Playmate Bunny Likes UNC Males

By MICKEY BLACKWELL

37-24-37. Her name is Terri Smith, a former Playmate of the Month and cover girl for Playboy, and she "came to Chapel Hill to see all the college boys." She was at the Hub all day yesterday posing for and autographing hundreds of pictures.

Terri has a dark sun tan, sandy brown hair, blue eyes; and on promotional tours she wears a white skirt, black turtle neck sweater with a bunny on the back, black hose and black high heel shoes—an outfit which many Carolina gentlemen thought was much too conservative. "We couldn't very well go around in our little bunny outfit," Terri smiled. "It just wouldn't be right in the public, you know. When we are out on promotional tours, we try to present the girl next door type of image — you know the kind of girl you want to marry."

Terri has been associated with Playboy magazine three years this June.

"I got my first real start modeling bras and girdles for Sears. Then one of the photographers sent some of the prints to Playboy and I received an offer from them. At the time, they were receiving more than 500 applications from female hopefuls. And as you know, they only choose 12 girls a year to be a Playmate, so I was very lucky.

"When a girl first signs on to pose as a Playmate, she receives $1,000 right off. Then she is paid an additional $100 each month for the next 20 months. That's $3,000 and I suppose that's one of the main reasons I went to work for Playboy—money. But there's also lots of travel and it's certainly an exciting life.

"I've been able to go to Hawaii and Europe and none of this would have ever happened if I hadn't started working for Hugh Hefner and Playboy.

"There is only one major restriction on a girl who is a Playmate," Terri beamed. "We can't do any other nude modeling for two years. But you can do most anything else. The girls could get married and have a dozen children if they wanted to. They (Playboy) don't care as long as the girls look good.

The 20-year-old Terri, who began with Playboy when she was 17 is not married—repeat, is not married.

Terri said she first appeared as Playmate in the July 1960 Playboy and she was also the cover girl on the December 1961 edition.

"I was also in the pillow fight edition which everybody seemed to enjoy. I was the one that was dressed, you remember. The girl with the blonde hair and the pony tail."

To the girls, Terri says, "Dress for the men if you want to please them. Don't try to copy some of these modern hairdos. Do try to find out what the man is interested in, though," she grinned.

"Good Lord, I can't believe this." That was the initial reaction of David Friedman of 209 Alexander Dormitory when he learned that he had just won a dinner date with Miss Terri Smith of Playboy fame.

David and Terri enjoyed a candle light dinner, compliments of the Ranch House last night and then a little later they adjourned to the Josh White concert.

After the date and after he had managed to clear some of the star dust from his eyes, David managed to say, "It was wonderful that's all, just great."

Dormitory Spotlight: Whitehead

This is the twenty-first in a series of articles dealing with UNC Dorms and is sponsored jointly by the dorm presidents and the communications committee.

"We have tried to improve the dorm this year, and I think that we have succeeded.

"The girls are really interested in the dorm, and all in all it has been a good year."

These were the comments of Meredith Patton, president of Whitehead dorm, when interviewed by the Communications Committee. Assisted by Jane Smith, vice-president, and social chairman Betsy Baldwin, Meredith has unified the dorm and improved it greatly.

The dorm won the Homecoming display trophy, have placed high in intramurals, due to their victory in basketball, and have had one of the best social schedules among women's dorms.

A combo party during Orientation Week led off, followed by a Christmas dance. A mixer with Carr was held in February, and a banquet honoring the seniors will close out the year. In addition, dorm breakfasts are held every Sunday.

Officers for next year will be Beth Borneman, president; Susan Kenery, vice-president; and Diane Hennessee, social chairman.

Durand Picked New Chairman Of Council

WHITNEY DURAND

Whitney Durand, a junior from Lookout Mt., Tenn., has been selected as chairman of the Men's Council for the coming year, according to an announcement made this week.

Durand succeeds Grant Wheeler, who was elected last month to serve the remainder of Walter Dellinger's term as chairman.

Peter Jason of Woodmere, L.I., N.Y. and Bryan Simpson of Jacksonville, Fla. were elected vice-chairman and scribe, respectively. Durand has served on the Men's Council since the spring of his freshman year. Last year he was elected scribe of the council and then became vice-chairman when Dellinger resigned last month to work on his honors thesis in Political Science.

Durand, a Morehead Scholar and a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, is reading for honors in History.

NSA Alternates Get Scholarships

Student Legislature Thursday night passed, by a vote of 18-13, a bill establishing four $40 scholarships for alternate delegates to attend this year's United States National Students Association (U.S.N.S.A.) Congress at Indiana University.

Also approved was an amended resolution calling for the International Students Board (ISB) to study the possibility of UNC establishing a scholarship program for an African student refugee from Bulgaria.

