Law School Dean May Step Down

By HUGH STEVENS
It was learned here yesterday that Henry P. Brandis, Jr., dean of the UNC Law School, plans to step down from his post at the end of this year.
Brandis, reached at his home late yesterday, refused to confirm or deny the report, confining himself to "no comment."
Reliable sources here discounted rumors that Chancellor Aycock may be leaving his current post to assume this one, since Aycock has made clear his desire to completely disassociate himself from administrative duties, at least for a few years.
Brandis assumed his post in 1949, after serving on the Law School faculty for nine years.
His services have been much in demand in regard to state and national commissions studying legal matters, and on the home front he has been much respected for his outspoken views on many matters of controversial nature over which some in the academic community choose to remain silent.
In 1959, Dean Brandis resigned from the Chapel Hill because the board refused to accept the application of a Negro to an all-white school. He has also defended the members of the faculty in their position on academic freedom, saying that academic freedom is not dying of neglect. He has stated that the University faculty is not afraid to speak, with the exception of a few "nervous nellys" who hesitate to speak for what he calls "the wrong reasons."

Brandis was born in Salisbury, Feb. 8, 1909, the son of a railroad worker. He graduated from Carolina in 1928 and won his LL.D. degree in 1931 from Columbia University.
He practiced law in New York City for two and one-half years, returning to North Carolina as associate director of the Institute of Government. In 1936-37 he was instructor in Tax Administration with the University. From 1937 to 1939 he was secretary of the State Tax Classification Commission, and in 1939-40, he was chief of the Research Division of the State Dept. of Revenue.
He joined the law faculty in 1940 as an assistant professor and rose to full professor of law in 1947.
During World War II, Brandis served in the U. S. Naval Reserve, his tour of duty including Iwo Jima and Okinawa aboard the USS Texas. He returned to the UNC in 1947.
The reason for Brandis's resignation apparently is that he will have served three five-year terms by the end of next spring, and custom dictates he hold the post no longer. He is expected, however, to stay on at the Law School as a professor.

UNC Student Roughed Up Sat. Night

By JOEL BULKLEY
Doug Tilden, a 20 year-old University student, was roughed up by several unidentified persons, apparently students, attending a joint DKE-Zeta fraternity party at the DKE house Saturday night.
Tilden received a black eye and a bloody nose from the encounter.
The incident apparently stemmed from the fact that Tilden went to the party with Kellis Parker, a Negro UNC student. Neither campus nor Chapel Hill Police, however, had any record of the incident.
Tilden, who was reluctant to discuss the fracas, said he was struck several times then dragged to a back room where he was thrown onto a couch before being hustled out the door.
DKE officials, Bill Davis, house president and Merrimen Gregory, social chairman, said they knew nothing of the incident but indicated they would check into it.
House Manager Bill King said, "If it happened, we regret it. We don't know that it did but we're going to check into it."
Tilden related the incident saying he and Parker arrived at the party around midnight when Parker joined in with the band playing his trombone.
"A few minutes later," Tilden said, "a group of boys walked into the party room and asked me to leave by way of the back room. Then another fellow walked up beside me, asked me if I was a student and other personal questions like was I a friend of Kellis' and was I his manager?"
"Another fellow walked up and made some derogatory comment about Negroes in general. One fellow, who claimed he had hired the band, said something about me having a lot of gall to show up uninvited. I didn't understand what he was talking about since it was supposed to be an open house."
A DKE spokesman Monday confirmed that the party had been an open house.
Tilden continued, "The warning lights for coeds to leave flashed at 12:45 p.m. and I received a few blows, a bloody nose, a black eye and a few blows to the stomach—before being dragged to the back room. Someone threw me down onto a couch and said, 'when I say for you to leave, I expect you to do so.'" "I left the room, stood in the hall for a minute and then some people grabbed my arm. I shook them off and then said to Kellis, who had stopped playing in the band by that time, let's leave. As we left two fellows followed us out to the porch and watched us leave." He added that he had lost his raincoat at the party.
Tilden said he had no plans to file a complaint with the Inter-Fraternity Council.

