Renaissance Work Shown At Ackland

Now on permanent display in the Main Gallery of the Ackland Art Center of the UNC-CH is a fifteenth century Italian Renaissance altarpiece. The Madonna and Child with Saints Lucy, Sebastian, John the Baptist and Catherine of Alexandria, by Jacopo Sellaio (1441-1493).
 Concerning the significance of this major addition Joseph C. Sloane, director of the museum, says, "In the first place it's the only fifteenth century Italian work the museum has and it fills a considerable gap in the collection. In the second place although the painting has suffered a great deal of damage through the years the key parts, that is, the Madonna and Child, are in good condition. It's an important piece of that size—90 inches by 86 inches including the frame—and the sacra conversazione was a typical type of altar painting during the Renaissance Period. There is no similar picture in all North Carolina and thus it complements the collection in Raleigh in this respect."
 "Not much is known of the history of the painting but it's attributed to Sellaio who is one of the more mysterious painters of the middle and latter part of the fifteenth century. Sellaio was an eclectic painter who was influenced by almost all the major styles around him—particularly in his early work. He was a pupil of Fra Filippo Lippi and was in the group that included the young Botticelli. The Madonna and Child show the lingering influence of the International Style and there are traces of that influence, particularly of Domenico Veneziano in the Madonna. The coloring is unusually fresh and vivid.
 The museum is open to the public Tuesday through Friday from 2 until 5 p.m. and 8 to 10 p.m.; Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, 2 to 5 p.m. Closed Monday.

Laughs Pepper English Movie

"Murder at the Gallop," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, produced by George Brown, directed by George Pollock, starring Margaret Rutherford.
 By STEVE DENNIS
 How English are the English! Even for those who dislike Agatha Christie, there must be something exciting about the prospect of Agatha spoofing Agatha in the movie now showing at the Rialto Theatre in Durham, "Murder at the Gallop."
 Starring the invincible Margaret Rutherford, this is a movie with a positively therapeutic value. One of the funniest women around today, Miss Rutherford has the face of a bloodhound and the talent of an unconstructed laugh.
 Milchester has problems—murder, murder, and murder. Or so Miss Marple (Margaret Rutherford) thinks. A blustering old busybody who sees the world through the murky tinted spectacles of Agatha Christie's vision of the murder mystery, Miss Marple is concerned.
 A wealthy, eccentric old man dies. One of his four heirs states that he has been murdered, only to be spitted on a long hatpin for all her pains. Now there are three. Miss Marple is sure she knows THE ONE, until he is murdered. Finally, after a wild twist in the ballroom of an English inn, she KNOWS. But it would be unfair to reveal the conclusion to this mad wave of crime.
 After solemnly pronouncing her opinion that "The books of Agatha Christie should be required reading for the police force," Miss Marple sets to. At first the Inspector is politely tolerant,
