

Tar Heel Rams Into Capitol

WASHINGTON (U.P.I.) — A North Carolinian created alarm and consternation at the White House Thursday by crashing his truck through a street gate and nearly reaching the famed north portico entrance to the executive mansion.

"I want to see the President. The Communists are taking over in North Carolina," the driver, Doyle Allen Hicks, screamed as he was taken into custody by White House guards and secret service agents.

Hicks, 38, of Waynesville, was later taken to D. C. General Hospital for observation. Police said he was unarmed but the small pickup truck was reported to have it sped through the gate and up narrowly missed a bystander as the driveway to the pillared north portico.

President Kennedy was absent from the White House on his trip to the West but Mrs. Kennedy was on the ground floor of the mansion.

Caroline was attending a first-grade class in the White House at the time, presumably in the upstairs living quarters. John Jr. was out for a ride, a White House source reported.

As Hicks was carried struggling to a patrol wagon, he kept shouting he wanted to see the President.

He kept protesting to the police and secret service men. "I tell you, boys, you'd better get down to North Carolina. I tell you, you'd better get down there and see what's going on, they're killing people like flies."

His abortive effort to break into the heavily guarded White House occurred about noon when lunch-time pedestrian traffic was heavy on the Pennsylvania Avenue side of the President's home.

The two picket-type iron gates at the northwest entry were closed but not locked. The gate is used mainly by newsmen and White House personnel. There is a manned guard house within 10 feet of it and a driveway curves up to the north portico.

An eyewitness said Hicks, driving a truck belonging to the Hicks Heating & Plumbing Co. of Waynesville "came barreling right through, over the sidewalk and through the gates."

Two startled guards at the gate set out in pursuit as the truck sped up the driveway. Another on duty at the north portico rushed down a brief flight of steps to the driveway. Just short of the entry, Hicks brought his truck to a screeching halt and jumped out "screaming and yelling that he wanted to see the President of the United States."

The three guards quickly seized him and turned him over to secret service agents who appeared immediately on the scene.

A welfare official in Waynesville said Hicks, the father of five children, was released from the Broughton State Mental Hospital at Morganton, N. C., last March. He voluntarily committed himself to the institution in November, 1962.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Bomb Provides New Clues In Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Birmingham police hinted Thursday that fragments from a shrapnel bomb that exploded in a Negro neighborhood may give them their best clues yet in their search for the city's racial bomber.

"It is a different type of bombing and it does give us something to work on," said Detective Lt. Maurice House.

House said that all physical evidence of the blast, including nails, bolts and other bits of sharp metal that were scraped over a wide area, had been turned over to the FBI for laboratory examination.

"We've always found various substances around the scene, but as far as physical evidence is concerned, this gives us something to work on," House said.

Lodge Rebukes Mme. Nhu In Saigon

SIAGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge sharply rebuked Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu Thursday for her statements in Rome that junior U. S. military advisers here were "acting like little soldiers of fortune."

Lodge, in a statement released by the embassy said her charge was a "shocking statement."

"These junior officers are risking their lives every day," Lodge said. "Some of them have been killed side by side with their Vietnamese comrades. It is incomprehensible to me how anyone can speak so cruelly. These men should be thanked and not insulted."

The outspoken Mme. Nhu is sister-in-law of President Ngo Dinh Diem. Her husband, Ngo Dinh Nhu, is Diem's chief political adviser and controls South Viet Nam's secret police and a force of 2,000 specially trained troops.

Mme. Nhu was asked while in Rome to comment on the current visit to South Viet Nam of U. S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"I am glad he McNamara is going to Saigon to see how things are run," she said. "The junior officers of the U. S. military mission are acting like little soldiers of fortune."

"They don't know what is going on. With their irresponsible behavior they have forced the senior officers into following a confused policy."

Lodge's statement was his first public criticism of Mme. Nhu since he assumed his post here late last month.

Wilson Attacks Denning Report Findings

LONDON (UPI) — Labor leader Harold Wilson lunged to the attack Thursday on the findings of the Denning sex and security report with the demand the prime minister urgently recall Parliament to debate "an appalling state of affairs" in Britain's security.

Wilson launched his attack in a series of Labor - Conservative radio and television appearances shortly before Prime Minister Harold Macmillan went on the air to defend his government in what a London newspaper called the start of a turbulent and dirty political campaign.

Wilson made it clear he is determined to topple Macmillan's government either by a no-confidence vote in Parliament or at the next general elections due before October, 1964.

The 65,000-word Denning report gave the Macmillan government a clean bill as regards security in the Profumo scandal. But it said he and his top ministers failed in their duty to find out in time that War Minister John Profumo was lying when he said he was not having an affair with call girl Christine Keeler.

The Denning report also noted some "errors" by police and investigating departments and apparent short circuits as regards getting information to the right quarters.

Stray Greeks Play Rush Post Office

By PETE WALES

With sorority rush now in full swing, the Stray Greeks are playing post office.

The girls, members of sororities which do not have chapters on the UNC campus, are performing their annual service to the Pan-Hellenic Council of passing out return invitations and setting up schedules for coed rushees.

Susan Dellinger, president of the Stray Greeks, has her forces up on the second floor of Graham Memorial after each of the five rounds of rush to schedule when the girls will go through each house.

A new service being provided the counsellor program. One girl by the Stray Greeks this year is stationed in each of the nine women's dorms during rushing hours to answer questions about rush and sororities in general.

"We're getting questions now like, 'Shall I go through rush?' and whether or not to join a sorority at all," Miss Dellinger said. "We don't give yes or no answers, we just advise."

"But we don't try to tell them which sorority to join. This is up to them."

There are 15 new Stray Greeks this year, bringing the total to 35.

