

Fleishman Praises SP And Slams UP

'Discontent Makes SP Great'

By VANCE BARRON

Joel Fleishman, former Student Party chairman and now Legal Assistant to Governor Terry Sanford, Tuesday night blasted the University Party, saying that its basic constituency was composed of the "least discontented elements on campus" and praised the Student Party for its tradition as the "party of discontent."

Fleishman defined "partisans of discontent" as students who desire to see the campus a better place when they leave it and who are active in trying to reconcile "the real and the ideal in student life." "While not all partisans of discontent are in the SP," he said, "the University Party has never been a party of discontent, and I don't give it much hope."

The SP has been an open forum for campus problems and has attracted people who are discontented, he said.

Fleishman outlined the history of the SP, saying "it was born in 1938 in an atmosphere of social concern following the Depression and achieved its maturity with the influx of war veterans into the University following the Second World War."

"It was the return of the war veterans, men who had learned what it meant to take an active role in human affairs that enabled the SP to begin winning elections in the late 40's," Fleishman continued.

"Thus it was a part of the general awakening of American students to the problems around them."

"The moments of greatness of the Student Party, however, have not always been when it was winning elections," Fleishman added. "It has been of greatest use to the University when it has served as critic and the partisan of discontent."

"A political party is a group of people who band together to convince the public of the wisdom of following a particular course of action," he said. "This purpose is fulfilled by running candidates, but a party can fulfill its function without necessarily winning elections."

"I would hope that none of you are here solely for honor, out of a love of the uses of power, or out of a queer fascination with the mechanisms of government," he told the group.

"These are part and parcel of politics, but they are not the heart of politics or of the Student Party."

The SP offers to the partisans of discontent the opportunity to participate in a continuing tradition of reform of student life, he added.

"There is, unfortunately, a great lack of continuity in the tradition of student government," Fleishman continued. "The student memory is very short—only four years—and there is very little inheritance from one student generation to the next. The battles you are fighting today have been fought before."

Woollen Gym Quiet Despite Late Hours

By day, Woollen Gym is alive with activity. Basketballs pound against the floors for hours on end, endless shuttlecocks whiz back and forth across badminton nets and basketballs ricochet off walls and ceilings.

By night, it's a different story. For the most part Woollen Gym is empty.

Dr. O. K. Cornwell, director of physical education, said yesterday the gym is going virtually unused on the nights when there is no scheduled activities.

"We opened the gym this year on Monday through Thursday on an expanded schedule," Dr. Cornwell said. "We had lots of students tell us last year that their schedules prevented their using the gym when it closed at six o'clock. So we made the efforts necessary to get the extra money so we could stay open until nine."

"The problem," Cornwell said, "is that very few students are taking advantage of the facilities. We hope for the number to increase when it gets colder, but we feel that many are simply unaware that the gym is open at night."

"We have the pool, the handball courts the main floor, and just about every other facility open, and we certainly hope the students will begin using them. After all, it's their gym."

2 Vacancies Filled On UP Committee

Frank Martin and Jeff Adams were selected to fill vacancies on the University Party Executive Committee Tuesday night. Martin, a sophomore from Chapel Hill, defeated Wade Logan in the election for party treasurer, and Jeff Adams, a sophomore from Nashville, Tenn., won over Don Leslie for sergeant-at-arms.

Commenting on the elections, party chairman Mike Chanin said, "I am well pleased with these selections and by the large turnout of over 135 UP members for this meeting, I know that both Frank and Jeff will do a good job for the UP and for the furtherance of Student Government at Carolina."

Chanin also announced the following UP legislative appointments: Craig, Ron Hendren; Ehringhaus, Edwin Arrington; Town Men's I, George Ingram; TM IV, Warren Ogden; and Town Women's, Darst Murphy. John Ulfelder UP legislative, floor leader said, "We've been able to appoint some highly qualified people who I know will do an excellent job in Student Legislature."

In other action, Chanin announced that the Academic Problems Committee under the chairmanship of Jim Riley will meet today at 4 p.m., in Roland Parker I.

Chanin also announced that the Executive Committee will hold interviews Sunday for legislative openings in TM II, and IV at 8 p.m. in the Grail Room. "We

Citizen's Council Pledges Negro

By PETE WALES

One member of the segregationist Durham County Citizen's Council will not be on hand to hear Alabama Governor George C. Wallace speak in Durham Sunday night.

He is Kellis Parker, a Negro and a senior at UNC. Parker received his membership card last August, much to his surprise.

"My reaction was about like that of the father-in-law of Charlayne Hunter," Parker said. Charlayne Hunter was the first Negro coed at the University of Georgia who revealed her secret marriage to a white Georgian this summer. Her father-in-law is reported to have said, "This is the end of the world."