The NSA bill, introduced by Bambi Ainsley (SP) for Mike Lawler, sets up an experimental program which may encourage a broader representation of delegates who will represent UNC at this year's conference.

A selections committee, made up of the presidents of the IFC, IDC, WRC and Pan Hellenic Council, will consider and select four alternates. The committee will submit its choices to the president of the student body, who will add two of his own choices, and then will send the list to SL for its approval.

Representatives Rufus Edmisten (SP, TM 4) and Larry McDevitt (UP, TM 3) were absent.

EUROPEAN STUDY SEMINAR

A weekly seminar for students expecting to visit Europe this summer is being sponsored by Seminar Abroad. It is open to all students, faculty or Chapel Hill citizens interested in a background knowledge of Europe.

Eleven countries and all the major cities like Paris, Madrid, Rome, Florence, Vienna, Prague, Berlin and London are being covered. Maps and carefully selected printed material is used along with representative leaders from each country and city.

The meetings are held in the Y.M.C.A. conference room each Tuesday 7:00 to 8:30 p.m. Prague, Berlin and West Germany will be the subject for next Tuesday's meeting. Pete Raines and the Exchange Students from Germany will lead the discussion.

Other major cities will be covered during April. On April 25 to 27 a three-day conference in Washington will be led by representatives from the Embassies of the 5 major European countries and the State Department.

There are openings for three additional members in Seminars Abroad for the summer of 1963.

NEW LEFT

The New Left Club will meet with several trade union leaders who are on campus this weekend, Sunday at eight o'clock at 127 W. Rosemary St.

World Affairs Confab Opens Today; Welch To Give Keynote Talk

Editor Hopefuls Meet In Debate

By CAROL MANNING

The Daily Tar Heel was the subject, but its readers rather than the reporters asked the questions Thursday night.

In a pre-election "debate," editorial candidates Harry Lloyd, Chris Farran, Dave Ethridge and Gary Blanchard gave their views on their proposed plans, policies, and purposes in running the Tar Heel.

Farran promised more student participation in the Tar Heel, encouraged by the editor and his staff.

"Stories should come from the people on campus," Farran said. "Ask the students themselves about student autonomy . . . needle the administration a little or answers."

He stressed initiative and interest rather than actual newspaper experience for non-staff writers.

"For instance," he said, "the Tar Heel should use Journalism classes to get stories on the side." Gary Blanchard and Dave Ethridge call for a "beat system" of reporting. Three reporters would each be assigned to cover a specific area or beat—administration, student government and campus residential area events.

"They will know about their particular area," Ethridge said. "as, dormitory events will be the realm of the man covering dorms."

He added that this "beat" reporter will also know to whom to assign various articles within his specific area.

"The editor's job will be to supervise the whole staff," he said. Blanchard felt the Tar Heel is free to go its own way too much. "It should let the people of the University know where they stand," he said.

A reporter should "dig a story out," Harry Lloyd said. "He should be aware of most of the aspects of campus life."

"He should write fairly . . . reflect what the students think . . . even add seemingly insignificant stories, but of interest to the students," he said.

Farran feels that the difference between the Tar Heel and Chapel Hill Weekly ads is revealing.

"The advertisers are bent to the college audience," he said. "The articles, then, are mainly of campus interest."

Blanchard thinks the DTH is not as much of interest to the townspeople as to the students, but that a reporter should cover the town. The Tar Heel should "take an interest in the merchants' problem," Ethridge said. He calls for a reporter to attend Merchants' Association and other meetings and "to find out what others do."

He thinks that the paper is of interest to students, faculty and townspeople alike.

Student Issues Is Topic

By JOHN KING

Bill Welch, Senate administrative assistant and first president of the National Student Association (NSA) will give the keynote address of the first International Student Affairs Symposium here this evening.

Welch will speak on "Issues Facing Students Today" at eight o'clock in Gerrard Hall. "Challenge and Response: Issues Facing Students Today" is the theme of today's program.

"Challenge and response are recurring elements in the student's life, the daily attempts to understand the world and its problems. To be human, to a student means basically to be able to respond. Inevitably our response-ability involves us in responsibility, and brings to every person the ultimate questions of his life: 'What I required of me? How shall I respond?'" said Kellis Parker were the reasons for the theme.

Registration will be held from 8 to 9 a.m. at the YMCA.

Chancellor William B. Aycock will welcome and address the Symposium at 9 o'clock in Gerrard Hall.

At 10 there will be a panel discussion for an hour and a half on "Issues Facing Students in Developing Countries." Panel members will be Andre N'kanza, Congo; Jozar Anwar, Indonesia; Shintaro Tozaki, Japan; Bachir Ould-Ruis, Algeria and Faraj Ardalan, Iran.