Fifteen class offices and 19 honor council posts will be filled today in the annual fall elections.
Arthur Hays, chairman of the Elections Board, predicted yesterday that a record number of students would vote today. "There seems to be much more interest this year than in the past, and this can be attributed to the number of outstanding candidates," he said.
Polls will be open today from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and the actual counting of ballots will begin at 8:30 p.m. tonight. Election results will be posted in the Rendezvous Room of GM tonight. Due to the lateness of the ballot-counting, the Daily Tar Heel will not carry the results until the Thursday edition.
"We will need help in counting the ballots," said Hays. "Anyone who is interested should be at GM by 8:30."
In the freshman, sophomore, and senior class elections, a student may only vote for candidates of his own class. All students except those coming under the original jurisdiction of the Law, Dental, and Medical School Courts are eligible to vote for the constitutional amendments submitted to the Student Body for its ratification.
Each voter will be required to show his ID card and have it stamped before he will be given a ballot. He will also be required to sign a pledge stating that he has not voted previously in this election and is voting at the proper polling station. Violations of this pledge will be considered Honor Code violations.
All men and women dormitory residents will find ballot boxes in their dorms with the following exceptions: Connor wen will vote in Winston, residents of Emerson Stadium Fieldhouse will in Ruffin, and Kenan women will vote in McIver. Craig residents will be able to vote in their dorm or at the Men's Dormitory District I box in Y-Court. The residents of Ehringhaus will also be able to vote either in their dorm or at the Men's Dormitory District VII box in Y-Court.
The residents of Town Men's District I (all town men students residing in the area bounded by Columbia St. on the east, Cameron Ave. on the north, and the corporate limits of Chapel Hill on the west and south) will vote at the Carolina Inn or the Naval Armory.
Residents of Town Men's District II (all town men students residing in the area bounded by Cameron Ave. on the south, Columbia St. on the east, and the corporate limits of Chapel Hill on the north and west and the city of Carrboro) will vote at the Scuttlebutt and their box in Y-Court.
The residents of Town Men's District III (all men students residing in the area bounded by Columbia Street on the west and the corporate limits of Chapel Hill on the north, south, and east) will vote at GM and their box in Y-Court.
Residents of Town Men's District IV (all men students residing in the area outside the corporate limits of Chapel Hill and Carrboro) will vote at their box in Y-Court.
Residents of the Town Women's District (all women students living in Victory Village and in buildings not owned by the University) will vote at the Victory Village Housing Office or at their boxes at GM or in Y-Court.

'Pretty Awful' Says Morgan

By PETER HARKNESS
Present radio and television programming "is pretty awful," noted ABC network news commentator, Edward P. Morgan, said Saturday.
In an informal talk with a class in Radio, Television, Motion Pictures 45, Morgan praised Newton Minow, past chairman of the Federal Communications Commission for his criticism of radio and television.
Regarding the government's intervention into the mass media, Morgan said there was a legitimate reason for the government's "sticking their nose in." He explained that stations must be licensed and therefore must set some sort of standards.
He continued that a certain amount of government control "is a danger that we have to face."
"We must realize how much we of the industry have been short-changing the public," he said.
"I would like to see radio and television stimulate more controversy. Instead of taking Minow's criticism at face value, we became hostile."
Morgan mentioned the ABC station in Raleigh, WRAL, as evidently being somewhat biased. He said he wondered why the public, especially the University, hadn't made their discontent known.
"We must exert our individual responsibilities. It would be a very healthy situation if the public would tackle this problem. I am discouraged that since Minow's statements we have done so little to improve this situation."

The newsmen explained that sponsors will frequently change scripts.
He said, "I have always felt it was ridiculous to let the manufacturer of some ladies' product become the drama critic of radio and television."
"Improvement will be a triangular sort of thing with a rising responsibility on the part of the broadcasters, a reaction from the public and an increase of interest from the government, which must be handled rather delicately."
In a short question and answer period following the talk, Morgan praised the televised debates in the 1960 Presidential campaign as "one of the best things that has happened to political democracy in a long time."
When asked if he thought the people didn't approve of poor programming, Morgan said that broadcasters were still wrong. He said that they must lead a little bit rather than cater to public taste.
He told another questioner that ABC could not tell Jesse Helms, WRAL-TV editorialist, what he should or should not say. He said that a network had no claim to what an affiliate did, only to those few stations that are owned and operated by the network.

