Two Quit Di-Phi After Vote To End Student Government

By CHUCK NEELY
Two Di-Phi representatives, including former President Arthur Hays, resigned Tuesday night in protest of the Society's passing a resolution advocating the abolition of student government for the second time. President Nat Dean refused to accept the resignations at that time.

The debate over the SG resolution far overshadowed consideration of the main resolution of the evening—a resolution to discontinue nuclear weapons testing. This resolution passed the Society, by a vote of 8-4, and guests, by a vote of 16-7. Two votes were cast in protest of the resolution because it was felt that it was too vague.

A motion was introduced to reconsider last week's resolution concerning SG. It was voted to reconsider the resolution, and, after a heated debate, the resolution again was passed by the Society, by a vote of 7-6, with Dean casting the deciding vote.

The chairmen of the two campus political parties yesterday urged students not to deface or to tear down campaign posters. "Regardless of personal feeling this is deplorable conduct. Candidates go to considerable expense, to say nothing of time and trouble, to see that these posters are printed and displayed. They are making a sincere attempt to reach their constituents, and they deserve to have their material respected," Phil Baddour (SP) and Mike Chanin (UP) said yesterday.

Secretary Candidates Give Views And Request Votes

SARAH BROADHURST UP Secretary

BONNIE HOYLE SP Secretary

"The secretary of the student body is ultimately responsible for all correspondence, filing, and record-keeping in Student Government," Sarah Broadhurst UP candidate for Secretary said yesterday. The other officers of the student government can make policy, directives, and correspond for the student body to every area connected with this University. However, the responsibility that any policy, directive, or correspondence be communicated revolves around the secretary and the secretariat.

"As a new student at Carolina this fall, one of the things which impressed me most was the emphasis placed on student government," Bonnie Hoyle, SP candidate for secretary, reported yesterday. "I have worked in student government this year as a member of the Elections Board and as secretary of the junior class, and I was not disappointed. I do feel that student government is an important part of Carolina life, and I would like very much to serve as its Secretary."

To be qualified to do this job requires that the secretary be an able typist, a hard worker, and an organizer. It is necessary that the voters know how I am qualified to be secretary in these three areas:

1) I will assign a secretary to each of the student body officers. There is a lot of paper work concerned with each of these offices and this plan would allow them to have more time to attend to many of the more important things concerning student government. In order to expedite interviews for appointments at the beginning of each year, I will establish an appointment-secretary to handle scheduling.

"While it is true that the secretary's main responsibility is organizing and directing the work of the secretariat, her job should entail much more than clerical work. I feel that the student government secretary is the most important representative of the women students. Through her their ideas and desires may be expressed to the executive and legislative branches of student government and to the University Administration. I would make a sincere effort to communicate with the women students and make their ideas known. I would like to draw more women into student government work, and the secretary is surely in a position to encourage such participation."

2) To increase the efficiency of distributing materials of the student government offices, I would put all supplies under the control of the secretary. This would allow for a system of giving out sup-

Secondly, I would like to reorganize and bring up to date the student government files. These files are most helpful to a new administration and are useful throughout the year to the various committee chairmen. If these files are set in good order they can be

One-Act Plays Open Tonight For 200th Bill

Three new one-act plays by UNC playwrights will open at the Playmakers Theatre tonight at 7:30. A commemorative performance, this will be the 200th bill of new plays produced by The Carolina Playmakers.

"Pity Has a Human Face," a comedy by Scott Byrd, will open the bill. Set in Memphis, Tenn., the play is directed by Larry Warner. Playing in the show are: Lise Knox, Anne West, Willa Fikes, Ron Weaver, Susie Cordon, Graham Pollock and Marion Hollingsworth. Set designer is Mary Kyle Watson.

The second play is Wesley Van Tassel's "Folly," set in a New York City "dive" joint. Directed by Ralph Swanson, the cast includes Robert A. Malone, Betsy Oliver, George A. Gray and Connie Service. Arnold Wengrow designed the setting.

"Clown for a Day," a children's play by Reginald Spaulding, concludes the bill. Directed by Patricia Lynch, the actors are: Kermit Ewing, Daniel H. Proctor, Randolph Ursemberg, Sean Grady, Tom Huit, Ann Pruiett and Sharon Rice. Harry Callahan is set designer.

Stage managers for the one-acts are Henry Ramer, Rae Smith and Kermit Ewing. Production coordinator is Dick King.

