CORE Hopes Chapel Hill To Be First In The State

By PETER HARKNESS

In a dingy room above a funeral parlor in Carrboro, the local chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) maintains its headquarters.

In mid-afternoon, the office is bustling with busy white and Negro volunteers. Young girls work feverishly on typewriters, two boys talk quietly beside an oil stove, while another explains new tactics to a local minister over the phone.

One of the workers, Quinton Baker, is a serious young man who has a neat appearance, wears glasses, and speaks in an articulate manner. He is a pleasant person with a good sense of humor.

A student at North Carolina College, Quinton is head of the state youth program for the NAACP.

He was carried from Brady's Restaurant Sunday night and from the Pines Monday night by police during sit-ins.

This is nothing new for Quinton. He has spent a number of nights in jails throughout the state.

He is especially interested in Chapel Hill because of the hope, which is shared by others, that it will be the first town in the state to totally desegregate.

The current integrationist move began here at the end of the spring semester last year and extended through the summer. The original anti-segregation group was the Committee for Open Business (COB) which sponsored marches, picketing, and sit-ins throughout the summer. Some demonstrations were as large as 500 strong. Thirty-four were arrested in a sit-in at the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Merchants Bureau.

At the end of the summer, COB was replaced by Citizens United for Racial Equality and Dignity (CURED) and at the beginning of the school year, the local chapter of CORE was established.

CURED is only a local organization while CORE is a member of one of the largest national civil rights groups.

Quinton Baker was here throughout the summer and frequently participated in demonstrations. When asked why the COB disbanded, Quinton remarked, "The committee failed this summer because of the ineffectiveness of the movement, which brought a strong desire for new tactics that were contrary to the beliefs of many members."

"If any gains are to be made, the present movement has the greatest chance of achieving them," he added.

"The majority of the crowds this summer weren't willing to make the sacrifice necessary for an effective movement."

Quinton feels that the new integrationist groups have been able to organize people who are willing to make those sacrifices.

"CURED encompasses all those who are willing to make certain contributions, but not go so far as to go to jail. CORE's members are ready for anything."

The local leader of CORE is John Dunne, who recently gave up his Morehead Scholarship and left the University so he could work full-time for the organization.

John is a rather handsome, dark-haired fellow with a pleasant voice. If anything, he is intense.

He is one of the few whites whom the Negroes respect for leadership. Most whites, they say, are not militant enough. During the summer, the white participants served as a moderating force, but most of them are no longer active.

There is still a certain element of dissatisfaction with the present leadership. Some feel the recent wave of sit-ins have detracted attention from the planned voter-registration drive.

In answering them, Dunne said, "You might find a small element that feels we are stressing the wrong things now. That element is referred to as the 'white liberals.' There are very few Negroes, if any, included."

Asked if he thought a Public Accommodations law for Chapel Hill was possible in the near future, he said, "It's up to the city's fathers to solve the city's problems. I think there is a distant possibility they will. We are asking for complete desegregation before Christmas."

Quinton Baker was not as optimistic. "Of any North Carolina town, Chapel Hill has the greatest possibility, but I'm very skeptical," he said.

As he was talking, an elderly minister entered the office. It was Father Clarence Parker, an 80-year-old retired Episcopalian minister. What did he think of the recent developments?

"It all goes into one basket," he said. "I'm behind anything subject to the principles upon which CORE is based."

He must have meant it. Two hours later he had to be carried out of the Pines Restaurant by police. He was one of nine arrested in a sit-in staged by CORE Monday night.

JOHN SALTER

The John Salter arrested during a sit-in at the Pines Monday is not the same John Salter who is chairman of the Chapel Hill Progressive Labor Club.

The John Salter who was arrested is a former professor and is currently a field organizer for the Southern Conference Educational Fund. He is presently stationed in Raleigh.

First Negro Sworn In As Legislator In A Special Session

Basketball On Tube

Those who don't want to sit in poor old Woollen Gym tonight can see the UNC-Georgia clash on channel 4. WUNC-TV has announced that it will televise the game, starting at 8 p.m., using its "Broadvision" technique. There will be no audio coverage of the game, only video. Viewers can listen to the game over any of the radio stations which will be carrying the intersectional battle.

Treasury Chases Chain Letters

The U. S. Treasury Department is cautioning the public against the current rash of Savings Bonds "chain letters" which are reportedly being circulated on some college campuses in North Carolina.