Will Discuss Review Board

By PETE WALES
Three faculty and administration officials will appear before Student Legislature tonight concerning the faculty decision two weeks ago to drop students from the Student-Faculty Review Board.
Dr. Gordon Cleveland, chairman of the Faculty Committee on Student Discipline, Dean of Men William Long and Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey will speak to the body and answer questions.
"The only discussion will be about the decision of the faculty committee," said Bob Spearman, speaker of Legislature. "We will not concern ourselves with the Honor Council proposals or any bills."
Dean Cathey said yesterday that he would present some of the history of the Board, but

CAUCUS

There will be a joint UP-SP caucus tonight in the legislature hall in New East at 6 p.m. All legislators must be present. would leave discussion of the faculty decision to Dr. Cleveland. "Until the decision, I wasn't sure of the problem," he added.
Dean Long said he would have no formal presentation but would make himself available for questions.
"Whether our positions are accepted or not, at least there will be better communication."
"The inherent problem of the University has always been extremely poor communications."
Both men mentioned that the students would be allowed to present their case at the next meeting of the Faculty Council, the first Friday in December.
Dr. Cleveland was not available for comment.
Two past presidents of the Student Body were contacted for their reactions to the faculty's decision.
Eli "Sonny" Evans, president for the 1956-57 school year and now an attorney in Durham, expressed surprise at the change.
"I haven't followed the progress of the Review Board since I left, but I've heard that it has been successful."
"So if this decision represents any philosophical change toward Student Government at Chapel Hill, I'm rather shocked."
Evans was under the impression that when the Board was created in 1956, it was done primarily and not as an experiment.
"That was Chancellor Aycock's first year in office," Evans recalled. "We were rather excited about the creation of the Board at the time because we felt that a new and progressive era had arrived in faculty-student relations."
"The feeling at the time was that students, faculty and Administration were to work together in a cooperative effort for the good of the University community."
"Apart from that, the theory was that the Board was a step in the appeals process for the student who wanted to appeal an Honor Council decision. The Chancellor, of course, was the last resort."
David Grigg, president for the 1960-61 school year and now in Duke Law School, questioned "the wisdom of taking this out of the students' hands."
"During my administration, there was strong faculty disappointment with the Honor Council. We were on excellent terms with the Administration, however."
"We held consultations with both groups all during the year and made several changes. We did away with the Student Council and with the jury system."
"These changes were partly due to faculty disappointment in the Honor System, but mostly

Peahead After Lacey, Kortner

By MAT FRIEDMAN
The New York Giants hope to draft two UNC players, end Bob Lacey and tackle Cole Kortner, The Daily Tar Heel learned Saturday.
Douglas C. ("Peahead") Walker, former coach at Wake Forest and Yale and now a southern area scout for the NFL Eastern Conference champions, revealed at halftime of the UNC-Georgia game Saturday that he feels the two players are definitely professional material.

"We (the Giants) will draft Lacey and Kortner if we get a chance," he said.
"Lacey has great moves and fine hands," commented Walker on the 6-3 205-pound end from Pelham, N. Y., "and he runs very well after he catches the ball. He will probably be very high on the draft list because several teams are interested in him."
Although it has been assumed for some time that Lacey would be drafted by a professional team, the mention of Kortner came as something of a surprise. The six-foot 234-pounder from Greenwich, Conn., did not even come out for football until his sophomore year and was not a regular on the first unit at the start of this season.
"Kortner is a real strong blocker," said Walker, "and he looks real good on the line. I don't know if any other teams are interested in him."
Lacey has caught 28 for 306 yards so far this season. Last year, he set an ACC record with 668 yards on 44 catches and was a unanimous all-ACC pick.
In addition to the two seniors, Walker named halfback Ken Willard, fullback Eddie Kesler, and end Frank Gallagher, all juniors, as possible future pro prospects.
"Willard is a great runner," he said. "Kesler is a very good blocker and a fine runner even though he is not too fast. Gallagher is a real fine defensive end. He rushes the passer well and is very quick."
Walker also had high praise for the Tar Heels as a unit.
"I think they definitely deserve to be rated in the top twenty," said a man who has seen practically every top team in the South.
"They have a real fine ball club. I think the pass defense is real good and deserves to be up at the top. It is a combination of a fine rushing line and a good secondary."
"If they go through the rest of the season without a defeat," he continued, "they should have a real fine chance of going to a bowl. The Duke game probably is the key one. It should give them the most trouble."
Walker also expressed interest in two Georgia players, star quarterback Larry Rakestraw and end Mickey Babb. Even though they are not throwing to him today," Walker said, "Babb is a fine end."

CUSC Backs Trustees On Ban Decision

By HUGH STEVENS
RALEIGH—The Consolidated University Student Council, meeting here Sunday night, unanimously backed the Board of Trustees by passing a strongly-worded resolution urging repeal of the Speaker Ban Law.
The resolution says that the law is "inconsistent with the democratic principle of the free exchange of ideas in conjunction with critical inquiry in pursuit of truth."
The law, it states, "reflects adversely on the administrative officials of state-supported colleges and universities and may do irreparable harm to the academic excellence" of those institutions.
In other business, Bob Spearman of Chapel Hill was appointed chairman of a committee to study arrangements for next year's CU Day at Chapel Hill.
Other committees were set up to study constitutional revisions for the council, to work on a film of the Consolidated University and to set up a calendar of events among the three branches. It was also suggested that a revolving newspaper column be started to exchange news among the schools.
The council's next meeting will be in Greensboro on Dec. 8.

