack of unity on the Carolina campus.

It was felt that growing antagonism between fraternity and dormitory men was impairing the effectiveness of united campus efforts.

The membership of the Order was thus divided between dormitory and fraternity men as a means of providing a representative group qualified to discuss the problem and to attempt to find a solution.

This year the Order has sponsored a number of activities in an attempt to bring the groups closer together including a pre-Christmas Holiday basketball tournament, campus-wide dances, and the annual Grail Mural sports jamboree.

Active Knights include: Inman Allen, Fred Anderson, Warner Bass, Walter Dellinger, Norman Graham, Tony Harrington, Bill Irms, Nelson Irvine, Richard King, Wayne King, Larry McDevitt, Bill Sullivan, Richard Vinroot, Grant Wheeler, and Dwight Wheelless.

Dan Moore Chosen New GM President

Dan Moore, a junior from Spartanburg, S. C., was named as president of Graham Memorial for the year 1963-64, Bob Rearden, present president of GM, announced yesterday.

Moore was selected by the GM Board of Directors.

Vice-president of GM and president of Winston Dorm, Moore is a history major with an all-over average of 3.0. He is also a member of IDC, Consolidated University Student Council, and the Honor System Commission.

He has been associated with student government for three years and worked in various capacities at Graham Memorial for two years.

Rearden said yesterday, "I can speak very highly of Dan's qualifications. His two years of extensive experience with GM and his organizational ability will assure a highly successful year for GM in 1963-64."

Moore reported that "There are always many problems to be solved in an organization of this size. An extremely important aspect of Student Union work is the relationship between members of the various committees. Next year I hope to set up a program that will enable better communication between the various committees."

Know-Nothings Win Over Ruffin Dorm

The "Know-Nothings" rallying from an early deficit scored their second consecutive Junior Class College Bowl 440-200 victory over a challenging team from Ruffin Dorm Sunday.

The winning team of Bob Spearman, Walter Dellinger, Mickey Simmons and Henry Mayer trailed 50 to 5 in the opening minutes before a strong recovery gave them a 190-115 half-time advantage. An especially strong second half sparked the "Know-Nothings" to their final win of 440-200.

Hugo Spechan, Les Bailey, Bill Griffith and Tom Diners composed the Ruffin team.

The series of matches, based on the GE College Quiz Bowl seen on CBS-TV, features academic competition based on a quick recall of facts on almost every subject.

Dr. John S. Clayton, associate professor of radio, television, and motion pictures at UNC, acted as moderator. The matches last one hour with a ten-minute intermission. The teams compete for points by attempting to answer ten point toss-up questions, which if answered correctly allows them to attempt bonus questions worth a stated number of points.

The series is being sponsored by the Junior Class Scholarship Committee and is expected to run until late spring.

The Know-Nothings will place their winning streak on the line this week against a team from the TEP fraternity, winners last week over a DU team.

Freshman Dorm Idea To Be Junked

The University definitely will steer away from all-freshman dormitories after the failure of such experiments this year, William Long, dean of men, reports.

The all-freshmen dorms were reported as spectacularly high in property damages and noisy disturbances.

The experiment was instituted last fall strictly as an experiment and every effort was made to make it work.

And it is not that the youngsters were uncontrollable, but they were worse than others. "It is a relative thing," said Long. Upperclassmen have a positive effect on freshmen, he reported.

Grimes, one of the two dormitories involved in the experiment, had five times the property damage of similar nearby dorms housing mostly upperclassmen. The other freshman dormitory, Ehringhaus, had a rate two and two-thirds higher than a comparable dorm.

While damages in these dorms were spectacularly higher, overall damage to dorms is down thus far this year, said Long.

Tentative plans call for eight non-freshmen dorms, but all others will have a cross-section of the student body this fall.

Boysish exuberance, expressed in water battles and shaving cream fights have led to "unsettled" conditions in the two dormitories. No one has been suspended for dormitory rowdiness and only two cases in the freshmen dorms have been serious enough to be brought before student disciplinary councils.

Housing Director James Wadsworth said "I think a roommate can have enough influence to help a boy make Phi Beta Kappa or flunk out, depending on how easily influenced he is."

Boys who know each other well, perhaps coming from the same high school or town, tend to be more noisy among themselves than with strangers, especially with awe-inspiring upperclassmen, said Wadsworth.

Long feels all freshmen dorms tend to perpetuate adolescence rather than maturity. Dean Henderson noted a freshman's first semester is a difficult period of adjustment. "We've taken the freshmen through the toughest part of the year. Let's see what happens now."

Henderson finds an encouraging decline in the campus noise this spring. He also thinks noisemakers often are students who do not apply themselves and therefore drop out of school at mid-year.