A Treasury spokesman announced yesterday that "The Treasury Department is opposed to such practices. The objections stem from the fact that such schemes make fraudulent misuse of Savings Bonds, and experience over the years has shown that the vast majority of people who participate in such schemes or lotteries lose their investment."

"Some chain letter plans imply that the Government approves the idea in order to increase bond sales. This is not true. Banks and other issuing agents have instructions to refuse to sell Savings Bonds in cases where they know or have reason to suspect that the bonds issued will be used in any type of chain letter scheme. This applies whether (Continued on Page 3)

The New Look In Girl Grabs

By JOHN GREENBACKER

It didn't look like much of an abduction scene yesterday at the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity house, but that's exactly what it was.

Brothers of the fraternity "kidnapped" housemothers of the seven sororities on campus and held them until each girl of each house contributed a can of food for charity.

Charles Wolfe, Lambda Chi vice-president, said the canned goods would be given to the Inter-Church Council, an affiliate of the Red Cross, for distribution.

How did the mothers take it? "The boys were real sweet," said Kappa Kappa Gamma mother Mrs. Mary Huffman. "I think these boys deserve lots of credit (Continued on Page 3)

Bill Urging More Student Participation Is Passed

By SUZY STERLING

The first Negro member of Student Legislature was sworn in at a special session Monday night.

Larry Poe, a junior from Salisbury, will replace recently resigned Richard Westin in Dorm Men's I. Like Westin, he is an independent and said he "intends to remain one."

In other action, a resolution urging further student participation on Faculty Committees and a bill to amend the SL By-laws were passed.

Neal Jackson, sponsor of the Faculty Committee resolution, said that currently only one student is a member of a faculty committee, that being Scholarships, Awards, and Student Aid.

According to Jackson, the committee chairman, Dr. J. R. Caldwell, has praised the student representative highly, noting that the student was "active and effective in the work of this Faculty Committee."

Jackson said that Dean Cathey had noted in a letter that general reaction from other faculty committee members was negative.

These members commented that they had tried student members in the past, and there were "poor attendance and no contributions."

The faculty members were willing to let students appear before committees and offer suggestions, but not to act as members.

Student Government officials are making efforts to place students on other committees, such as Buildings and Grounds, Fraternities and Sororities, Admissions, and Athletics.

Bob Spearman, legislative speaker, said the only way the faculty could benefit from student suggestions would be through student relations.

The resolution passed unanimously.

An amendment to the Bylaws which will provide an automatic adjournment of the legislature at 10:45 p.m. was also approved.

The amendment will make it possible for the women students in legislature to obtain last minute permission from housemothers in the event of unusually long sessions.

In the past, late permission had to be obtained three days in advance, preventing women from remaining after 11 p.m. when a session ran over.

This left 25 per cent of the student body unrepresented for part of the session.

This amendment will reassure the Dean of Women that late sessions will not be frequent, so that late permission may be gained at the last minute.

The election of the two members to the CUSC was postponed because of a large number of absentees.

Also sworn in as a new legislator was Gordon Parker.

BULLETIN

Some 37 persons, many of them University students, were arrested here last night during a sit-in at Clarence's, a segregated restaurant on W. Franklin St. Early reports showed that 19 whites and 18 Negroes were jailed on charges of trespassing and resisting arrest. Tuesday's demonstration brought the total arrested in five days of renewed protests to 73.

SP To Elect New Leader In GM Tonite

Legislative Seats Also To Be Filled

The Student Party will meet tonight to select a new chairman. The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in Roland Parker Lounge of Graham Memorial.

Neal Jackson, party chairman for the past year, announced last week that he would not run for re-election. He cited his work in Student Legislature and NSA as the reasons for his withdrawal.

Also to be elected tonight are a new vice-chairman, two year-long seats on the party's Advisory Board and two six-month seats on the Advisory Board.

Legislative seats to be filled include Dorm Men's IV (Upper Quad) and in Town Men's IV (the area outside the corporate limits of Chapel Hill and Carrboro).

"Several people have indicated interest in these positions, and the meeting is of importance to all party members," commented Jackson. "We hope that everyone will be able to attend."

"We have scheduled the meeting early in order to avoid conflict with the basketball game, and it will not last more than 45 minutes."

'Encounter' Discusses North Carolina Fund

By JOHN GREENBACKER

"There is no longer an excuse for not correcting our poverty and unemployment problems," Dr. George Esser said Monday night.

