

Lawler Calls On Students To Stop Demonstrations

By MIKE PUTZEL

Student Body President-Elect Mike Lawler called a meeting of twenty student leaders last night to try to stop a predicted "unauthorized demonstration," and called for "students, rather than administrative action" in student affairs.

Lawler, said that the planned demonstration against the new three-man room policy threatened to turn into a mass "panty raid."

Such action he said might seriously damage UNC's hopes for a new student union and other appropriation bills now being considered by the General Assembly.

Lawler also told the students that student autonomy is at stake and that they must take responsibility for their own actions or the administration will not look favorably on the students in the present negotiations regarding the apartment rule and the Beat Dook Parade.

"Do not participate in any demonstration tonight," said Lawler. "It's not worth sacrificing the union for a panty raid."

William Long, dean of Men sent orders yesterday afternoon to all dorm advisors to try and stop the demonstration. He told them to have dorm meetings called by the dorm

Pi Kappa Phi Chapter Here Nation's Best

The UNC chapter of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity has received notice that it has been rated number one in the latest of the national fraternities' ratings.

Carolina's Kappa chapter has had a perfect 400 rating for the 62-63 school year. The national rating is based on membership, scholarship, financial policies, chapter news, papers and reports to the national fraternity.

Fraternity president Bill Ramsey attributed the national rating to had work by the local chapter and the planning and guidance given by the chapter advisor, the late J. Boyd Flynn, stricken by a heart attack March 2.

The local chapter has in three years grown from a house of seven brothers to its present brotherhood of thirty-one. In the fall of 1962, the Carolina chapter was presented with the Theron A. Houser Award for being the "most improved" chapter in the nation.

Sales Start Today On New Quarterly

The Spring issue of "The Carolina Quarterly," the University literary magazine, will go on sale today at Lenoir Hall and the bookstores around town. Editor Louis Bourne describes the magazine as "one of the largest issues we have published and one of the best."

mother's reaction to their father's funeral. Not as difficult as it sounds — just very clever with nice touches of fraternal, lambent humor."

Bourne described the poetry in this issue as "exquisite. There is no other word to describe it."

"We feel comfortable in saying we're publishing verse which is about as good as that of any literary magazine in the country. Take for example the March 30, 1963 issue of Saturday Review. There are two poems in that issue: George Cuomo's and David Cornell DeJong's. Both Cuomo and DeJong have appeared previously in The Carolina Quarterly, and in the latest issue we have three poems by DeJong and a review of his latest book of verse." Bourne said The Quarterly has "always had a potentially fine poetry market, but past editors have made hasty judgment, placing work of true merit next to stuff that would really seem embarrassing to us."

"The standard of editors in the past is not always those of present editors," Bourne added, and we feel we've been more careful this year, not selecting anything for publication until it's been thoroughly read and explicated.

"The good poets are in it for art anyway, and since they don't get paid much around the country, they publish in magazines they think have fine taste and will publish other quality poems with theirs."

"We're getting marvelous returns. And every once in a while a miracle occurs: some sensitive soul that we've never heard of sends us the one piece about which there can be no doubt. Witness Lucien Stryk's "Persian Suite" in the Spring issue — an eloquent Yeatsian evocation and affirmation of a past culture and much more besides."

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Kennedy Wants Russians Out

...WASHINGTON (UPI)— President Kennedy said Wednesday there are roughly 12,000 to 13,000 Russian troops still in Cuba and he wants more of them pulled out.

He said about 1,000 have left since last reported on the touchy situation two weeks ago.

At the same time he told anti-Castro refugees who want to liberate their homeland they would be better to join the U. S. Army for training than conduct internationally dangerous hit-and-run raids on Cuba.

The President said that budget cuts proposed by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower would plunge the country into an economic decline and thwart efforts to overtake Russia in space.

Firing back at his White House predecessor, the President said he did not want to duplicate the recession-ridden final years of the Eisenhower administration. He also regarded coolly Eisenhower's long-time attitude toward space programs.

Chest Misses Goal But Gets $4000 In Gifts

"Even though we didn't reach our goal of $6,000, we consider this year's Campus Chest Drive an over-all success."

This was the word yesterday from Jack Sechler, Campus Chest co-chairman, on the event's total of over $4,000.

"The Campus Chest Carnival lost about 20 rides because of the rain," he said. "The organizations that sponsored them had other things planned for the weekend following the original date set for the Carnival and couldn't come down to set them up."

The booths took in about 85% of the $650 cleared by the Carnival. Attendance was set at about 3,000 by co-chairman Jim Riley.

The Chest cleared a total of about $4,400: $650 was made at the auction, $650 at the Carnival and about $3,100 came from solicitations.

Sechler, speaking for the Campus Chest, extended his thanks to "all the organizations that participated in any of the three phases of the Campus Chest Drive."

Co-chairmen for next year's Campus Chest are Betty Ward and Henry Morgan.

KENAN STADIUM—Construction workers digging the foundations for the addition to Kenan Stadium ran into a layer of rock last week and had to blast. Above, a workman places the dynamite.

... and a "dynamite mat" is lowered into the foundation to prevent the explosion from throwing rocks out of the area. Then, the wires are connected to the detonator and the blast is set off... leaving rubble.