Parker believes that some one signed his name to a membership list as a practical joke. However, he has not notified the Council of his race.

In fact he has received further information about the Council and materials for recruiting more members.

"Although the original intent was to play a practical joke, this does show the gross lack of communication between such groups," Parker said.

"In view of the current changes in our nation and in Durham County in particular, it seems we should be seeking to better our communications."

"Since we shall be attending the same theatres, the same restaurants, the same schools, the same parks, etc., we should have closer contacts no matter what our political groups."

"Therefore I extend the invitation to all my fellow members of the Durham County Citizen's Council to participate in the activities of CURED & the NAACP." CURED (Citizens United for Racial Equality and Dignity) is the local Chapel Hill integration group, started last August.

Parker has been a member of the executive committee of CURED and led a series of peaceful demonstrations in his home town of Kinston this summer.

He was one of the first Negroes to win an all-campus election at a major Southern state university when he successfully campaigned as a UNC delegate to the National Students Congress last spring.

Parker is also chairman of the International Students Board this year.

"It is significant that they've taken the initiative to integrate their own group," Parker added. "Perhaps this small gesture towards integration will be extended to others in Durham."

"Perhaps they will now inform their friend Governor Wallace that the inevitabilities of history cannot be defied."

Madame Nhu To Speak In Raleigh Today

A group of Carolina students is expected to stage a demonstration in Raleigh this afternoon in protest of United States foreign and military aid to the Diem government in South Vietnam.

Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu, Vietnam's first lady, is scheduled to visit the Capital City today to hold a 4:30 press conference and give a 6 p.m. lecture in the N. C. State Student Union.

The campus chapter of the Student Peace Union (SPU) and members of the local Progressive Labor Club are expected to participate in the demonstration.

John Dunne, chairman of the local SPU, said Wednesday in a prepared statement, "We wish to make clear that we fully support Mme. Nhu's right to speak and urge everyone to attend."

"Our protest, however, is directed to U.S. economic and military support of a government which represents six-tenths of one percent of the population of South Vietnam, and whose tyrannical suppression of the most basic human freedoms is totally inimical to the fundamental ideals of American democracy."

"We invite everyone who feels that no end can justify a mean so hypocritical and self-degrading, as to make a mockery of the democratic precepts for preservation of which we are fighting this very war, to join us in peaceful protest."

Dunne said cars will be leaving the Morehead Parking Lot at 2:30 and 4:45 p.m. for those needing rides.

John Salter, chairman of the Progressive Labor group reported that transportation to Raleigh will also be available at 4 p.m. from GM.

In Washington Wednesday, Mme. Nhu said she has evidence that some Kennedy administration officials have "no eagerness to win the war against Communists" in South Vietnam.

She also criticized as political pressure a recent withholding of U.S. commercial aid to Saigon.

"I cannot see how such a thing can be done without reason against a government which is winning the war," she said.

The State Department has delayed payment of a reported $12 million in grants this month to help South Viet Nam finance commercial imports.

Bateson Clams Up In HUAC Hearing

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

British Convoy Delayed By Soviets

BERLIN (UPI) — The Soviets Wednesday held up a British convoy for nearly nine hours outside West Berlin in a futile bid to force acceptance of new terms for Allied road travels to Berlin. Britain promptly announced it was strengthening its Berlin troop garrison because of the "present situation."

The Russians held up the westbound British convoy at the Babelsberg checkpoint one mile from West Berlin but finally backed down and freed it after the British refused to give in.

The British convoy moved without further incident across Communist East Germany, was passed quickly through the last Soviet check point on the West German border and entered West Germany Wednesday night.

A British spokesman said later that training maneuvers of the 1st battalion of the Prince of Wales' own Yorkshire regiment had been cancelled because "the present situation in Berlin has necessitated their immediate return" from West Germany.

Kennedy Proposal Termed 'Sellout'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite Negro cries of "sellout," Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy won major support Wednesday in his drive to soften a House civil rights bill as a step towards pushing it through Congress.

Chairman Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.) of the House Judiciary Committee agreed with Kennedy that the bill would have to be toned down to win more bipartisan backing. As drafted by a judiciary subcommittee, the bill is stronger than was proposed.

As Kennedy had expected, he was the immediate target of Negro leaders. Clarence Mitchell, Washington director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told newsmen: "It's a shame. There's no reason for this kind of sell-out."

Fighting Spreading In Morocco

MARRAKECH, Morocco (UPI) — Morocco charged that Algerian warplanes bombed Moroccan territory Wednesday and said fighting was spreading between Algerian and Moroccan ground forces in disputed desert border areas.