Poverty, Injustice Temper Josh White's Singing Style

By R. LEE FERRELL

He faces the microphone, eyes shut tightly and deep wrinkles of concentration on his face. Fingers glide across six guitar strings.

A voice as intimate as a carress electrifies the audience.

Josh White is singing. Born in Greenville, South Carolina, Joshua Daniel White served a long, tough apprenticeship in the deep South. His family was poverty-stricken, and as a child he knew the pains of hunger in his belly and the discomfort of winter rains on his bare feet.

Josh found his first job at the age of seven. He led blind street singers from one corner to the next.

When he was nine he had seen several lynchings and traveled the "Glorious Road," as he calls it, from Macon to Louisville, Natchez to Nashville.

Some of the singers Josh met were truly masters of their instrumental and vocal music. They were cruel, embittered by fate, and they carefully guarded the secrets of the subtle and intricate guitar techniques. But Josh would watch and listen closely, then sneak away to practice what he had observed. He drew from all the great street singers of the period—Blind Blake, Blind Lemon Jefferson and Blind Joe Taggart.

He incorporated into his playing what he liked from each singer he heard. The result is a guitar style which is sensuous and brilliant.

Josh White became great through a little luck and much determination. No example could be told without twist. After he had his first big break in recording and bookings were beginning to look encouraging, Josh cut his right hand on a jagged milk bottle. The cut was severe, and doctors wanted to amputate three fingers.

His guitar style requires the use of all fingers, in contrast to many modern folk musicians who use tortoise-shell picks. Josh would not consent to the operation. Taking a job as an elevator operator, he began nursing his paralyzed hand back to health. It took four long years, but he finally regained his accomplished guitar technique.

On Friday, March 29 at eight p.m., Josh will bring his songs and guitar to a UNC audience in Memorial Hall. His songs will be of joy and sadness, fostered by long years of experience.

As he has been throughout the western world, he will once again be recognized as the perceptive ar-

By JOHN DOYLE
Bullets fly, white lightning gushes and song rolls forth Thursday night at eight o'clock in Memorial Hall. It's the scene of the catastrophe of the semester known as the "Faculty Variety Show." The one-hour drama (?), written and sponsored by the Junior class, features an all-star cast of twenty composed of UNC's own faculty members.

Faculty? Yes! But in a way you've never seen them before. The house lights dim, the curtains part and there is a typical Carolina student studying and watching TV—but wait! That's not really a student. It's President Friday!

What's this? Is his head nodding? (Too much work). Plunk! He's asleep. That voice? That's the narrator . . . going into the "students' subconscious to find out what his mind is really on. Fun now begins. Here's Dr. William G. Long, dean of men, in a never-to-be-seen-again version of TV's "Gunsmoke". His Purty Sidedick? That's Kitty Carmichael, dean of women, as Kitty!

A little later it's sing-along time with Norman "Mitch" Cordon, former Metropolitan Opera singer, leading the proceedings with much gusto. A break for Dean of Students Henderson: a typical still-wet-behind-the-ears freshman writing home to mummy and daddy for the first time.

The TV spoof continues with Chancellor House getting into a guff battle in "Paladin" and Otelia Connor (the only), as Grandma of the "Beverly Hillbillies", making her own brew in her own still. And then when she—nope, better save that for Thursday.

Time for a commercial! And here's football coach Jim Hickey and archeologist Dr. J. P. Harlan with a word from our sponsor. After at least sixty seconds of uninterrupted anguish, the camera pans to Rockin' Jim "Let's Twist Again" Hickey busily directing the chaos on "American Bandstand".

And that's about half of it! The show's not supposed to look professional. It's only been rehearsed twice.

The object of this money raising project of the Jr. class is simply to have fun (if not scandal) with faculty members. At just $5.00 apiece for townspeople and students alike, it'll be hard to pass up the Faculty Variety Show, Thursday night, 8:00 p.m., Memorial Hall.

Rey de la Torre To Give Guitar Concert Friday

Graham Memorial will present Rey de la Torre, the celebrated Cuban classical guitarist, in a recital Friday evening, March 22 at eight o'clock in Memorial Hall.

Born in Cuba, Rey de la Torre was educated in Spain where, at 16, he made a name for himself as a concert guitarist. He has been heard by country-wide audiences in recitals and concerto appearances, and on television events, such as the "Guitar" show for which he played his classic guitar repertoire; and the television broadcast of Garcia Lorca's "The House of Bernard Alba" for which he supplied the entire musical background.

He has also been guest on such television programs as the Jack Parr and Today shows, and Camera 3.

UNC students will be admitted free of charge, while student wives will be charged 50 cents.