There will be no admission charge to the program. However, complimentary tickets may be picked up in advance at 14 Abernethy Hall. At 7:15 p.m., all available seats will be released to the public.

Football Team Moved To Ehringhaus Dorm

Josh Playing Tonight With Playgirl Help

Playmate of July 1960, Teddi Smith, will be the special guest at the Josh White concert tonight in Memorial Hall. Miss Smith, currently a playmate at the Chicago Playboy Club, is appearing courtesy of the Hub.

She will give an award to the universally-known folksinger on behalf of Phi Mu Alpha, the sponsor of the concert. The award lauds White for his "outstanding work in folk music and his help on the James M. Barham Scholarship Fund."

Tickets for tonight's concert are going fast, but there are still a few left, according to President Ron Friedman.

Tickets are $1.60 at Kemp's and GMI for the 8 p.m. concert. Proceeds go to the James M. Barham Scholarship.

Josh White will be doing the songs that made him famous, plus new ones not yet released on his albums. White is noted for his distinctive guitar technique and sensuous voice.

He is a product of the South, born in Greenville, S. C. Many of his songs have come via his varied experiences. His musical career began early when he led such legendary street singers as Blind Lemon Jefferson from corner to corner.

Following the Phi Mu Alpha concert, the music fraternity will give a party in honor of White. Miss Smith has also been extended an invitation. Admittance is by invitation from Phi Mu Alpha members.

To Meet The Voters...

Road Players Will Occupy Single Wing

By MICKEY BLACKWELL
Varsity and freshman football players will be housed in Ehringhaus dormitory on a strictly experimental basis next fall, and the football squad training table as such will be abandoned according to head football Coach Jim Hickey and Dean of Men William Long.

"The main reason we are going to try this," Hickey said, "is to help save time and then too, we can have the boys together during football season. As it stands now, the boys have to sleep in the field house during football season, and sometimes there's as many as 12 boys in one room. It will be a lot easier on everyone if there are just two boys in each room."

Hickey said he wanted to have his team together during football season so he wouldn't have to hunt all over campus if he should have to call a spur of the moment meeting.

"If we want to have a meeting, the boys are right there together, and we can save a heck of a lot of time by just meeting there in the dorm," he said.

He said he planned to place his quarterback and centers in a certain suite and so on. "Then, when I want to meet with them, we can do it right there and not bother anyone else."

Hickey said he plans to house the "traveling team, composed of about 40 boys," close together. But the rest of the team will be placed throughout the dorm.

"We are not going to have a training table as such next year," Hickey said. "All the boys will eat breakfast in the Ehringhaus, or if they have late classes, at Lenoir Hall."

Hickey said that the evening meal would be the only time that the team would be separated. "We plan to convert a storage room in Ehringhaus to a room where the 40 members of the traveling squad can eat together at night. The rest of the varsity and the freshmen will eat in the regular dining room at Ehringhaus or Lenoir..."

The boys next year are going to have as much freedom as they ever had... and I think we're going to have the best situation we've had.

"Some people think we are trying to isolate the football team from the rest of the campus and not let them meet other people. What they don't realize is that many of the players seldom see each other and I think they should really get to know each other, especially during the football season," he said.

Dean of men William Long said that putting the players in a dorm together "will develop a sort of spirit that they very seldom get in any other way."

The plan will be in operation for the fall-semester-football season

Treasurer Hopefuls State Money Handling Capability

GERALD THORNTON UP Treasurer

DICK AKERS SP Treasurer

"The total anticipated income for student government next year is $165,415.92. This money belongs to you, the student body. It is your investment in student government, and you must decide who will be in charge of it." This was the statement Gerald Thornton, the UP candidate for treasurer, made yesterday.

"During this campaign, I have stressed and shall continue to stress what to me is an important point: the Treasurer of the Student Body must be more than simply a book-keeper," Dick Akers, SP candidate for treasurer, said yesterday. The paying of bills, the drawing up of the budget, and the balancing of accounts are important and imperative for the job. Having taken courses in accounting and economics I feel qualified to perform these functions, but of primary importance is the making of sound policy and the exercise of fiscal responsibility. There are numerous examples which illustrate the fact that these two facets have not been considered in the recent past.