Ahmed Reda Guedira, chief of cabinet to King Hassan II, said fighting broke out for the third straight day around the Sahara border posts of Hassi Beida and Tinnjoub.

License Fraud Is Subject

FROM DTH WIRE REPORTS

WASHINGTON — A story with cloak and dagger overtones was unfolded Wednesday of a fraudulent North Carolina drivers license being obtained and used in setting up the forbidden trip of U. S. students to Cuba last summer.

The two principals in the story, Nicholas Bateson, a UNC graduate student, who said he is a British subject, and Arnold Idembaum, a New Yorker, refused to answer any questions about it before a House Sub-Committee on Un-American Activities. Both pleaded the Fifth Amendment against possible self-incrimination.

But an airline ticket girl for KLM Dutch Airlines in New York, June Gard, identified Idembaum as the man she said arranged for large blocks of airline tickets to Paris. She said he later claimed a refund on unused tickets, identifying himself with a North Carolina driver's license in the name of Jay Jacobs.

A similar story was told by witnesses for the British Overseas Airways Corp. and KLM.

A North Carolina license examiner, Drane Sherman, identified Idembaum as having applied for a license July 26 under the name of Jay Jacobs. Sherman said the license was later mailed to Jacobs at Box 141-B, Durham, N. C. The address was identified as that of Bateson and Peter

Debate Team Places 2nd

The UNC Debate team returned from a tournament at Davidson College this weekend after rolling up an impressive 8-2 record and tying with Duke for second place in the event. There were 10 schools participating in the meet.

Both the affirmative and negative teams won four debates and lost one. The affirmative team, consisting of Haywood Clayton of Durham and Bob Powell of Thomasville, lost to Randolph Macon. The negative side, consisting of Dick Broeder, of Coral Gables, Florida, and George Carson of Elkin gave up its only loss to Washington and Lee, who won the tournament.

The negative team defeated Duke in one of the top debates of the meet. Federal aid to education provides the conflict for this year's debate topic which is: Resolved that the federal government should guarantee every qualified high school graduate a college education.

Coach Donald Springen commented that he was pleased with results of this first tournament for it showed a considerable exhibition of strength.

Petition Try Is Halted

UNC student leaders Wednesday confirmed reports that some efforts had been made earlier this week to petition the Special Session of the General Assembly to reconsider the controversial speaker ban law.

"The Technician," student newspaper at N. C. State, reported Tuesday that student groups had planned to present the petition to the special session Monday.

Grant Blair, co-editor, said the students changed their plans following action by the Legislature in limiting its consideration to redistricting the State Senate.

Student Body President Mike Lawler and Vice-President Bob Spearman said, however, they had met with several student leaders early Monday morning and decided it was "tactically not a good time to present a petition."

The newspaper said student groups from Duke, N. C. State, UNC, UNC at Greensboro, Wake Forest, Charlotte College, Wilmington College, A & T College and East Carolina had planned to present the petition to the Assembly.

What A Mess!

"Hey, where are you guys?" "Craigie dorm, third floor!" "What?" "Hey you, get off the phone!" "I'm in Spencer!" "ATO house here!" "How many people are on this damn phone?"

These are some of the comments you are likely to hear if you use the phone in Chapel Hill these days, especially if you happen to listen in over a busy signal.

Yes, that's right—a busy signal. In the past few days, this campus has been hit by a fad that is now sweeping the country, called the "Beep Line" or "The Grapevine." By any name, it's a riot.

number seem to be channeled into a central circuit where the busy signal is produced. Some one found that conversations may be carried on between callers while the signal drones on endlessly in the background—and that the number of possible connections is apparently limited only by those patient enough to listen.

The result has been something that must be heard to be believed.

Beginning early in the evening, and continuing well past the bewitching hour, the busy signal line is jammed with conversation—dorm residents, fraternity men, girls, and unidentified screams. They all may be joined by the Winchester, Va., operator and even a banjo picker. Last night, even Jack Kennedy and Ma Frickert showed up.

It's a wild time, indeed, with the total at any one time often reaching ten or more phones. Fraternity men swear at anonymous dorm voices, dorm men scream "frat rats," and they all go crazy when a girl joins the line.

One of the results of all this nonsense has been an abominable "snafu" in the phone system. It has become virtually impossible to reach a dorm or fraternity house while "The Grapevine" is going—unless you can weed out your party from the babble of voices.

The current issue of "Time" reports on the nation-wide phenomenon, saying that there is little the phone company can do to prevent it. "It sounds," says "Time," "like a convention of tomcats in an aviary."