N'kanza is presently the president of the Congolese students in the U. S. and is attending Princeton University. His home is in Dolungu.

Attending Rutgers University, Anwar is studying in the field of Economics. In 1960 he was chosen as a member of the senate of the Faculty of Economics of the University of Indonesia.

Tozaki is attending Oberlin College and is studying in the field of Sociology. Shintaro is a member of the International Section of Zengakuren.

Ould-Ruis is attending Carolina. His field of study is Public Health. Last week he was the Cultural Affairs Vice President of the National Union of Algerian Students.

In that position he was responsible for finding scholarships for Algerian refugee students.

Ardalan is Secretary of the Iranian student organization in the U. S. At noon there will be a luncheon address by Magnus Gunther, former president of the South African National Student Association.

Dennis Shaul, president of the National Student Association (NSA) will speak in Gerrard Hall at 2:30 p.m. on "The Concept of Education in Europe and the United States". Shaul was President of the student body at Notre Dame, and is an Oxford Scholar.

Kellis Parker, a member of the International Students Board, sponsor of the symposium, outlined the goals of this first program as:

1. Creating awareness of the role of the student.

2. Familiarizing the student with the areas, organizations, and activities of students in other countries.

3. Inspiring an awareness of the challenges facing the students in the world today.

"The people who have been invited as leaders for this symposium are people who, in one sense or another, are responsibly responding to life's many challenges," said Parker. "Our task is not necessarily to adopt their actions, but to discover new and more personal responses."

MARTI NAMED TO FACULTY
Dr. Berthe Marie Marti has been appointed a professor in the UNC Department of Classics. It was announced by University Chancellor William B. Aycock with the approval of University President William C. Friday and the Board of Trustees.

Prof. Marti will teach in the Classics Department for one semester per year, beginning February 1, 1964.

Currently Dr. Marti is a professor at Bryn Mawr College where she has taught since 1930. During 1961-1963, she served as a visiting professor at the American Academy in Rome.

Veep Candidates Explain Position

DICK ELLIS, SP
Vice President

"The office of the vice-president has been handled as an executive office for the past two years, and it must be continued in that manner if it is to be as active and successful as it must be in the coming year," Dick Ellis SP candidate for vice-president reported. There are many areas in which the vice-president can work with both the legislature and the president, to promote a meaningful relationship between student government and the student body.

There are certain specific legislative programs which should be coordinated in order to promote both short and long range programs aimed at benefiting the students at Carolina.

For example, a special legislative committee should be set up to investigate the Buildings Department and their dormitory repairs policy. Many students are unjustly charged for minor repair jobs and investigation in this area could be beneficial to dorm residents.

A legislative program to provide for a system of uniform procedures in the IDC Court is another area in which the vice-president should be active. These procedures would strengthen the present IDC court procedure. The opposition party has proposed a system of house councils to strengthen the present system. This was tried in 1958-1959 and did not work, because too many people knew the defendants and would not sit on the councils. This proposal would only serve now as it did then to weaken the IDC Court system.

An Active Resolutions Program
I would also like to promote an active resolutions program on campus issues. Since the legislature is one of the most influential avenues of student opinion, resolutions, on such matters as the plans to move all football players to Ehringhaus or on the proposed raise in student fees could stimulate action in areas outside of the students' immediate jurisdiction.

Legislation is also needed in the area of coordination of the many agencies which bring speakers to the campus. For example, members from each of the several campus groups should be invited to participate in the selection of speakers.

Expand Scholarship Group
The National Merit Scholarship Committee needs to be expanded so that its function will be to bring many more outstanding high school and prep school students to UNC to get acquainted with the University and its merits before they make their final decision as to where to go to college.

Reforms are also needed in the IDC Court, whose importance has been vastly increased. It now tries campus code cases formerly handled by the Men's Council. If it is to handle cases of this importance, it should be elected on an all-term basis instead of being chosen from the IDC. If the IDC can put students on probation, then students should elect its members.

The first responsibility of the Vice-President is to provide a smoothly functioning legislature.

BOB SPEARMAN, UP
Vice-President

"The essential point behind the UP platform this spring is a new emphasis on the role which student government can play in the life of the Carolina student," Bob Spearman, candidate for vice-president said.

Student government must begin to take a far more active concern for the academic, the cultural and the social welfare of the student body.

In the area of academics, I strongly support:

1—The reestablishment of a reading period before exams;

2—The setting up of a Fine Arts Forum;

3—Student representation on faculty boards which consider curriculum changes and academic affairs and

4—Expansion of the National Merit Scholarship Committee.

The Fine Arts Forum would be held in alternate years with the Carolina Symposium. It would draw outstanding figures in art, music, painting, literature and drama to the Carolina campus for a series of class lectures, speeches and discussions.