Dr. Esser, Executive Director of the North Carolina Fund, called for better organization and coordination of welfare and research agencies in North Carolina on WUNC-TV's weekly panel discussion program, "Encounter."

Stressing the need for public interest in the growth of the community, Dr. Esser said, "Until we help make people productive and self-reliant, we will fail to reach our goals."

The Fund was created by Gov. Terry Sanford after the state received contributions from several national foundations for the solution of its welfare problem.

Dr. Esser described the Fund's purpose as providing a new "incentive." "While other organizations were established to create opportunities, we were established to help people take advantage of them," he said.

Mike Brooks, Director of Research for the Fund, said one out of every six citizens of North Carolina has below a sixth grade education. "The mountain and coastal areas have the worst economic problems," he said.

The Fund is now attempting what Dr. Esser described as "a comprehensive package of programs" in key areas of the state designed at relieving poverty and educational problems. "Response has been great," he said.

Dr. John Clayton, program moderator, concluded the discussion by stressing "the Fund is not a mass handout, but an experiment which may be carried out and duplicated throughout the state."

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Johnson Pledges Full Support To UN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI)—President Johnson pledged full support to the United Nations yesterday and offered a new year vow to make world peace, civil rights and human welfare "not an illusion but a reality."

Delegates applauded for 42 seconds when he ended his 15-minute address with the pledge that:

"Any man and any nation that seeks peace—and hates war—and is willing to fight the good fight against hunger and disease and ignorance and misery—will find the United States of America by their side, willing to walk with them every step of the way."

Bogus Priest Is Russian Spy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Justice Department said yesterday that a mystery man accused of espionage for the Soviet Union has been identified as a 44-year-old Russian.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said the accused spy, who assumed the name of a New York priest, really was Alexander Sokolov, 44, a native of Tiflis, Russia.

The department said it still does not know the identity of the woman arrested with Sokolov in Washington by the FBI last July 2.

The couple was living together in a fourth-floor walkup apartment under the names of "Robert King Baltch" and "Joy Ann Garber Baltch." The real Baltch is a priest.

The identification of Sokolov came to light when a federal grand jury in Brooklyn reindicted the Russian and the bogus "Mrs. Baltch" on charges of conspiring to spy for Russia and conspiring to act as foreign agents without notifying the State Department.

Ruby's Lawyers Seek Habeas Corpus

DALLAS (UPI)—Jack Ruby's lawyers fought yesterday to move the strip club owner from jail to a psychiatrist's couch to seek evidence that Ruby was insane when he shot and killed Lee Harvey Oswald.

A writ of habeas corpus was filed with criminal court judge Joe B. Brown Monday that charged Ruby was held illegally without bond and that he could not get "proper psychiatric treatment" in jail.

Mich., Kentucky Threats To Loyola

NEW YORK (UPI)—Loyola of Chicago has two new challengers for the No. 1 spot in the weekly United Press International basketball ratings following last week's upsets which plagued the nation's top teams.

The Ramblers finished first for the third straight week, receiving 28 of the 35 first place votes cast by the coaches on the UPI ratings board, but moving up fast were second-ranked Michigan and third-ranked Kentucky.

Michigan, unbeaten in five games, received three first-place votes and 245 points, 880 behind Loyola. Adolph Rupp's Wildcats, also 5-0, had two first place votes and 202 points.

Duke (3-1), beaten by ninth-ranked Vanderbilt (5-0), dropped from second to fourth place. Cincinnati (3-1) was fifth and UCLA (4-0) was sixth. New York University (4-1), beaten by Toledo in Madison Square Garden last week, dropped from third to seventh but had one first place vote.

Texas, another unbeaten with a 5-0 record, moved up from ninth to eighth place. Vanderbilt (5-0) was ninth and there was a three-way tie for 10th between Davidson (6-0), Toledo (6-0) and Oregon State (5-1).

Vanderbilt, Davidson and Toledo figured in last week's biggest upsets. Vandy beat Duke, 97-92, and Toledo stopped NYU, 87-74. Davidson beat Ohio State, 95-73. The three teams are newcomers to the top 10 along with UCLA.

THESE ARE THE REMAINS of a cabin near Manning Drive owned by student Jim Kirkman. According to Fire Chief James Stewart, the fire apparently started when an oil heater overheated about 4:30 p.m. Monday. A companion cabin, in the background, owned by Peter Van Riper, escaped fire damage. Stewart said no estimate of the damage was available and that an investigation was continuing.—Photo by Jim Wallace.
