14 Students Going To NSA Congress

By JIM NEAL

This year's delegation to the National Student Congress, sponsored by the United States National Student Association (NSA), includes one man born outside the United States, another from outside the continental United States and the first Negro elected in an all-campus election. Hugo Spechar, a senior was born in Bolivia. Pete Wales is a junior from St. Thomas, Virgin Islands. Kellis Parker of Kinston, a senior, is the Negro. Parker put Kinston on the map a year ago when a Kinston radio announcer raised over $2000 to send him to an international human relations conference in Athens, Greece. He has represented UNC in a number of regional and national conferences.

Spechar and Parker are working in the United Nations intern program this summer in New York City.

The nearly-complete list of delegates to the congress was announced this week by Student Body President Mike Lawler.

The congress will be held at the University of Indiana August 18-29.

The student body elected four delegates during the all-campus elections last spring. Alternates have been appointed by Lawler and by representatives of various "non-political" campus organizations.

John Ulfelder has recently named a delegate to replace Inman Allen, who decided not to attend. A former student body president from Atlanta, Allen was elected on the University Party ticket with Wales. Ulfelder is a senior from Winchester, Mass.

Elected on the Student Party ticket were Parker and Phil Barbour. He is a former chairman of the SP and a senior from Goldsboro.

Wales and Parker campaigned heavily for civil rights, repeal of the McCarran Act and abolition of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. Parker was the second-running candidate behind Allen.

The campus NSA pays $80 toward the expenses of the elected delegates through an appropriation in the Student Government budget, Lawler said.

Alternate delegates, recommended by "non-political" campus leaders and appointed by Lawler, receive a "scholarship" of $40 toward expenses, he said.

The "scholarship" alternates appointed so far are Borden Parker of Goldsboro, a sophomore; Jim Fullwood, a junior from Jacksonville, and Mike Chanin of Atlanta, also a junior. A fourth alternate, traditionally a girl, has not been appointed, Lawler said. He said none of

Direct Action Is Resumed After Truce

By JOEL BULKLEY

A group of 51 Negro and 16 white members of the Chapel Hill Committee For Open Business (COB) staged a half-hour protest march on the University campus Wednesday.

According to the COB, the purpose of the demonstration was to draw the University's attention to the situation in Chapel Hill and to request UNC officials to take an active roll in efforts to end discrimination here.

It was the first such demonstration held on the campus, the COB said. No incidents or arrests were reported.

Campus Security Chief Arthur J. Beaumont told the demonstrators Tuesday that they could not march on campus because it would disrupt classes and the noon-hour traffic.

He said yesterday he was taking no action because the Chancellor said he had no objection to demonstrations on campus.

Chancellor William B. Aycock said shortly after the demonstration that "as long as the marchers obeyed safety regulations and did not interfere with the University's programs, he

Investigator From HUAC Now At UNC

A staff investigator from the House Committee on Un-American Activities (HUAC) was on campus yesterday to gather information concerning the New Left Club and some of its members.

Investigator William Margetich said he was using Daily Tar Heel files, University officials and other sources to collect research material on the student organization which called itself the New Left Club. He is particularly interested, he said, in two of the club's former members, Larry Phelps and John Salter.

Phelps and Salter are no longer students at the University and are presently in Cuba. They are expected to return to the United States in the near future, where they face possible arrest for violation of U. S. travel regulations.

Margetich is also trying to obtain information about the Progressive Labor Club of which Phelps and Salter were also members. PL Club is not an official campus organization and has never been recognized as such since its formation a year ago.

The investigator said that he is merely seeking information about certain individuals and that no HUAC investigation of the campus is being planned.

Wade Bruton Calls Ban Constitutional

State Attorney General Wade Bruton said last week, in a formal opinion, the 1963 General Assembly's law banning communist speakers at state-supported campuses is constitutional.

The opinion, reaffirming a stand Bruton took shortly after the bill was enacted, was requested by Rep. Godwin of Gates County, one of the introducers of the measure.

The bill prohibits known Communists or persons who have pleaded the fifth amendment in Communist proceedings from using the facilities of state-supported colleges and universities.

It passed in the waning days of the regular legislative session and has drawn a storm of criticism from educators throughout the state.

"The act has nothing to do with the concept of censorship or thought control," said Bruton's opinion, "and does not promote so-called 'witch hunting'."

The opinion continued: "It does not in any manner prohibit, limit or restrain valid and legitimate academic freedom and does not prohibit learning the philosophy and doctrines of communism."

The law, Bruton said, "would apply to a student member of the Communist party who wants to use the facilities of a state-supported college to make a speech."

HEARTBREAK HOUSE

George Bernard Shaw's "Heartbreak House" will again be presented by the Triangle Summer Theatre tonight, Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 in the Durham YWCA.

Tickets are on sale in Chapel Hill at Ledbetter - Pickard's at $1.50 each.

Fees Are Spent Many Ways

By VAL HENNESSEE

Student fees are put to many and varied uses.

Of the money each student pays in at summer registration, one-third goes to student publications, one-third is used for student projects and the other third goes to Graham Memorial Student Union.

The summer school fees total $17, and are broken down six ways.

The Office of Records and Registration gets $5, the library $7.5, the student infirmary $2.50, $5 go for physical education privileges, $1.75 for summer activities and $1.50 to a materials fund.

The fee for the regular session is considerably higher and includes a fee for the athletic association.

No per capita breakdown of fees is possible for each department because all the money is placed in a general fund and disbursed to each department as it is required.

However it is possible to gain some idea of how departments use allotments.

The office of Records and Registration, the library and the infirmary all use some money for wages, mailing and so forth.

The library uses funds for purchase of books and periodicals and for binding.

The infirmary purchases drugs, medical equipment and patient care equipment with its funds.

The physical education fee is used more specifically for the entire physical education department and the upkeep of Woollen Gymnasium.

The athletic association fee, collected only during the regular year, is used to insure the availability of equipment, facilities and staff, and helps maintain inter-collegiate sports.

In almost every case in which department heads were interviewed, they pointed out the need for money in fees for support of their respective departments.

For instance, the athletic association fee makes up only about one-sixth of the entire budget for that service.

The same is true of the Office of Records, in which the fee was described as having "not been raised in 15 years," and as being insufficient in view of higher costs.

The materials fee embodies expenses for laboratory work and

Emery Book Attacks UNC As Red Nest

A 240-page body of essays attacking many liberal institutions and persons at UNC went on sale in Chapel Hill last week.

The volume, Blood on the Old Well, was written by Sarah Watson Emery, wife of a former University philosophy professor, Stephen A. Emery.

Prof. Emery was granted a leave of absence from UNC for the 1962 fall term to do some writing. However, he chose to retire before returning to his faculty duties in the spring term. At present he is on the faculty of Cook County Junior College at Greenville, Texas, and is living with his family in nearby Dallas.

The book was published in Dallas by Prospect House, according to the listing on its title page.

It quotes extensively from public documents and newspaper articles in attempting to portray the author's feeling that the University and Chapel Hill have