Sprechen Sie Deutsch!

"Lernt Deutsch," or "Let's Learn German" is a new program series premiering Tuesday, on WUNC Radio.
The weekly program, featuring announcers from the German Broadcasting Company, will be presented every Tuesday night at 7:45 p.m.
The series will begin with Lesson One of the First Course for Beginners. The listener will hear some 22 vocabulary words in the first lesson, spoken in an everyday conversation. Each lesson will contain about the same number of words; and each third lesson, the words will be repeated.
The program series is planned for both semesters.

COUNTERS NEEDED

Ballot counters will be needed tonight on the second floor of GM. Join in the intellectual and moral edification which accrues to ballot counters. Be there by 7:30.

Meet The Candidates UP SP

The University Party candidates for freshman class offices are: Sam Kelleit, president; Mickey Gamble, vice-president; Susie Warren, secretary; Ken Traub, treasurer; and Maureen Shannon, social chairman.
Sam Kelleit attended Westminster School in Atlanta, where he was captain of the football team and was chosen as "most valuable lineman". He is a member of the Young Republican Club and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes at UNC.
"Last year's freshman dropout rate was so alarmingly high that I am giving primary emphasis to the promotion of a studious atmosphere and the inauguration of two class organized academic programs," he said. "First, we shall have scheduled review sessions with selected instructors the night before important quizzes. Second, a Freshman Study Council will be organized to arrange for individual tutoring."
"My platform also plans to strengthen our class through strong extra-curricular and student government participation.
Mickey Gamble attended Lee Edwards High School in Asheville, where he was a member of the French and Latin Clubs and active in student government. He attends UNC on an academic scholarship.
"If our class is to be successful, each member must be oriented through effective leadership to use his abilities in the area where he is best suited," he said. "The scholars must have full details about 'A' sections and honors programs; the athletes must know about the specific needs for them in the intramural and varsity programs; and the classmates with extra-curricular ability should know about what they can do for the various organizations."
Susie Warren was a member of the junior and senior prom committees at North Carolina Broughton High School in Raleigh. She was active on the student council.
"Every day freshman must know of the social, athletic and extra-curricular opportunities open to them, and it is important that they be well informed so that they can select what is best suited to them," she said. "I want to have a scheduled 'Freshman Column' in the Daily Tar Heel, a regular newsletter, and pamphlets on our projects and outstanding class-

The Student Party candidates for freshman class offices are: Jim Brame, president; John Hedrick, vice-president; Mary King, secretary; Jim Hubbard, treasurer; and Anne Clemmons, social chairman.
JIM BRAME was president of his class for three years at Durham high school. He is president of the State DeMolay, vice-president of the State Student Council and a delegate to the National Student Council convention. He was also a member of the National Honor Society.
"The goal of the SP candidates for freshman offices is to unify our class," he said. "We are presenting a unified platform which we think is realistic and workable."
"We will try to achieve 'Progress through Unity' this year."
JOHN HEDRICK was vice-president of the senior class at Greensboro Senior High School, where he also served as vice-president of the Service Club and was a member of various student government committees. Captain of the senior basketball team, he is a member of UNC's freshman team.
"One of the methods of attaining class unity is through class spirit, and the SP candidates propose to sponsor pep rallies and bus trips to games played away from home," he said. "In addition, we would organize a freshman talent show."
MARY KING is immediate past Governor of Girls' State and serves as vice-president of the national organization. She was selected as "Best All-Around Student" at Greensboro Page High School, where she was also president of the Spanish Club, president of the Playmakers, a varsity cheerleader, junior and senior class president and a member of the swimming and tennis teams. She is a member of the 1963-64 Yack Court.
"One of our ideas is to have a Freshman Weekend in the spring," she said. "We would start off on Thursday night with a speaker, such as Dave Gardner, have a hootenanny on Friday night featuring a nationally-known folksing group and end the weekend with a dance with W.C. girls on Saturday night."
JIM HUBBARD was an honor graduate of Rocky Mount High School. He was sports editor of the yearbook, lettered in tennis for three years, served as treasurer of the junior class and president of the sophomore class and was runner-up in the election of governor of Boys' State.
"Of course, to have a successful year we must have finances, and the SP candidates feel that