I also feel that student representation on faculty curriculum boards is essential. Curriculum decisions are of utmost importance to students and should be decided in student-faculty consultation.

Senior Class Candidates Offer Final Statements

MICKEY BLACKWELL, UP
Treasurer

Mickey Blackwell, candidate for senior class treasurer said yesterday that the treasurer must become more than a "ledger-keeping figure-head," and to accomplish this, Blackwell said he intends "to work closely with president Charlie Shaffer to improve certain fixed programs such as Senior Class Day, and also to initiate new class projects.

"Senior Class Day could be a rewarding and memorable experience if a few new features were added to the same old ones of cutting class and running around barefooted." Blackwell added that he would push for a nationally known speaker (such as Nelson Rockefeller or Robert Kennedy, both of whom have been contacted about the possibility of a UNC visit) to come to the campus and combine their visit with several parties and dances.

"In other words, let's stretch the whole thing into a Sr. Class weekend which would benefit not only the seniors but the entire campus as well," Blackwell added.

He said that projects like this would require work, "but hard work would in turn help justify the existence of the office.

"Class officers have a great potential," Blackwell continued, "but it wasn't until I had served as publicity chairman of this year's junior class that I really observed what the real possibilities were — but only if the officers don't shy away from a little work.

"In next year's senior class, hard work, fresh ideas and their execution will be the determining factors concerning the social and financial success of our class."

JOAN HALEY, UP
Social Chairman

Since the fall elections, I have thoroughly enjoyed working for and with the Junior Class as Social Chairman. The months that we have been in office have been fun and busy ones. As Social Chairman I did not work solely on combo parties, but worked with the entire slate of officers on the various projects. As chairman of the Social Committee, I was in charge of the combo parties that we had this year.

From my experience of this year I feel that I am qualified to seek the office of Social Chairman of the Senior Class. I am sincerely interested in and enthusiastic about working again for the Class of '64. This year has passed swiftly, but the months have been full with the sale at Town and Campus, the Teachers of the Month, the College Bowl, the Combo Parties, the Junior Essay, and the Faculty Variety Show. We are presently working on J-Day, to be held later on in the spring. I would like to begin next year with a late afternoon and evening Combo Party and Picnic at Hogan's Lake in the early fall. I would also like the opportunity to have more detailed themes to the combo parties, Mardi Gras for example. Also, I would like to plan varied social functions to be held during Senior Week.

I have many ideas, the time, the interest and enthusiasm, and the experience to plan social functions for the class of '64 if I am elected Social Chairman of the Senior Class. Thank you for your consideration.

BAMBI ANSLEY, SP
Social Chairman

College isn't all academics to the majority of Carolina students. A weekend spent on this campus will convince almost anyone of that! However, there is often a disturbing lack of organization, publicity, and general inclusiveness in many campus social events. Far too often, large groups of the campus population, particularly those students not in fraternities or sororities are left out of social activities. This is not the way to build the unity that we, as the next Senior Class, must develop. The Senior Class Social Chairman, working in cooperation with the other Senior Class officers, could, I believe, do much to better this situation and further the interests of the class.

Let me tell you a few of my ideas for next year's Senior Class:

1) establish an all-campus social suggestion committee, under Senior Class leadership, to which any student could bring suggestions, gripes, or any other pertinent information about campus social events.

2) have a Junior-Senior Weekend, such as was planned this year, but didn't quite come off;

3) have more class parties: combo parties, picnics, etc.

4) have a "Senior Follies" show.

5) open rec rooms in women's dorms for dating on weekends.

6) have better publicity for all Senior Class social activities.

I feel that I am qualified for the job, and if elected, will do my best to fulfill the program previously outlined. I would also be happy to work for the realization of any feasible suggestions.

Your vote could decide this election. I would appreciate your casting it in my favor. Thank you.

Good Elected Head Of IDC, Cites Plan

Gerry Good was elected president of the Interdormitory Council for the 1963-64 school year Wednesday night. Good succeeds retiring president Ralph Mosley.

The head of the Elections Committee announced that dorm elections are scheduled for Tuesday, April 2. Voting will be by secret ballot.

Plans were announced for the IDC banquet which will be held on Sunday, April 7, in the Faculty Club.

ANGEL FLIGHT SUPPER
The Angel Flight of the AFROTC will sponsor a spaghetti supper with all the trimmings at 5 p.m. today in the basement of the Nurses Dorm. Tickets are a dollar each and may be purchased at AFROTC headquarters or from any Angel member.

ROOM RESERVATIONS
Room reservation deposits of $10 for rooms for the summer and fall sessions must be made with the University Cashier in South Building not later than Monday, April 1.