Sorority rush began with the Pan-Hellenic reception in Graham Memorial last Friday, followed by the first round of parties on Monday and Tuesday. Rushees were required to go to all seven houses at that time.

Wednesday was the first post office day and the only day in the schedule free of rushing. Girls were allowed to revisit a maximum of six houses (if invited back) during the second round of parties last night and tonight.

Tomorrow is another post office day with afternoon rushing tomorrow and Sunday. The rushees go on house tours at this time and are allowed to visit only five houses.

The post office operates next Monday through Wednesday with rounds four and five and then Bid Day on Wednesday. Girls receive their bids then and put down up to three sororities from which they get bids in order of preference.

The sororities' and rushees' preference lists are compared by South Building Wednesday afternoon and invitations to pledge are sent out in the evening.

The curtain drops Wednesday night when all sororities, reinforced with their new pledges, conduct "Open House" for the heavy end of the Carolina ratio.

Spearman To Head NSA Group

A National Student Association Commission has been formed here to study student government problems at colleges and universities in the Carolinas and Virginia.

Bob Spearman, commission chairman, said yesterday that the body grew out of last spring's Carolinas-Virginia NSA regional meeting.

"At the present time," Spearman said, "we are in the process of making up and sending questionnaires to the other schools in the area. These inquiries will deal with specific areas of student government, and we will evaluate them after they are returned to us."

Spearman said that conferences will be set up next spring to discuss the problems confronting various schools.

"We feel that this group can do much to help solve student problems on the various campuses, and I am certain that we will take some of our difficulties into such meetings," he said.

Spearman indicated that between 50 and 100 colleges will be contacted and asked to review the various phases of student government.

At the present time, Charlie Battle and Ned Martin are concerning themselves with fraternities problems, Gerry Good with dormitories, and Phil Baddour, Whitney Durand and Buzzy Stubbs with judicial areas. Ford Rowan is the coordinator of the entire group.

"Later on," Spearman said, "other areas will be added, including Finances, Sororities, Student Government Structure, and the College Press."

He announced that the next meeting of the commission will be held next Thursday at 3 o'clock in the YMCA.

Hootenanny Tonight

Graham Memorial kicks off its fall entertainment program tonight with a full-scale Hootenanny at eight o'clock in Memorial Hall. Admission is by student I.D. cards only.

It has been called "the art of the common man," and folk singing is indeed that, but more recently it has become a grand scale social phenomenon, assuring the immortality and fortunes of hundreds of the doe-eyed, soulful-faced troubadours one used to find only on the sidewalks of Washington Square. "Hootenanny" is the password, and the theme is the pure and simple.

Tonight's program includes one of the fastest rising new folk-singing groups, the Gaslight Singers. The group, three men and a young lady, has made recent night club appearances in Washington, D. C. and New York, and will appear tonight along with Carolyn Hester and Mike Settle, folk soloists, and various guitarists.

Leave your inhibitions behind and whistle a happy tune tonight in Memorial Hall.

Osteen Is First YRC Speaker

Rep. William Osteen, state legislator from Guilford County and House Minority Leader, will speak at the first meeting of the UNC Young Republicans Club at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, in Howell Hall.

"Osteen is one of the most active young legislators, and we are indeed fortunate to have him," Charles C. Hooks, president of the YRC, said.

The YRC plans to meet every other Tuesday with prominent Republicans speaking at most of the meetings. Buz Lukens, national president of the Young Republicans, will speak sometime in mid-October, and Herman Saxon, state party chairman, will speak in November.

Hooks commented on an article that appeared in the Raleigh News-Observer this summer which claimed the YRC had taken the lead from the Young Democrats Club.

"We plan to keep the lead by expanding our activities to give the conservative Republican students a means of meeting the challenge of the present administration's disastrous policies," Hooks said. "We also plan a precinct workers' school for members. The school will be in conjunction with the National Republican Mobilization of Republican Enterprises program."

The club has just finished a three-day membership drive with a gain of 155 new members and hopes to get 250. Meetings are in Gerrard Hall every other Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

The officers for the 1963-64 school year are: Charles C. Hooks, president; Charles H. Heatherly, vice president; Dan MacIntyre, secretary; Jane Hill, secretary; and Dennis Drummond, treasurer.

Claims UNC Doesn't Have Sole Power

Assistant State Attorney General Ralph Moody said Wednesday there is no connection whatsoever between academic freedom and the so-called "gag" law which bans Communist speakers from campuses of state-supported universities.

Moody lashed out at those who say University of North Carolina officials should have full power to run the university without rules and guides enacted by lawmakers. Moody was addressing the Dunn Rotary Club.

He said many persons use the term "academic freedom" as "a sort of blanket or catch-all in justification of their position and as a method of attack upon any governmental requirement or command they oppose or which interferes with their naive or distorted conceptions of freedom."

Declaring that UNC is merely a political agent and instrument of the state subject to legislative control, as held by the state Supreme Court as far back as 1852 — Moody declared "The servant is not greater than the master. There's nothing unusual about that."

Says Argument Absurd

He said the false argument that UNC officials should be given full and final authority with no direction or control from the duly-elected law-making representatives of the people was absurd.

He criticized Consolidated University President William Friday and other university leaders for failure to enforce statutes enacted in 1941 and 1947 prohibiting speeches by Communists.

"Apparently," he charged, "they paid no attention to these statutes for it is a matter of common knowledge that Hall, Rosen and other hard-core Communists have visited the campus and spoken there."

Assailing editors who accused him of writing an opinion supporting the views of the attorney general, Moody asserted, "I don't operate that way. I favor the ban, but the research was based on cold facts and statistics."

Noting that New York State had ordered its regents to rid its colleges of Communists within and bar those from outside, he said New York's supreme court had held the law valid.