He went on to say that he just could not make himself believe that anything such as policy should be the treasurer's primary concern. "After all, what do you elect a treasurer for?" His job should be to take care of money, and Thornton said, "The most important thing to me will be $165,415.92! This is what you, the owners of this money, expect; and, you have a right to know where your money is, how it is being spent, and how it could be spent."

Two years ago Carrier Current was begun by a Student Party legislature. Briefly described, Carrier Current consisted of the playing of good music into the dorms on a closed circuit—no commercials, campus news three times a day. During the present UP administration Carrier Current was allowed to collapse because of a breakdown in some of the transmitters. With a bit of investigation, I have discovered that for $1228, Carrier Current could be instituted in every dormitory, sorority, fraternity, and apartment in Chapel Hill, as well as in Victory Village and Glen Lennox. With the present $40,000 general surplus and $10,000 unappropriated balance in Student Government, I feel that we can well afford to get Carrier Current going again in the way in which it was originally intended.

Thornton does not propose for the treasurer to spend his time working on campus projects; however, he does propose to keep a close controlled check on all student government spending. He also wants the student body to help him do this.

By publishing position statements all during the year, each student will be able to see exactly what student government is doing with his money. Then the student can sound off when he disapproves and give support when he approves.

Being an accounting major, Thornton envisions student government as the big business which it certainly is, with you, the student body, as stockholders. He feels that the main job of the treasurer is to represent your interest, and all his ideas point in this direction.

Another failure on the part of the present treasurer to exercise fiscal responsibility is that of a misuse of existing funds for the repair of dormitory TV sets and for the improvement of dormitory social rooms. There has been appropriated $1300 and $2000, respectively.

He believes that policy is important. It is an integral part of his plans, but Thornton's policy is concerned with only those things which give the individual students the financial information about student government which they rightly deserve.

With an honest conscience, I really can't promise a flowery, idealistic platform, but I can promise several down-to-earth projects which would be specifically the job of the vice president. Besides social functions pertaining to the ENTIRE class, I would like to develop a project that will be of lasting value to each member of our class.

Senior Candidates Propose New Ideas

RICHARD BARRETT, UP Vice President

WOODY HARRISON, SP Vice President

It is my desire to talk to each junior to find out what you want our Senior class to be next year. Even though I have had previous experience with the student legislature, Judicial council, the class vice presidency, and various student committees, I am not running on past experience but with a purpose for our Senior class.

My name is Woody Harrison and I am running for Vice President of the Senior Class. I am very interested in serving the class in this capacity and I will do a good job if I am elected. As treasurer of our class in the sophomore year, I never missed a cabinet meeting and I was active in presenting ideas and participating in projects. During that year I presented two financial statements in the Tar Heel so that all members of the class would know why we were $98 in the hole at the beginning and $43 to the good at the end of the year. This past year, as Vice President of the Junior Class, I have served as an overall committee chairman trying to keep all the committees functioning and mainly as the advisor to the Scholarship Committee, which has met an average of once every two weeks. On the committee we conducted a poll, contacting as many Juniors as possible, and from this poll we have given three Teacher of the Month awards and plan to give three more. We are now sponsoring an essay contest which, as yet, has had little response even though there is a monetary prize. Our major accomplishment is the beginning of the Junior class College Bowl. It has been a great success, especially with the participants. We now have more teams entered than there are Sundays left.

If elected to this office, I hope to extinguish this feeling and through hard work establish a functional office. It is my feeling that the president should not be burdened with all the major duties of the Senior class without the support of his slate and his fellow classmates.

With an honest conscience, I really can't promise a flowery, idealistic platform, but I can promise several down-to-earth projects which would be specifically the job of the vice president. Besides social functions pertaining to the ENTIRE class, I would like to develop a project that will be of lasting value to each member of our class.

It is my idea to create a dynamic senior class magazine that would include every phase of our career as students at this university. This magazine would cover not only the major sporting, political, and social events of the past three years and future but would also emphasize many facets which have not been given adequate recognition in the past. These facets include the members of our class who have served well in dormitory organizations, on the class cabinets, on class committees, in minor sports, and those who have not received open credit for scholastic achievement. Just a few examples would be members of our class who have served as IDC representatives, those who have worked on

And A Rally Is Held...To The Dismay Of The Police

I would like to see better communication among the members of the class and better participation in class sponsored activities and I will strive for this wholeheartedly if you elect me Vice President of the Senior Class.

The plan will be in operation for the fall-semester-football season
